U. N. Calls For Cease-Fire, France-Tunisia War Halts

Both Sides May Ignore Request For Withdrawal

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — France and Tunisia sent cease-fire orders to their weary soldiers in the Bizerte areas Sunday and a silence broken only by occasional gun-fire settled over the embattled city.

Reacting quickly to a U.N. Security Council call for a cease - fire, both governments ordered their troops to halt offensive operations and hold positions taken in bloody fighting that broke out last Wednesday.

With communications disrupted and some units isolated, the cease-fire orders were slow in filtering down and a few bursts of gunfire punctuated the predawn darkness over Bizerte.

IGNORE REQUEST

Neither side gave any indication it would comply with a Security Council request that all troops be withdrawn to positions held before the French broke out of a Tunisian blockade around their huge Bizerte military base and fought into the city three miles away.

Thus, the French held their main objective — ground protecting the base's lines of communications. For the Tunisians, the standpat order represented at least a temporary setback for hopes of ejecting all French from the area.

Travelers returning from Bizerte said some troops on both sides were disappointed in the cease-fire.

Some French officers felt they had been deprived of a military victory because of political maneuverings. Some Tunisians said the French should have been ousted from Tunisian soil altogether.

Hours after the cease-fire order, the exodus of wounded and

U.N. Unable To Agree On Other Steps

Kill Resolutions On Negotiating Tunisia Dispute

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The U. N. Security Council Saturday called for—and got—an immediate cease-fire in the French-Tunisian fighting, but council members failed to reach agreement on steps to end the dispute between the two countries.

In quick succession the 11-nation council killed two rival resolutions calling for direct negotiations between France and Tunisia to settle their differences over the Bizerte naval base that flared into open fighting last Wednesday.

REJECT PLANS

No veto was involved in the decisions since neither of the proposals received the required seven votes.

By a vote of 4-0, the council rejected a resolution by the United Arab Republic and Liberia calling for immediate negotiations aimed at the withdrawal of all French forces from Tunisia. Seven delegations abstained.

Then by a vote of 6-0, the delegates also turned down a proposal by Britain and the United States which simply called for a negotiated settlement of differences without any mention of French withdrawals. Five countries abstained.

The action followed the council's approval at its morning session of a stop-gap resolution which simply called for a cease-

CONGRESS SLOWDOWN?

Senator Claims Doubts Held On JFK Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veteran Republican senator Saturday claimed-and a Democratic leader denied-that Congress is in a slowdown because of doubts over President Kennedy's leadership and a struggle over political patronage.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said there is some apprehension" about the administration's course in international affairs and this is inducing a wait-and-see attitude.

In addition, he said in an interview, Kennedy is holding back on judicial appointments and this is putting some Democrats in a heel-dragging mood.

VIEWS CHALLENGED

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the Senate majority leader, in a separate interview challenged both these assertions. However, Sen. Spessard Holland, D-Fla., agreed in part with Aiken.

"The administration has not settled down yet," Aiken said.

"It is attempting the role of driver rather than leadership. There is some apprehension about the grave situations in Berlin, Laos and Cuba.

"Many members of Congress of both parties believe it would be wise to remain here until there are some firm decisions."

Aiken noted that Kennedy has sent up only one nomination for the 73 additional lifetime federal judges authorized by Congress.

"Apparently these and other appointments are being held back in an effort to get legislation to the administration's liking," he said. "At the same time Democrats in Congress are holding back until they know who will get the appointments."

"This probably will be denied because nobody can prove it," Aiken added with a laugh.

Mansfield said there is no reason for Congress to slow its legislative pace or remain here because of the Berlin crisis or other tensions "because we can always be called back."

Mansfield denied that judicial or other appointments are being held back in order to bring pressure in favor of legislation still to be completed.

"All of these appointments

Texas Gives Support To South Meet

Delegation Ends Nine-State Tour On Success Note

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

A grueling tour of the South by a Louisiana - Mississippi delegation rallying conservative officials ended Saturday as the mayors of two big Texas cities endorsed the move.

Twelve mayors from the Dallas-Ft. Worth area, meeting at Dallas, voiced support of a proposal to organize conservative municipal officials at a Southwide conference in Memphis, August 11-12.

LAUDS MOVE

"It's a vast but commendable undertaking," said Mayor Earle Cabell of Dallas. "But it's refreshing to see an organization to stop handouts rather than encourage them.

Mayor John Justin Jr. of Ft. Worth said, "I would heartily endorse it. I think it's badly needed."

Cabell added, "I want to lend my personal endorsement."

Their remarks came after an explanation of the conference idea was made at the Dallas airport by Mayor W. L. Howard, Monroe, Sidney Gray, executive director of the Louisiana Municipal Association, and W. J. Caraway, executive vice - president of the Mississippi Municipal Association.

Flying home in high spirits, the delegation ended the tough spin through nine Southern states, covering 3,392 miles in five days — approximately 20 hours in the air.

"We are very much encouraged after discussing the conference with municipal officials throughout the South," Howard temporary chairman, said. "A majority of the officials we talked to voiced their favorable approval for at least trying to organize the South into a conservative, positive unit."

The delegation met with the Texas group after flying from Austin, meeting in the Texas cap-

Rider Case 'Speed-Up' Plea Fails

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals Saturday turned down a woman "Freedom Rider's" request for a expedited hearing of her habeas corpus appeal.

Elizabeth Porter Wyckoff, a 46-year-old New York free lance writer and former Greek professor, is appealing a lower federal court rejection for a writ of habeas corpus.

She contends she is illegally jailed in Mississippi because her legal rights were violated when she was arrested on a breach of peace charge.

She asked for a quick hearing because she is a short-term prisoner and may serve her full sentence before her appeal can be heard by going through regular channels.

But the appeals court, in denying an order for a speed-up appeal hearing, said she can make bond and thus gain her freedom pending her appeal.

The appeals court also noted the record does not indicate Miss Wyckoff attempted to exhaust remedies available to her in the state courts.

U.S. Judge Sidney Mize of Biloxi, in denying her writ, had pointed out she had not first gone into state court.

In addition to expediting her appeals hearing, Miss Wyckoff had asked to appeal from the original court papers rather than have a printed version made up—to save time. The court also denied this.

The decision came from Chief Appeals Judge Elbert Tuttle of Atlanta, and Judges Warren Jones of Jacksonville, Fla., and John Minor Wisdom of New Orleans. It was unanimous.

N.Y. Hottest In Four Years

NEW YORK (AP)—The hottest weather in four years sent New Yorkers flocking to beaches and parks Saturday.

The temperature soared to 97 degrees at 3:55 p.m. The previous high this year was 96 degrees June 13.

By coincidence, the last time the temperature was 97 or higher here was on July 22, 1957. A scorching 101 degrees was recorded on that day.

SCIENTIST REPORT

Humans On Earth Over Million Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—Man, or something much like him, has been on earth for 1.75 million years. That's more than twice as long as scientists have previously thought possible.

The National Geographic Society said Saturday a new atomic clock, used by the University of California, proves that "Zinjanthropus," a pre-historic man whose skull was found in East Africa, lived 1.75 million years ago.

They had spent 30 years digging and sifting before they found their first fossilized skull fragment July 17, 1959. It finally was put together from 400 pieces, and the guess was that it had once belonged to a man who had lived more than 600,000 years ago.

But two California geologists, Drs. J. F. Evernden and Carniss H. Curtis, used a new potassium-argon dating process to show that man, or a reasonable facsimile, has been kicking around far longer than anyone suspected.

Curiously, Dr. Leakey may have something even better.

He has found fossils of a man-like child, including the jaw and teeth, parts of the skull, the collarbone, parts of the hand and an entire foot.

"The child is considerably older than Zinjanthropus," Dr. Leakey has said. "How much older I cannot say at present. I can merely say it is older and quite different."

Its teeth were unlike Zinjanthropus' and its brain was a little larger, and though it lived before Zinjanthropus it seems less primitive.

Young Bank Bandit Shot By Cashier

RICHLANDS, N. C. (AP) —A baby-faced young Marine from Mississippi was shot down shortly after he robbed a branch of the First Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of $4,359 Saturday.

The youth, identified by the FBI as Pvt. Jerry L. Young, 18, of nearby Camp LeJeune, was in critical condition at the base hospital but was expected to recover.

FIRES BLAST

Young, a native of Pontotoc, Miss., was cut down by a shotgun blast fired by cashier Warren Taylor as he ran down a sidewalk toward a parking lot near the bank. The FBI said a bag containing the bank loot and a pistol was found under the youth's body.

The bandit strode into the bank shortly before the noon closing time, flashed a .22 caliber revolver and ordered Mrs. Billy Cox, a teller, to fill up a money bag.

He wore a baseball cap, black horned-rim sun glasses and adhesive tape near his eyes.

After being handed the bag full of currency, the bandit ordered Taylor, Mrs. Cox and three other bank employes to lie down on the floor. As the youth left the bank, Taylor got up and obtained a shotgun loaded with buckshot stored in a closet near the rear door. Rushing out the rear door, Taylor spotted the bandit about 75 yards away heading toward a parking lot. He fired and the youth slumped to the pavement.

Police Chief Sidney Lanier said the youth was struck several times in the back, and that he underwent successful surgery at the Naval hospital. The youth was attached to H and F Company, Second Marine Division, at the LeJeune base.

RECOUNTS EXPERIENCES

Astronaut Tells Of Space Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Astronaut Virgil I. Grissom the nation's No. 2 rocket rider, said Saturday his space ship sank Friday when a hatch blew off accidently.

The capsule sank beyond recovery in 16,800 feet of Atlantic Ocean after the emergency side exit hatch secured with 70 explosive bolts, fired apparently as the result of an unexplained malfunction.

Grissom said he had set the hatch, which operates like the canopy on a jet plane, to be fired as soon as a rescue helicopter had latched onto his space ship.

SUDDENLY BLOWS

"I was lying on my back minding my own business," he said, "when 'POW!' the next thing I knew I could see blue sky and water coming over the sill."

The 35-year-old Air Force captain, cool and fit looking, rode a rocket 303 miles southeast of here Friday at 7:20 a.m., reaching an altitude of 118 miles and a speed of 5,280 miles an hour.

Grissom thus became the second American to reach the fringes of space. His predecessor along this same general flight path was Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., who made the flight May 5.

Grissom told of his experiences at a news conference shortly after his return to this missile center from Grand Bahama Island where he had been flown from the prime recovery ship for a medical examination.

Just before Grissom rose to face questions about his flight, he was presented the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Distinguished Service Medal by NASA Administrator James Webb.

In recounting his experiences, Grissom said that after streaking through high and thin cirrus clouds he suddenly looked through his 19-inch-high "picture window"

More Showers Forecast Today

Monroe and area may be pelted by more showers today.

Weather will be warm with partly cloudy skies this morning and scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers according to the forecast.

The high's expected today to range from 88 to 92 degrees. Southern Mississippi can expect the same forecast with their temperatures expected at the same high as Louisiana.

Yesterday's high in Monroe was 91 degrees and the low was 71, according to Selman Field. Rainfall yesterday totaled 1.85 inches.

Jonesboro Wife Killed In Accident

JONESBORO (Special) — A Jonesboro couple's vacation ended in tragedy late Friday night when a woman was killed and two persons injured in a two-car collision near Brookhaven, Miss.

Investigating police said that 50-year-old Mrs. Lucius O. May was killed instantly in the collision that occurred on U.S. Highway 84 just west of Brookhaven.

Her husband, Lucius O. May, was injured and driver of the other vehicle Mrs. Clara Vick of Gilbert also suffered injuries.

Friends of the May's, who were both deaf - mutes, said they had started to Brookhaven Friday night on their vacation. They were scheduled to visit May's mother, who lives in Brookhaven.

Funeral services for Mrs. May will be held at 4 p.m. Monday at the Antioch Presbyterian Church near Quitman. Burial will be in the church cemetery under the direction of Edmonds Funeral Home of Jonesboro.

A short service will be held in Brookhaven Sunday at 10 a.m. before the body is brought to Jonesboro. It will lie in state at the residence in Jonesboro from 3 p.m. Sunday until time for funeral services Monday.

Mrs. May's only survivor other than her husband is a sister, Mrs. Thelma Cooper of Quitman.

JFK Forces To Fight For School Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration forces in the House have rebounded from the rules committee's shelving of the President's school bill and are planning an all-out fight to save it.

With opponents of the bill also stepping up their drive, the fight over federal aid to education has shifted from the ideological battleground to the hard infighting of practical politics.

CONTROL LEVERS

The new terrain should favor the administration and the Democratic leaders in Congress, with their control of the political levers. Whether it will depends largely on Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, D-Tex.

Rayburn has been less than enthusiastic about the provision for paying teachers' salaries out of the $2.5 billion in federal grants called for in the administration bill. The attempt to woo Catholic support for the measure by adding parochial school loans to a companion bill further dimmed his ardor.

Rayburn's role is now decisive because the rules committee voted 8 to 7 to table both the public school and the parochial school bills, blocking normal channels for moving the bill to the floor. The tricky routes now available can be traveled only with vigorous leadership.

There also is a possibility that a revised bill will be drafted and another try made for rules committee approval. This, too, would require the fullest cooperation from Rayburn.

Republican Ouster Bid Is Defeated

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—George W. Reese of New Orleans kept his job as Republican National Committeeman Saturday when an ouster move failed at the Republican State Central Committee meeting.

The vote to keep Reese was 52-43. Only 37 of the 104 committeemen were present. Another 64 were represented through proxies held mostly by N. Bryant James of Farmerville, Tom Stagg and Leroy Smallenberger, both of Shreveport, and Horace Rickey Jr., of Lafayette, the committee secretary.

The GOP elected Smallenberger, an attorney, to succeed James who retired after 25 years as committee chairman. Smallenberger received 56 votes to 41 for Stagg, the only other candidate.

James and Stagg backed the attempt to oust Reese. E. Ross Buckley of New Orleans made the motion to fire Reese, saying "it serves the pleasure of the committee to do so."

Reese said his opponents had

OWES INCOME TAXES

Rep. Alger Facing Federal Tax Liens

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—U.S. Rep. Bruce Alger, R-Tex., is behind in his income tax and the federal government has authorized liens to seize his personal property to collect $814.26 owed by him.

At the same time, foreclosure notice on Alger's Dallas home, valued at $28,000, has been posted by the mortgage holder who says Texas' only Republican representative has defaulted in his payments.

The Dallas Times Herald said Saturday it was Alger's former wife, Lucille Alger, and her attorney, Clayton Fowler, who made known that the congressman owed the back income taxes.

Alger, contacted in Washington by the Times Herald, confirmed that foreclosure proceedings have been started against his home and that he owed the back income tax.

Mrs. Alger produced a warning letter from the Internal Revenue Service addressed to both her and the congressman that income taxes amounting to $800.64 plus interest of $13.62 for a total of $814.26 is owed for 1960.

"It upsets me to be listed in the tax action," Mrs. Alger said, "because I haven't shared in Bruce's income for two years."

Then she added, "But that's just like Bruce. He doesn't believe in taxes anyway."

Alger said that on the advice of his attorney he had made no payments on the house in recent months and had put off final payment on his income tax.

As to the federal taxes, Alger said, "The tax people know they will get their money. A congressman has many expenses. They know they will get their money."

Castro Vetoes U.S. Plans On Refugee Airlift

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Cuban government Saturday ordered limitation on round-trip flights between Havana and Miami to two a day.

The order threw a monkey wrench into the State Department's program to bring 20,000 Cuban refugees to this country in three weeks.

The Havana order came through to Pan American World Airways as its second plane, chartered by the State Department, was flying to Havana.

The empty plane, with a capacity of more than 100 passengers, was told by radio to return to Miami without landing at Rancho Boyeros Airport in Havana.

The State Department had announced only Friday it would finance 10 trips daily of Cubans desiring to leave the land of Prime Minister Fidel Castro for refuge in the United States. Under the plan, this country would have been able to bring in 1,250 Cubans daily.

must be carefully investigated and that takes time," he said.

Mansfield conceded that much legislation remains to be acted upon but also pointed out that almost no bills are waiting on the Senate calendar.

Of more than a dozen annual appropriations bills which Congress must consider each year, only one so far has reached the White House.

The new foreign aid program, general farm legislation, federal aid to education and several other matters are caught up in the legislative machinery.

fire in Tunisia without dealing with subsequent steps. This was approved 10-0 with France not participating.

Both the French and Tunisian governments responded to the call by ordering their troops to halt military operations in the Bizerte area.

U.S. Delegate Charles W. Yost expressed regret that the council had not been able to go beyond the simple cease-fire resolution. He declared, however, that this proposal still was valid including its provision calling for withdrawal of all forces in Tunisia to the positions they occupied before the fighting began.

Yost urged the council to watch the situation closely and be ready to resume debate if developments warrant new action.

The Soviet Union was one of the four voting for the U.A.R.-Liberian resolution, along with its two sponsors and Ceylon. The six voting for the U.S.-British proposal were Chile, China, Ecuador, Turkey and the sponsors.

Tunisia, which is not a member of the council, took part in the sessions without a vote.

Tunisian Delegate Mongi Slim asked the council to be ready to meet next week if he asked for further action. He said French attacks continued long after the French cease-fire order was announced.

France's Armand Berard said he had no knowledge of any such incidents.

It appeared that the cease-fire resolution may have averted for the present a threat by Tunisia and the Asian-African countries to seek an emergency meeting of the 99-nation General Assembly to deal with the situation.

Council President Leopoldo Benites of Ecuador said he did not consider that the council had finished with the French-Tunisian dispute. He said he was prepared to call a new meeting if any member asked for one.

The council adjourned at 7:26 p.m.

ucation and Labor Committee who with other sponsors of the bill has been working closely with the White House on the route to be followed, will confer with Rayburn early next week on strategy.

While the Democrats plot their course, Republicans are mounting a heavy attack designed to force separation from the general school bill of a provision to continue aid to school districts with heavy federally connected populations.

Known as the impacted areas program, it has been in effect for years but expired June 30. It extends aid to 315 of the 437 congressional districts—there is $310 million for them in the present bill—and Democratic strategists are determined to keep it part of the general bill to win support for the over-all package.

Twelve house Republicans Saturday joined in denouncing such strategy as "an auction block approach" which they said has "forfeited the respect of those genuinely concerned about improving the quality of American education."

The statement, issued by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., said President Kennedy and the Democratic leadership "must bear major responsibility for jeopardizing important elements of our nation's education capability."

In another statement the Republican members of the House Education Committee accused Kennedy and his House forces of trying "to blackjack members of Congress into voting for the general education bill."

The administration bill, they argue, would merely extend the same sort of aid to the nation at large and would have the effect of raising the 5 per cent federal contribution to about 10 per cent.

Texas Gives Support To South Meet

ital with Stephen Matthews, executive director of the Texas Municipal League.

Matthews said only the league board could act on the matter, but, in contrast to the league directors of Tennessee and Alabama, he did not voice opposition.

Herbert Bingham, executive director of the Tennessee Municipal League, and Ed Reid, executive director of the Alabama Municipal League, raised objections at meetings with the delegation.

Matthews produced a telegram from league president Mayor James H. McCrocklin of Kingsville, Texas that said, "Each city can act as it desires, but the league itself can take no action until the board meets."

"Of course we ran into opposition, but that was to be expected," Howard said.

With the delegation advocating an organization to cut - off federal aid in some areas, Bingham and Reid supported federal aid in their talks with the group.

Despite their objections, support in Tennessee and Alabama was voiced by several municipal officials, including Mayor Henry Loeb of Memphis and Mayor Earl James of Montgomery.

"The job at hand now is to push on toward a successful organizational meeting at Memphis," Howard said. "Frankly, this will be a big job. But it would be lessened if the conservative-thinking people, not only of the South but in all parts of the nation, would support the move."

He added, "We seek the support of each and every conservative American."

Cabell suggested that municipal officials in the Mid Western state may want to join the organization.

Explaining that plans for the organization would be general until the Memphis conference, Gray said corrective legislation may be included in the association's policy.

The Dallas meeting was the last on the tour that began Tuesday, including conferences at Little Rock, Memphis, Union City, Tenn., Columbia, S.C., Atlanta, Ga., Tallahassee, Fla., Montgomery, Ala. and Austin.

Engine trouble delayed the delegation between Union City and Richmond, Va., as a five - man committee of Virginia officials waited for over two hours, then dispersed.

North Carolina was the only state that showed no interest in the conference, already endorsed by the Louisiana Municipal Association and the Mississippi Municipal Association.

The 1961 entourage will leave New York by air on Thursday, Aug. 10, and arrive back there on Sunday, Aug. 27.

With a touch of awe, the 5-foot-7 Grissom told of the view from that window which he said "was a keyhole to me.

"The earth was very bright. There was a band around the earth which changed from light blue to dark blue then into black."

At this point on his flight, Grissom said, the earth's horizon was an estimated 600 miles away.

In discussing the loss of his $5-million, instrument-laden capsule, Grissom told of those final few seconds aboard before his precious Liberty Bell 7 went down.

"After I got down, I took off my helmet and unstrapped myself. I disconnected my helmet and rolled up my neck band and that was the best thing I did all day."

Grissom said he knew helicopters were on the way to pick him up and as soon as he established voice contact with them, he said he wanted to stay aboard "to make a switch chart;" that is, to establish the position of the switches at landing.

"After I finished the switch chart, I told the helicopters I was ready when they were ready to come. I took off the cover of the detonator (to the 70 explosive bolts fastening the hatch) and tossed it at my feet and removed the safety pin."

Then the hatch blew off.

Grissom said he could remember grabbing the instrument panel preparatory to making an emergency departure, but didn't actually recall swinging through the hatch into the sea.

Grissom said he saw the helicopter trying to latch onto the rapidly filling capsule and swam toward it with the idea that he might help. Meantime, the "rotor wash" from the hovering helicopter blew him away slightly.

At one point, Grissom said, he thought the helicopter had a firm line on the capsule, now waterlogged.

"I thought it was in good shape," he added.

At this point, Grissom recounted, he was having his own rescue troubles. With one chopper trying to save the capsule while the other was seeking to rescue him, the two aircraft were getting in each other's way.

Both had to avoid being caught in the other's downward rotor wash, that is downward drafts caused by the beating blades.

With skillful maneuvering, the helicopter which picked him up finally lowered the "horse collar" a lift sling, "and from then on everything was good."

Among his other problems as he floated in the ocean, Grissom revealed, was a personal sinking feeling.

"I had neglected to close a port in the suit, and I was getting lower and lower. It was rather hard to stay afloat.'

Asked at one point if he had been frightened at any time on the space flight, Grissom replied with a grin: "I was scared."

When his questioner wanted to know if this was a general statement or referred to a specific moment, Grissom replied: "I guess it was just a general statement."

In a general vein, Grissom was asked whether his flight was as interesting as Shepard said his was. "It certainly was," he replied, "I'd recommend the trip to anyone."

Grissom, clad in a dark blue suit, white shirt and black tie, opened the news conference in the auditorium of a motel, with a chronological account of the 16-minute rush into space atop a Redstone rocket.

"First you have noise and the G's (the forces of gravity) begin to build up and then there is vibration at 36,000 feet when you pass Mach 1 (the speed of sound)." Grissom said the vibrations he underwent were "not nearly as bad as Al (Shepard) had."

This, Grissom explained, was due to the fact that the capsule had been modified and streamlined where it hooked onto the Redstone booster.

"This is one problem," Grissom continued, "I feel we have licked."

At this point on his flight, the astronaut went on, "there was nothing but blue sky rapidly changing from blue to pitch black. As soon as it turned black, there was a star right in the middle of my window—and I knew right then I lost two steak dinners. Probably have to pay off tonight."

Grissom had bet Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., that an astronaut would not be able to see stars in flight. Glenn paid off when Shepard failed to report any.

So Grissom doubled the bet on his flight. In brief, Grissom bet he would not see a star. And he did, though he saw only one.

Only minutes afterwards, Grissom reported, he heard the rocket fired which hurled the escape tower. The tower was thrown to the right of his position.

"It was really comforting," Grissom said, "because this was the first indication the flight was going good. You have to be sure the rocket leaves for the parachutes are located in a compartment right under it."

The poised young astronaut said that at one point the sun shone so brightly that he was afraid it was going to blind him.

The shaft of light brushed across the lower edge of his suit but never reached his face though reflection of a piece of aluminum at the base of the window was a problem.

One impression he had during the flight was an odd one, even for an astronaut.

"I had the distinct feeling," he said, "I was riding backwards. I can't define it. When the capsule had changed direction, I felt I was going forward. I can't explain it to myself yet."

At the time he had this feeling, Grissom was weightless in space.

Right after the attitude control jets operated, Grissom said he had his only good view of the ground.

"I could see the Cape right in front and clear as a bell. It didn't seem I was a hundred miles high. It was a lot clearer than I thought it should be."

As he re-entered the atmosphere, Grissom said the flight was smooth with only a gradual increase in the forces of gravity until they reached 10.2 times his own weight.

Near the end of his questioning, Grissom was asked when he expected to return to work: "Tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock," he said.

Grissom planned to spend a quiet evening with his wife and a few friends Saturday night.

House Burns

An old deserted house near Logtown Community about 10 miles south of the Monroe city limits burned down early Saturday morning.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined by Monroe firemen who responded to the call. They were alerted by Henry Hathorn, operator of a night patrol, who makes nightly inspection of certain buildings in a nearby subdivision.

Mrs. Bonnie H. McDaniel, associate home demonstration agent and A. M. Raley, associate county agent will supervise the young people. P. H. Carter will serve as local leader.

Both Sides May Ignore Request For Withdrawal

A medical team headed by an International Red Cross representative prepared to move into the battle zone.

Officials for a while Saturday night feared a new incident in the conflict when a brief burst of machine-gun fire was heard near the Tunis civilian airport.

The semiofficial Tunisian News Agency said a plne of the U.S. World War II Corsair type—which the French air force uses—had strafed a military air installation near the field, about five miles from the city. Apparently it caused no injuries or damage.

Now that a cease-fire has been declared, neither the French nor the Tunisian government has made clear just what it intends to do.

President Habib Bourguiba's Tunisian government indicated it is willing to talk things over with the French by saying its troops will hold their present positions pending what it called on accord.

In orders from Paris, Vice Adm Maurice Amman, French commander in Bizerte, was instructed to offer to meet local Tunisian authorities to discuss a cease-fire.

Amman was not authorized to negotiate with Bourguiba, who earlier called on his army and people to fight until the French agree to negotiate withdrawal.

Widow Of Late Author Leaves For Cuba Visit

KETCHUM, Idaho (AP)—Mary Hemingway, widow of author Ernest Hemingway, has left for Cuba, where she said she will meet with government officials to discuss the handling of Hemingway property.

There have been reports the Cuban government planned to turn the Hemingway villa, Finca Vigia, near San Francisco de Paula, into a national shrine.

Mrs. Hemingway said in an interview shortly after her husband's death, that they considered Cuba their permanent home. There was no indication if she planned to obtain the manuscript of an unpublished novel which she confirmed Hemingway had written and left in a Cuban bank vault.

Mrs. Hemingway said she planned to return to Idaho in a week or 10 days. She traveled by air.

She sent word to news sources that she was making the trip. The note was delivered after she left, and details of her travel plans were not known.

James' candidate, George Snellings of Monroe, did not speak.

In a keynote address to the committee, Stagg earlier urged the Republicans to work harder to make Louisiana a two-party state.

Stagg said that on the state level, they should be told of the $30 million deficit under the Democratic administration of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis. He also said that Davis' action in riding a horse into the governor's office was a "travesty."

State Awards Franklin Parish Road Contract

Louisiana Highway Director Ray W. Burgess announced today that a contract for $187,934 has been awarded to the Sicily Island Gravel Co. of Sicily Island for a 5.1-mile road improvement on the Metropolis - Gilbert highway (State Route 876) in Franklin parish.

The director said the project begins at the junction of State Routes 876 and 875 at Metropolis, then proceeds north along SR-876 a distance of 5.1 miles to the junction with State Route 128 approximately 2.6 miles southwest of Gilbert.

He said work is scheduled to begin immediately on grading, drainage structures, aggregate type base course and bituminous surface treatment 20 feet wide.

Burgess added that the contractor will be required to provide for and maintain through and local traffic at all times during the specified contrast construction time of 12 months. Project engineer is H. E. Russell of Winnsboro.

3,392 MILES IN 5 DAYS

Sidelights Of Tour In Southern States

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Staff writer Sam Hanna traveled with the Louisiaan-Mississippi delegation through the South this week on a trip to gain support for the organization of Southern municipal officials.)

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

A 3,392-mile tour, made in five days, of the South by a Louisiana-Mississippi party had its ups and downs this week.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Mayor Howell Price of West Memphis was present for a meeting with the delegation. Price is a native of Winnsboro, but he said he had been away from Franklin Parish for almost 30 years.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Mayor Henry Loeb is the "new-look" in Memphis. And he's surprisingly young — about 38 or maybe 40. One of the Memphis commissioners is a former major league baseball player, Jimmy Moore. Street Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez, a native of Tennessee, was at home in Memphis with several old friends. An elderly bellhop had trouble pronouncing Rodriguez. The street commissioner to him was "Mr. Ramridder."

UNION CITY, Tenn. — This is an area with a payroll and agriculture. It's a big hog - raising section of Tennessee that has had a rainy season. The duck hunting is good, but the deer hunting is not so hot.

RICHMOND, Va. — Virginia accents were noticeable; the countryside was pretty and the temperature was comfortable. The airport was integrated.

COLUMBIA, S.C. — This is an extremely pretty town of slightly less than 100,000 persons. The people are looking forward to LSU's visit there next fall. Their accents are more Southern than the people of North Louisiana. The South Carolina people also are unhappy with Gov. Fritz Hollings for supporting President Kennedy.

ATLANTA, Ga. — A sprawling, new air terminal is a first-class facility. Georgia, according to the Constitution, Atlanta newspaper, is competing with Louisiana for a multi-million dollar industry. A new political day is seen on the horizon here.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — This North Florida town, about the same size as Monroe, also sports a new airport and a fine one too. The flat country around Tallahassee, which is close to the Georgia line, is ideal for doves, quail and rattlesnakes.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Ed Reed, the executive director of the Alabama Municipal League who gave the delegation its stiffest opposition, is a former newspaper reporter from Monroe. He worked on the News-Star and Morning World when sports editor Paul Martin was a copyboy.

AUSTIN, Tex. — Another new airport. Austin is close to 200,000 in population. The Texas Legislature is in session there, the big issue being a two-cent sales tax to overcome a state deficit of $160-million. The Texas budget is $2½-billion.

SIDEBARS — Eugene Garvin of Fleeman Flying Service in Monroe piloted the party through perfect flying weather, except for the hop from Dallas to Monroe . . . . South Carolina is very much Southern, but the people there say North Carolina has gone Yankee . . . . because of Hodges . . . W. J. Caraway holds a unique position in Mississippi . . . . he's a state senator and also serves as executive vice - president of the Mississippi Municipal Association . . . . Caraway is also a history student who says the 23 great civilizations of the world have gone from bondage to bondage . . . . Sidney Gray has mixed emotions . . . . last month he was the mayor of Lake Charles . . . . this month, after not seeking re-election, he is the executive director of the Louisiana Municipal Association and a resident of Baton Rouge.

Dairy Grades In Union Are Made Public

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Grades of dairies in Union Parish have been announced by Richard Woolerson, sanitarian, Union Parish Health Unit, who conducts periodic checks of such establishments under the state sanitation law.

There are six dairies in the parish that are producing Grade "A" raw milk for pasteurization. The grades have been determined by the Health Department in accordance with the grade specifications as set forth in the State Sanitary Code.

Expect Probe By Grand Jury

SICILY ISLAND (Special) — An attempted murder charge leveled against a 20-year-old Negro is expected to be brought before the Grand Jury in October.

The charge was filed in District Court at Harrisonburg after Cleveland Smith of Sicily Island shot and seriously wounded another man at Sicily Island, Sheriff George McGee said.

Mail Service Begins In Area

Vidalia Area On The Move

VIDALIA (Special) — Faith in the advancement of the Vidalia-Ferriday - Natchez, Miss., area was expressed here this week as Vidalia itself anounced progress on several projects.

Vidalia, parish seat of Concordia Parish, is located on the Mississippi River next door to Natchez, Miss., and is one of the fastest growing northeast Louisiana towns.

John J. Nosser, Natchez businessman, discussed the economic conditions of this area, noting progress made during the past ten years, in a talk to the Lions Club here this week.

He painted a bright picture for the future growth and development of the area.

As if to tie in with the talk, these developments in Vidalia were disclosed:

Extension of Vidalia's city limits to include the new Vidalia High School, now under construction west of the old town limits, has been made.

Mayor Sidney A. Murray Jr., said the area containing the new high school and other nearby areas have been incorporated. The new school is expected to be ready for use by fall, according to Hugh A. Bateman, parish superintendent of education.

Patterson and Edmondson Construction Co., of Houma, which has been awarded a contract for extension of water mains which will afford fire protection for all sections of Vidalia, will soon move in crews for the work.

Murray said the crews were expected here by Aug. 1, and that construction is scheduled to get underway shortly after that date.

Murray said he delivered a $550,000 bond issue which was voted last December.

Extension of gas and electric facilities for the town also will be afforded.

According to Murray, fire protection will be extended to Gillespie Heights, Lattimore Acres, Lola Ann Land, Smith Subdivision No. 1 and 2, Dale Acres, the New Murray Addition, and the area below the Missouri - Pacific Railroad depot.

The mayor said drainage improvement is underway in cooperation with the Concordia Parish Police Jury.

"Drainage improvement will be made in all areas where needed, Murray said.

He said a report from engineers had been received after a survey of sections where work was needed was made.

"New equipment to do the necessary work has been purchased," the mayor said, and added that machinery should be received within two weeks.

"Then we plan to move right ahead in all areas where work is needed," he added.

Preliminary plans for work in the business section in connection with four-laning Vidalia-Ferriday highway have been completed.

Preliminary work will be done by the Louisiana Highway Department. Murray said he intended to confer with Vidalia merchants and business men along the proposed route. Work on the project is expected to get underway with a November target date, but actual work may not begin until January.

The major also reported that expansion of the sewerage system in Vidalia is scheduled to get underway soon. A preliminary estimate for the work has been presented to the mayor and board of aldermen.

"Less than 50 per cent of the town now has sewerage," the mapor said, adding that according to present plans, the service will be extended to all sections of Vidalia.

Nosser, owner of several supermarkets and stores in Natchez, said he planned in the future to open a place of business in Vidalia. He said he had purchased land on which to build a supermarket similar to the ones he operates in Natchez.

"I am sold on the growth of Vidalia and I believe in its future enough to invest my money here," he said.

The Natchez businessman said the economic prosperity of Natchez and the adjoining section of north Louisiana are very closely entwined.

He urged the people of Vidalia to form a Chamber of Commerce or some like organization in the community to wage a progressive battle to secure new industries for the area.

Last Student Dance Set At Northeast

King Neptune's Dance, the last student dance of the summer session at Northeast Louisiana State College, will be held Thursday night, July 27, from 8-11 in the student center.

With the theme showing life beneath the sea and featuring Monroe's versatile popular band The Dukes, all Northeast students and their guests and feaculty members are invited.

The dance will be semi-formal and is sponsored by the Student Council, according to Kirby Jane Mooney, senior representative in charge of arrangements.

Miss Mooney and Pansy Riser, the junior representative, will be in charge of the night's program, Dr. Fred J. Vogel, dean of student services, announced. Miss Mooney also is vocalist for The Dukes.

AT LITTLE THEATRE

Children Onstage For 'King Midas'

The "little people" have taken over at Strauss Playhouse for a four - day run of "King Midas and the Golden Touch." This piece of stage fare by Charlotte Chorpenning does not bear the stigma of "adult theatre."

Fully half the cast, more than half the lines and an even 50 per cent of the opening night audience were children. This presented a challenge to George Brian who took on the job of directing Monroe's first young peoples' theatre. The challenge paid dividends. "King Midas" held the kids' attention better than an equal amount of "The Three Stooges" could have.

The Little Theatre of Monroe and Northeast State College hatched the idea of making use of the new theatre on Lamy Lane for several productions during the summer season. "King Midas" was selected as a venture into children's theatre.

Organized recreational program during the summer months usually center about sports — baseball, swimming, camping and the like. If one or two theatre projects can be worked out, this will add balance to the picture.

Actual participation in such a production is not limited to the relatively small number of parts in the cast. "King Midas" had at least 25 backstage workers. Also there is the audience. With the language of the "adult theatre" now hitting the depths of vulgarity, the only hope for purification may be a new generation exposed to clean fare.

"King Midas" scored a "plus" on all these points. Besides giving Northeast students, Forest Blount, Murray Burfford and W. J. Haddad a workout in classic theatre, there were the children: Susan Martin, Marion Cash, Kathy Lawn and Elizabeth Ann Brown. Lera Lentz who took the part of Cybele, a marble statue, reflected the high degree of stagecraft used in the production. Her costume, complexion and composure were "rock steady." She must have breathed heavily between the acts.

Mrs. James Hull Miller, director of children's theatre at Shreveport's Marjorie Lyons Playhouse, will speak to Monroyans interested in that field at the local Little Theatre at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

There are two more performances of "King Midas" scheduled: a matinee at 2 p.m. today and an evening performance tomorrow at 7:30.

NEW ACCOMPLISHMENTS

ROME (AP)—Premier Amintore Fanfani accomplished something Saturday he has failed to do twice before: Stay in office a year. The first time he got the job, in 1954, he lasted only 21 days. The second time, four years later, he held office seven months. Partisans and opponents alike say he has learned the trick of making more friends and fewer enemies.

After the seizure, French destroyer escorts and tank landing ships sailed down the canal without incident to join other forces at the big base on the inner bay. Shortly after the canal banks were secured, the French government ordered its troops to cease military operations around Bizerte. (AP Wirephoto Map)

IN OFFICIAL WASHINGTON

Tunisia Turmoil Causes Anxiety

WASHINGTON (AP)—The unexpected outbreak of fighting between France and Tunisia last week caused deep anxiety in official Washington for two reasons.

It puts the United States in the middle of a violent, highly emotional dispute between two countries with which it is friendly. Even more importantly it threatens President Kennedy's proposals for strengthening North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe to deal with the Berlin crisis.

Prolonged turmoil in the Tunisian-Algerian area of North Africa could make it impossible for French President Charles de Gaulle to pull some French divisions out of North Africa. He has announced that two would be returned to Europe.

France and West Germany hold the key to the NATO buildup phase of Kennedy's Berlin crisis plan.

In the case of West Germany the administration is reported to be urging the government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to speed up organization of its military force, a major goal of which is a 12-division army.

The Kennedy plan relies heavily on the success of De Gaulle's efforts to negotiate successfully with the Algerian rebels for a settlement of the long conflict which has tied up half a million French troops.

The eruption of fighting at Bizerte clearly endangers the planned French role in the buildup. It brought intense diplomatic efforts on the part of the United States to stop the fighting and restore negotiations on the issue of French bases in Tunisia.

The original U.S. preference Friday morning was for peacemaking efforts outside the United Nations, but this aim was frustrated by the decision of Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba to throw the issue into the U. N. Security Council.

Washington officials were fearful this would bring debate which the Soviet Union would exploit to prolong the conflict.

The U. S. leaders were clearly pleased therefore with the Security Council's action Saturday in voting a resolution calling for an immediate cease-fire and a return to peaceful efforts to settle the conflict.

BURST OF PATRIOTISM

Sales Of 50-Star U.S. Flags Brisk

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a lot of flag waving apparently going on these days in the United States.

Is the new burst of patriotism spurred by the Berlin crisis, the man in space launchings, the threats by Khrushchev?

The men who make the U.S. flags say all these factors may very well enter into it but they're not sure. On one thing, though, they are certain:

Ever since Hawaii added the 50th star on July 4, 1960, American flags have been selling like hotcakes.

"Ever since the 50-star design became official sales have been booming," said William C. Dwiggins, sales manager for Annin & Co., one of the largest flag manufacturers.

"There have been a tremendous number of successful drives by civic groups to get the public to recognize the new states by buying new flags," he added.

The flagmakers feel they are due a couple of good years because of the rough time they experienced over the short-lived 49-star flag.

The 49-star design became official on July 4, 1959 following the admission of Alaska to the Union. But six weeks later Hawaii was officially admitted, paving the way for the 50-star design. The 48-star Old Glory had been unchanged since 1912.

Eldest Daughter Of Emperor Dies

TOKYO (AP)—Emperor Hirohito's eldest daughter, Mrs. Shigeko Higashikuni died Saturday after a nine-month illness, the imperial household agency announced.

The agency said former Princess Teru, 35, had been suffering from adhesion of the colon and abscess of the abdominal wall since last November.

Emperor Hirohito, Empress Nagako, Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko, Teru's husband Morihiro Higashikuni and their five children were at the bedside when she died.

'Fair' Peach Year In Area Reported

RUSTON (Special) — Ruston's peach growers had a "fair" year, a survey of growers at the end of the picking season revealed.

Doris Sumrall at Sumrall's Orchards in Ruston said they would continue picking until Tuesday, but that they were only getting 40 or 50 boxes of late Elberta peaches per day now from the 300-acre orchid.

The pickers have been winding up their job by 10:30 or 11 a.m. and the fruit is being sold at the shed, she said.

"We had a fair season," Doris said. "We would have done better without so much rain."

She said that the few peaches that they are gathering now have an improved flavor over those picked earlier.

Generally speaking, Sumrall's and J. E. Mitcham, another Ruston Grower, both indicated that the north Louisiana peaches lacked the usual flavor this year as a result of heavy and frequent rains during the ripening period.

"We are all wound up and came out better than we thought we were going to," Mitcham said. "Everything would have worked out all right if it hadn't been for the weather."

Mitcham wound up his picking about a week ago, the earliest he has ever completed his peach harvest.

"We didn't have the quality there this year," he commented. "The taste never did develop."

The large peaches that grew this year as a result of the rains were instrumental in helping Mitcham, whose orchard was the worst hit by weather in the parish, to recover.

"I got a big price for those big peaches late in the season and saved my neck," he said.

Dennis Owens at Hico plans to finish up his harvesting on Monday, and said that he had had a "pretty good season, considering the ups and downs."

He said his season was as good as last year's was. He commented that the size was larger and pointed out, as did other growers, that peaches that get a lot of water are not as sweet.

Announcement Of Road Work In Area Made

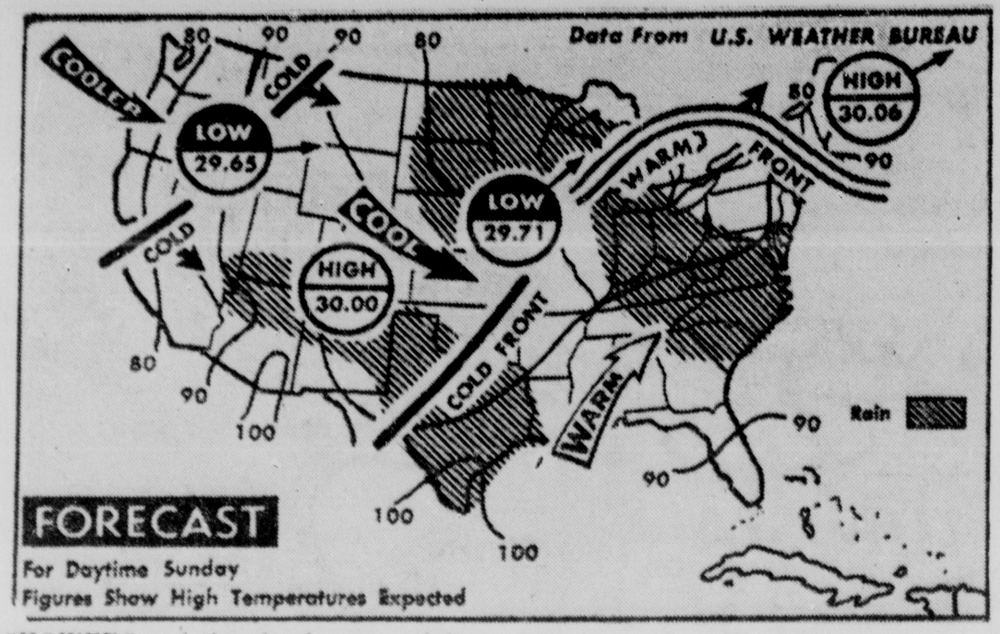
BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana Highway Director Ray W. Burgess announced Saturday that a contract for $187,934 has been awarded to the Sicily Island Gravel Co. of Sicily Island for a 5.1-mile road improvement on the Metropolis - Gilbert highway (State Route 876) in Franklin Parish.

The director said the project begins at the junction of State Routes 876 and 875 at Metropolis, then proceed north along SR-876 a distance of 5.1 miles to the junction with State Route 128 approximately 2.6 miles southwest of Gilbert.

He said work is scheduled to begin immediately on grading, drainage structures, aggregate type base course and bituminous surface treatment 20 feet wide.

Burgess added that the contractor will be required to provide for and maintain through and local traffic at all times during the secific contract construction time of 12 months.

Project engineer is H. E. Russell of Winnsboro.



SHOWERS and thundershower activity on Sunday should extend through the Plains and the Great Lakes eastward into the Ohio and Tennessee valleys and portions of the southern states. Shower activity also is expected in the southern Plateau region. Warmer temperatures will dominate the eastern portion of the country from the Mississippi valley to the Atlantic coast. It will be cooler in the Pacific northwest and parts of northern New England. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Negro Woman Almost Scalped In Car Mishap

A Negro woman almost got an Indian styled haircut yesterday morning when she fell out of an overturning car on her head on the Outlet Road.

Monroe police said that Alice Marbley, 38, of 3902½ Segrest Mercy St., Monroe, was hospitalized at Conway Memorial hospital with a head injury. Sources said her scalp was peeled back and partly ripped off in one place when she fell from her car, hitting a railroad cross tie that was ting a railroad cross tie that was stretched across the ditch.

The 4 a.m. accident took place at the intersection of Outlet Road and Adams Drive when her northbound car went into a ditch on the right side of the road, hit the ditch bank and overturned. She fell out of the door of the car as it overturned, according to officers.

Police said she at first told them she was cut on the head with a bottle, but later admitted falling out of the car when it was found down the street from where the accident occurred. Someone had moved the car while she was being taken to the hospital.

Officers said a hit-and-run accident was reported only 10 minutes before the woman's car overturned. A car belonging to Jonathan Jackson of 902 S. 18th St. was struck as it was parked on 18th Street at 3:50 a.m.

Three Burglary Counts Filed

Three charges of burglary have been lodged against a 24-year-old Monroe Negro after confessions were obtained by Monroe police yesterday.

Nathaniel James Smith, Negro of 836 Beverly St., Monroe, was arrested Friday and gave police statements yesterday. Two charges have been filed by city police and one by the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's department.

Police said yesterdya Smith confessed to the May 13 burglary of a truck belonging to Grayson's Television Shop at 102 South Second St., in which a case of television tubes were taken. The tubes, valued at $400, were all recovered.

He was reported to have also admitted to the burglary July 3 of Fleeman's Flying Service at Selman Field when the candy, soft drink and cigarette machines were broken into and money taken.

Deputies from the sheriff's department are charging him with the June burglary of a service station at 2000 Texas Avenue. Two tires were taken and the drink machines were pried open.

Crop Damage Report Buoys Grain Mart

CHICAGO (AP) — Weather and crop development became the major consideration last week in grain futures dealings on the Board of Trade, but expiration of July contracts provided the only excitement.

Word that the wheat crop in the northern Great Plains and Canada was too damaged to be benefited much by a belated rainfall imparted a good deal of strength to the market. Apparently those reports also stiffened determination among many growers in the central Great Plains and the soft red wheat area east of the Mississippi River to withhold their crops from the market.

Reports persisted throughout the week that very little new wheat was moving into commercial positions. Offerings were described as so meager that milling interests, usually heavy buyers at harvest time, were deferring purchases as much as possibly in the belief prices may become more attractive later. Their buying, advices said, was limited only to immediate needs, although they usually make commitments several months ahead. However, export business maintained a good volume.

At the end of the week, wheat was 2⅜-3¾ cents a bushel higher, September $1.96½-¼; corn 1⅜-2⅛ lower, September $1.15⅛-15; oats ⅛-¾ lower, September 72 cents; rye 2¾ lower to ½ higher, September $1.27-27¼; soybeans ½-⅞ higher, September $2.51½-¼.

In the windup of trading in July contracts, at least a few short interests scrambled hard too even up their positions in soybeans. The delivery ended on a broad spread, ranging from slightly lower to six cents higher. Dealers said this indicated the undesirability of accepting ownership of the commodity in view of the outlook for a small carryover instead of a tight supply, as had been expected until the last few weeks.

It ended what one broker called one of the most exciting periods on the Board of Trade in its history. Speculation had, for the first time in several years, free market movement without the threat of government selling to hold prices down. During the six months of that unrestricted trade, the market moved up more than $1 a bushel before starting a long retreat.

At the end of the week, a bearish crop report by Quaker Oats Co. undoubtedly imparted a good deal of weakness to corn and soybeans, now trading in the new crop months.

DR. HOWARD W. BENNETT, vice president of the National Education Program at Harding College in Searcy, Ark., who will be featured speaker August 4 at the West Monroe Freedom Forum. A top executive with the General Electric Corporation for more than 30 years, he was widely known before his retirement as the "dean of economic education." Sponsored by the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce and the City's Junior Chamber of Commerce, the program is slated to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of West Monroe High School and will include numerous other features to help combat communism.

Receipts From Benefit Show Are Announced

FERRIDAY (Special) — Concordia Parish and Adams County, Miss., receipts totaled $3,127.23 from a benefit for the Retarded Children's Association, R. M. Wood told the Concordia Association in a meeting at the Ferriday Elementary School cafeteria.

Wood, chairman of a committee of the Loyal Order of the Moose which cooperated with the Natcehz Horseman's Club for the benefit, said expenses totaled $1,068.7.

The Adams County Retarded Children received $1,637.68 and the Concordia group received $420.53 as specified in the agreement by which profits from amount of ticket sales in each community was used as basis for benefits.

Interest in the project has gained momentum in this community, according to Mrs. James O. Tucker, secretary of the association here.

Rev. Clarence Shaffner, pastor of the Church of God, discussed committees and their functions.

TAKE TUNISIAN SIDE

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban Workers Confederation took Tunisia's side Saturday in the French-Tunisian conflict over Bizerte. The confederation cabled President Charles de Gaulle a protest against what it called criminal aggression by France and sent a message of support to Tunisian President Habib Bourguina.

Miller Urges Grass Roots GOP Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP)—GOP National Chairman William E. Miller said Saturday the Republican party needs grass root organization and not new policies and platforms to win elections.

Miller rejected contentions that the Republicans lost the 1960 presidential election because they didn't promise enough to the voters. He was interviewed by Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, on a radio-television program taped for Iowa stations.

"It must be remembered that our party received almost 50 per cent of the vote cast in 1960 and we made gains in the House and gains in the Senate and we made gains in the governors' races," the chairman said.

"We think that the people in the last election did not repudiate our policies or our principles or our ideals or our aims. We feel simply it was a lack of organization structure and a lack of industry and effort at the grass-roots level. This we intend to correct."

As a part of this effort, Miller said he is having weekly meetings with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the Republican senatorial Campaign Committee, and Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., chairman of the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee.

FARES BETTER IN SENATE

Kennedy Takes House Drubbing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy took a legislative drubbing from the House but fared better in the Senate the past week as he ended his first six months in office.

Four of his big congressional proposals were mangled, if not worse, by the House of Representatives or its committees.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, however, gave Kennedy's foreign aid program a major shove forward.

The administration's misfortunes were all the more conspicuous because the President has been enjoying a pretty high legislative batting average thus far.

Setting the pace for the legislative debacle ws the House Rules Committee, which the President helped enlarge earlier in the year to smooth the path of his congressional program. The "packing," howver, apparently had no effect on this week's decisions.

The committee tabled three school bills, including the President's big measure for federal aid for public school construction and teacher's salaries. The committee's action—on an 8-7 vote—while not technically killing the bills, put them in a tight legislative bind. Administration forces have launched a counter attack aimed at reviving the program.

The Post Office and Civil Service Committee followed the lead of the rules group and all but killed the President's proposal to increase postal rates. It put off until Aug. 17 further action amid indications it would do nothing at that time.

The Agriculture Committee shelved a major provision of the President's farm program. It refused to approve his request to give the Agriculture Department broad authority to devise agricultural programs subject only to congressional veto.

While the three committees were balking at White House proposals, the House itself killed a presidential plan to reorganize the National Labor Relations Board.

All in all, it was one of the worst weeks, legislatively speaking, the President is likely to experience.

But, while the House was playing hob with administration plans, the Senate was more cooperative with the White House. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a foreign aid program that closely followed the President's recommendations, including his long-range lending plans.

The bill still has a long way to go, however. It still must clear the Senate itself and then faces a more hostile attitude in the House Foreign Affairs Committee and in the House itself.

The Senate Government Operations Committee approved Kennedy's plan for a new Cabinet department of urban affairs and housing.

THREE DIE IN FIRE

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP)—A Polish refugee mother and three of her children died Saturday in a fire which turned their tiny cottage into a flaming torch. Firemen took the burned bodies of Sabrina Gawronska and her three young sons from the debris. The father, Rodney Gawronska, 37, escaped with his only daughter, Christine, 12.

JILTED BY WAITRESS

Suitor Accused In Maining Plot

NEW YORK (AP) — A Wall Street stock dealer jilted by a brunette waitress was accused Saturday of attempting to hire a policeman to maim, rape and rob her.

Police identified him as Henry Franklin Scheetz III, 28, a blond scion of a prominent Pittsburgh, Pa., family.

Scheetz was arrested in the bar of the Hotel Nassau Friday night as he was making a $300 "down payment" for the job, police said.

The policeman, Edward Paganucci, who was off duty when he first met Scheetz last month, had tipped off detectives to be on hand.

The Brunette, Mary Kelly, 23, Sunnyside, Queens, told police on learning of Scheetz's arrest: "He kept pestering me to marry him, but I just wasn't interested in him. I told him so. I'm shocked that he'd try a thing like this."

Paganucci said he was in civilian clothes when he first met Scheetz in the bar June 16.

"He first talked about things in general," Paganucci said. "I met him in the same place several times later. He told me he had a girl friend named Mary Kelly who had broken off with him. He said he wanted to get even with her.

"He said he knew I was a police officer. He wanted me to get two guys to have this girl beat up, raped, maimed, scarred and robbed.

"He said, 'If you do this for me and get these two guys, I'm going to give you $500 and the two guys $750 each.'

"I immediately informed my superiors."

PLAYGROUNDS PROGRAM

Convention Set To Open Sunday

A destructive intruder in the pine lands of Louisiana will come in for some attention during the annual State Farm Bureau Convention opening Sunday in Shreveport.

Hugh M. Vick, of Monroe, chairman of the Farm Bureau's annual forestry conference, which will be held Tuesday in connection with the convention, said that considerable attention will be concentrated on the wild hog.

Jim Kitchens of Ruston, assistant director of forestry division of T. L. James Co., will discuss the damage the animal does to pine seedlings, and will outline a suggested legislative proposed to curb it.

His address will follow a film strip presentation on "Wild Hogs or Trees?" by A. B. Smith of Monroe, assistant forestry manager for Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp.

Vick said the climax of the forestry conference will be the adoption of recommendations relative to wild hog control and other tree farming problems for consideration of the Farm Bureau's voting delegates. A conference chairman for the coming year also will be elected.

A cotton conference scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, as another facet of the convention, will feature a discussion by State Agricultural Commissioner Dave Pearce. He will deal with the possibility of state assistance in providing micronaire testing and marketing services for Louisiana cotton farmers.

Various leaders in the state's cotton industry also will appear at the conference, according to Paul Ransom of Monroe, who is chairman.

An array of awards, youth contests and social events, will share the spotlight with the development of farm and domestic program recommendations at the convention which will run through Wednesday.

An awards program will be held Monday night. The best parish Farm Bureau will be selected, and awards will be made to daily and weekly newspapers, and radio and television stations for work in agriculture. There also will be awards to a number of parish Farm Bureaus for various activities, and a special plaque presented to H. C. Sanders, retired director of Louisiana Agricultural Extension Service.

Other awards to be presented will include those in the Farm Bureau emblem contest, Tuesday, and the citizenship essay and safest farm equipment operator contests Wednesday.

Patty Patterson, winner in Ouachita Parish Farm Bureau's talent contest, will compete in the annual Talent Find in Shreveport Tuesday evening. Climaxing various youth contests will be selection of the Louisiana Farm Bureau queen Wednesday evening. Among entrants in that competition is Ouachita Parish Farm Bureau queen, Sharon Garland.

Among those from the Monroe area planning to attend the convention are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ransom, T. W. Humphries, John Filhiol, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Anderson, Hugh Vick, J. J. Joyce Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Earl Garland, Lloyd Coon, Mr. and Mrs. Rankin Earle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Huenefeld Jr., and Everett Zeagler.

Enterprise, Logic Start Coin Laundry

By CHARLES STAFFORD
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Mix equal portions of free enterprise and female logic, and what do you get?

The coin-operated laundry business.

There are 22,000 to 26,000 "coin-ops" in the United States doing an annual business of about $44.5 million. They are multiplying like rabbits. Yet surveys show that 68 to 78 per cent of the women using them have their own washing machines at home.

So there you have it, an industry founded on the perfectly logical answers to this perfectly logical question: Why should a woman with a good washing machine stay home to do her laundry for nothing when she can take the dirty clothes elsewhere and pay for the privliege of washing them?

Only women could supply the logical answers.

A mother of six children says she uses a coin-op in River Edge, N.J., once a week to save time. She distributes her monumental pile of dirty clothing among 18 machines, and in about an hour performs a task that would require at least 12 hours at home.

Mrs. John Van Winkle of Clifton, N.J., says she likes the sociability. "I meet friends here and we gab about church and scouts; I'm a scout leader."

The coin-ops stay open all hours as a lure to working wives, bachelors and insomniacs. They are brightly lighted to discourage vandalism, and gayly decorated to encourage customers.

Most of this catering to the little woman is done by a little investor, a grocer in Akron, two aircraft workers in Seattle, a college girl in Miami (she has a wealthy father), a retired admiral in New Orleans, and a retired colonel in Tacoma, Wash.

Jack A. Coleman, of Cincinnati, head of American Laundry Machinery Industries small equipment division, says it is in his company's best interests that an investor does not fail.

Coleman's firm helps find the site, installs the equipment, supervises decoration of the store, furnishes promotion materials, and finances 95 per cent of the equipment's cost.

The investor needs $6,000 to $8,000 cash to get into business, says Coleman. A typical, 20-washer store should clear $750 a month, out of which the owner pays for his machinery. That leaves him $300 to gloat over.

Students On Field Tour

Fossil Harvest

The academic pursuits of a group of Northeast State College students on a geology field excursion near Arkadelphia, Ark., recently stirred speculation that they might be uncovering valuable minerals.

Actually, the students were primarily interested in methods of determining how to chart layers of earth where ancient seas nurtured almost unbelievable animal and plant life more than a hundred million years ago.

The student geologists, under the direction of Dr. Frank A. Welder of Northeast State geology department, left at the opening of the summer session to study a two-mile long area enclosed between Highway 26 toward Antoine and 51 toward Okolona. The class left the area several days ago.

As students went about their research work they were approached by a number of persons seeking to discover the "secret" behind their operations.

"Found uranium, haven't you?" asked one of the curious.

Another questioner thought the students were on a diamond hunt, and still another accused them of being mining engineers who were trying to conceal their findings.

The residents of the area, however, spurred the students on with varied reports on finding gigantic bones, diamonds, and unusual minerals. However, few were able to back up their stories with any ancient articles.

In the midst of all this, Northeast State students made a number of interesting discoveries.

These included the vertebrae of a mosoaur, a huge swimming reptile which sometimes grew to a length of 35 feet. This type of scaly reptile preyed on many creatures in the Masozoic seas of more than 60 million years ago.

Ancient oyster beds were discovered by students. The fossils of four oysters believed to have lived in widely separated periods, at least a million years apart, showed the progression of oyster physiology through many ages.

Among the myriad fossils of oysters in the strata, the group found a giant one that in its day would have provided sufficient food for a meal for one person. It measured nine inches by six inches.

Other deposits uncovered by the Northeast students included deposits of belemnites, ancient salt water creatures which may have been forerunners of squids. They ranged in length from five to six feet.

The area where the students were searching was more than 400 miles from any body of salt water, but sharks' teeth were found. They were taken from strata of paleozoic rocks that shifted millions of years ago to push up the Ouachita Mountains.

Field trips are annual occurrences for members of geology department student group.

Every summer they visit an outdoors laboratory to study mountains, all road cuts, gullies, streams, and any place that rocks can be observed in natural surroundings.

On this summer's venture in southwest Arkansas, the students were headquartered on the campus of Henderson State College at Arkadelphia. After returning to Northeast State they continued their studies in the classroom.

Students on the field trip were James Barfoot, Donny Nolan, and Rose May White, all of West Monroe; Vera Kirivatana of Thailand; Smokey Stover (professional football palyer with the Dallas Texans), Melvin Nelson, and Robert McGough, all of Monroe; Clyde McGowen and Charles Boies of Richland Parish, and Billy Barnett of Bastrop. Rose Mary White is the second woman to major in geology at Northeast State.

Students returned from the field trip invigorated. Some reported that excess weight had been pared by the exercise in the field, and others reported welcome gains. Gridman Stover, who wanted to gain weight, reported adding 33 pounds.

A LARGE OYSTER fossil discovered in a stratum of earth where ancient seas once existed in southwest Arkansas, is held by Smokey Stover, 235-pound linebacker for Dallas Texans professional football team. He joined Northeast Louisiana State College students on their annual summer geology field trip.

Race For Lost Treasure

By M. A. RAISER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two rival treasure hunters are racing to reach the legendary Rio De Janeiro, which sank in the Golden Gate 60 years ago.

They are Alfred Mikalow, a professional diver of Oakland, Calif., and William A. Pomeroy of Sausalito, a construction company executive and amateur diver.

Each is sure he has located the hulk of the Rio—but in different places!

FINAL VOYAGE

Manned by a Chinese crew, she made trips to the Orient and on her final voyage departed from Honolulu for San Francisco.

With 208 persons aboard, she arrived off San Francisco Feb. 21, 1901, and encountered dense fog. Capt. William Ward, 38, waited more than 16 hours for the weather to clear.

Many passengers were impatient, so Ward finally started cautiously through the Golden Gate, entrance to San Francisco bay.

The fog thickened and at 5:25 a.m. on George Washington's birthday the Rio De Janeiro hit a submerged rock. She sank in more than 30 fathoms within 20 minutes.

The death toll, including the skipper, was 128 lives; 80 persons were saved.

Where, exactly, did the Rio go down? And how much treasure was aboard?

"The vessel carried $2 million in her treasure tanks," a newspaper story said at the time, starting the sunking fortune legend.

Guesses have placed its value from $2 million to as high as $11 million.

Several efforts to find the sunken Rio have failed.

Now Mikalow and Pameray say they will make separate attempts.

Born in New York City, he roamed the world before establishing his Coastal Deep sea Diving Co. and school in Oakland.

He said he is certain he found the Rio's hulk in 1956.

"She lies west by north of the Golden Gate Bridge, right in the Gate," he said in an interview.

Mikalow said he and two friends were dragging under the Golden Gate bridge "when suddenly we hooked onto something."

"I went over the side and landed on a piece of submerged mast. I felt metal bracing, attached a line to it and brought it to the surface.

"We ran a carbon-silicate test on the metal and learned it was wrought iron 50 or more years old and identical to fittings on the Rio De Janeiro."

Mikalow said William I. Maderia of Woodside, Calif., a retired post office inspector, told him he had helped store $75,000 in gold coin on the vessel in Honolulu.

GOLD

"We know from ship's papers that gold pieces, dated 1901 or earlier, and passengers' jewelry worth more than $35,000 were on the Rio," Mikalow said.

He said other valuables, possibly including Chinese silver, brought his own estimate of the fortune to between $4 millon and $6 miiiion, counting value of the gold coins as collectors' items.

"We now have a diving robot—it takes a man about half an hour to get into it—for deepsea work," Mikalow said.

The robot is about eight feet tall, with steel claw hands, each capable of exerting 10 tons pressure. Atop the robot's head is a powerful searchlight.

Mikalow said he hopes to dive later this summer from a barge a short distance seaward from the Golden Gate bridge.

"It will be the only treasure ship operation viewed by spectators," he said with a laugh.

The other man currently planning to reach the Rio, William A. Pomeroy, is 44, a native Californian, and executive vice president of J. H. Pomeroy & Co., Inc., San Francisco contractors and engineers.

"I intend to renew my exploration for the Rio this summer," Pomeroy said rather reluctantly in an interview. He declined to pose for pictures.

Pomeroy said he communicated with some Rio survivors for years.

"There was a considerable amount of hard currency aboard the Rio," he commented. "Securities and hard cash were not shown in the ship's manifest because they were carried as mail.

"In addition, there was $75,000 gold coin, and one survivor told of seeing red colored bricks on the floor of the purser's room.

"When he asked what the bricks were he said the purser replied, 'just a couple million dollars silver from China.'"

Another Look At Suez

Canal Deeper And Busier

EDITOR'S NOTE—The shortest line between some of the world's most important points is the Suez Canal. That's why certain quarters felt it was worth fighting about when Egypt boldly seized it. But five years later the arms are stacked and the canal is deeper, richer and busier than ever.

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

PORT SAID (AP)—The historic Suez Canal has grown in less than a century from a sluggish ditch to the jugular vein of world trade. It is even more vital today than five years ago when the last struggle for its control exploded into war.

In sleepy Port Said and sweltering Suez, tugs and pilot boats crisscross the harbors like water spiders as they ready more than 50 ships daily for passage.

No debris remains from the unsuccessful British-French invasion of 1956. Yet the 101-mile canal remains heavily guarded by Egyptian soldiers and events in the Isthmus are now dated as before or after "the aggression."

On a sticky-hot afternoon five years ago Wednesday President Gamal Abdel Nasser—then a relative newcomer to world politics—made the coded speech that sent the world careening toward war.

GOAL

Nasser's goal was the company that ran "the richest ditch on earth." His adversaries were Prime Minister Anthony Eden of Britain, Premier Guy Mollet of France and, in a different degree, John Foster Dulles, the U.S. secretary of state.

In five headline-happy months, Nasser defeated all comers. He emerged a seasoned, and some say sobered, international campaigner. The road to victory cost blood, money and humiliation, but in the end the canal was his. It is now the brightest gem in his crown—making more money than ever, deeper than ever and handling more ships than ever. If the bazaars of Port Said are less lively, the old canal clubs less sophisticated and many foreigners less happy, these are trifling details compared with the gains.

With the largest dredging fleet in the world at work, the canal is now 37 feet deep and getting deeper. Squat 47,000-ton tankers pass through regularly. The daily average is 53 ships going through, compared with 40 before nationalization. The canal now handles half a million tons of shipping daily where only 317,000 tons went through daily in 1955.

The pilot force has been steadily built up and "Egyptianized," although it has been overworked ever since the crisis and old hands say another 100 pilots are needed for maximum efficiency. Even so, the accident rate is lower than ever.

Some canal employees complain that administrative efficiency has declined through "Egyptianization." This may be true, but in the working of the waterway itself, standards are as high as ever.

This year the thriving canal is expected to rake in even more than last year's $145 million record gross income. Perhaps 30 per cent of this is profit but a good bit goes back to improvement projects, along with $56.5 million in loans Egypt got from the World Bank in 1959.

Much of the success for the canal operation must be credited to its boss, balding dynamic Mahmoud Yunes, a former army engineer and confidant of Nasser. Yunes has "made haste slowly," according to old canal employees.

Yunes scans canal statistics like a baseball fan reading the sports page. These statistics are hardly likely to make Yunes pro-Soviet. Headed by Great Britain, the West still furnishes the overwhelming majority of the canal traffic. By the most liberal statistics, the whole iron curtain bloc makes up only about 10 per cent of Yunes' customers.

Despite the businesslike atmosphere surrounding the canal, it still figures in the East-West cold war. Although Nasser has kept his pledge too open the canal to the ships of all nations—save Israel—the canal is too vital an artery not to figure in all the secret "contingency" plans of East and West alike.

It was cold-war diplomacy that started Nasser on the road to nationalization. When Dulles concluded that Nasser had gone too far in accepting Soviet arms, he withdrew American financial support for Egypt's much desired high dam at Aswan. It was in answer to Dulles move that Nasser took over the canal.

LAUNCHING

Nasser has had the satisfaction of seeing all his adversaries in that 1956 battle lose out. Eden, gently eased into the House of Lords, is a broken political figure. Mollet is shorn of most of his luster in De Gaulle's France. Dulles — who sympathized with Eden and Mollet but was appalled by their invasion—is dead and his anti-Nasser policies are being reversed by the Kennedy administration.

More than any action before or since, the nationalization of the canal popularized Nasser in Egypt.

As he had plotted the revolt of "free officers" which over threw corrupt King Farouk, so Nasser plotted to take over the canal.

Sealed orders were drawn up, in envelopes bearing the code word "De Lesseps." The army was alerted to listen to Nasser's speech in Alexandria on July 26, 1956.

Early in his speech, Nasser made a rambling reference to De Lesseps.

On the signal, the envelopes were torn open. Inside were the instructions: "Occupy headquarters and installations of the Suez Canal company immediately."

By the time Nasser closed his speech with the thunderclap announcement "we have nationalized the Suez Canal Company," his army was in control.

EXPLODED

Britain and France almost literally exploded with anger. They had controlled the canal since its construction and between them owned about two thirds of the shares.

Other nations also had qualms. Even neutral India was jittery—her five-year industrial plan depended on large measure on use of the canal. Considering that just one big tanker can save $45,000 on a round trip from the United States to the Persian Gulf by taking the canal, it is easy to see why trading nations nervously weighed Egypt's move.

Life Sweetens For Leopold

By J. W. DAVIS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—When he was a boy of 18, back in Chicago, Nathan Leopold faced a dreadful future.

The chances were strong he would be hanged for murder.

The best that his lawyer could really hope for—and he was one of the greatest who ever argued a case—was that he would spend the rest of his life surrounded by hostile guards and prison walls.

TURNED SWEET

But life has turned sweet for Leopold, and his story has a classic outline for those who contend against capital punishment.

Most of his life has been spent gazing at prison walls, but now:

1. Leopold, who helped Richard Loeb commit the 1924 "thrill murder" of little Bobby Franks — a gesture of supreme contempt for society — has become a worthy, dedicated citizen.

2. Paroled by the state of Illinois in 1958, he now passes his days and nights in one of the world's most pleasant places, the flower-blessed island of Puerto Rico.

3. A brilliant scholar, whose youthful mind was twisted by the superman philosophy of Fredrich Nietzsche, he is now teaching and studying at the University of Puerto Rico.

4. He's married now—his wife was a middle-aged widow—and there is every indication that theirs is a partnership in serenity.

The latest word on Leopold comes on high authority, the governor of Puerto Rico and the chancellor of its university.

Gov. Luis Munoz Marin told a reporter: "All the reports I have on Mr. Leopold are very good, very favorable."

Chancellor Jaime Benitze said: "I am told he is doing quite well."

Leopold himself doesn't talk to reporters. One of the conditions of his parole was that he not encourage publicity. He's kept the terms.

He and his wife tried to keep their marriage secret last February but they succeeded for only three days.

SIMPLE PLEASURES

It's no violation of parole conditions, however, to report that Leopold has come a long way toward enjoying simple pleasures that most people take for granted.

Such as car riding. He was so unused to automobiles when he finally got out of prison March 13, 1958, that he was car sick six times between Joliet, Ill., and Chicago.

Such as just plain walking. On that first day outside the walls he took a 35-minute outing in Chicago's Lincoln Park, his first unsupervised walk in more than 33 years. A veritable parade of reporters and photographers was with him that day, but not any more.

Leopold was sentenced to life imprisonment plus 99 years for his part in the Franks kidnap-murder. The same punishment was decreed for Loeb.

Loeb died in 1936, stabbed in a prison fight.

For Leopold, the new life opened in February 1958 when, by a split decision, the Illinois Pardon and Parole Board held that prisoner Leopold's good behavior and good works had qualified him for parole.

'Don't Say Nothin''

One thing a good many people like about Ole Man River is that he "jes' keeps rolling along" and "don't say nothin'."

He doesn't bark like a dog, nor yowl like a cat nor sputter and pop and roar like a motorcycle or motor scooter, nor send pellets flying through the air which may endanger some one's eyes, as an air rifle does.

One of the things about urban or suburban life is that people must live in close proximity to each other. This being true, the things that some of them do are certain to displease others.

Commenting on this, one person said:

"One condition that has continually been brought to everybody's notice is the fact that some people seem to think that whatever their children do with their air rifles, motor scooters and other mechanical noises is quite all right. In fact, the neighbors are grouches if they don't want to see helpless birds slaughtered and run the risk of getting a slug in the eye, and windows shot out.

"They are terrible old grouches if they can't smilingly listen to sputtering, grinding motor scooters until they get screaming jeemies and feel like just one more grind and sputter will cause them to lose their minds.

"It is natural and normal for children to laugh, talk loud and even whoop and holler when playing, and nobody objects to that procedure.

"But why do parents buy these dangerous, noisy jim-cracks for their children, since, in doing so, they are encouraging, even teaching, them to be unlawful, inconsiderate and undisciplined."

Some people like noises and others don't. Young people, as a rule, like more noise than the older ones and this has been scientifically explained. Young people have boundless and excessive energy, which they have to burn up in some way. Noise helps to burn this energy, just as does exercise. Older people don't have too much energy and they usually do enough work to burn up what they do have, so loud noises tire them and thus disturb them and make them irritable.

This is one of the reasons that a grouch is usually described as an "old grouch." Of course, to children and teenagers, an "old" grouch may be only 30 or 40 years old, since anyone 10 or 15 years older than you are is old, while no one is ever old if he is your age or younger.

We may be getting away from the point, which seems to be how much noise we can stand or how much is permissible.

As the person who wrote in the complaint said, not many people object when children and young people laugh and holler. To almost all people, cheerful sounds are welcome.

It is largely the mechanical noise-makers and the barking dogs and yowling cats that are objected to most.

As in all things, there must be some sort of happy medium, and this is what we attempt to attain in our anti-noise ordinances. We don't try to interfere with people who are just laughing and having a good time, unless they become inordinately boisterous.

Since young people have extra energy they must expend it in some way. In the old days, there was never much cause to worry about this, because the youngsters had to work. Some people believe the reason we now apparently have more juvenile delinquency than before is because state and federal laws have gone a long way toward stopping young people from working and our customs have gone even further.

Trampolines and boys' baseball diamonds offer good ways of providing comparatively noiseless recreation. There are many other such ways of providing entertainment and burning energy.

To get rid of one of the worst noise-makers, without abolishing the vehicle, we wonder why manufacturers don't put silencers on motorcycles and motor scooters as they do on rifles, or at least use mufflers that are about as effective as those on automobiles.

Anyhow, if everybody loved his neighbor as he does himself, he would be more thoughtful.

One-Sided Willingness

The sending of another "disarmament" aide to Moscow last week shows the United States is still trying to show its willingness to negotiate with the Russians.

Why show any willingness in this matter when the Russians have not considered any such steps after more than seven years of negotiations?

John J. McCloy, the President's personal disarmament adviser, plans to spend up to two weeks in the Russian capital. While there he will resume discussions with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin.

The same two men met in Washington during late June and made no progress. Mr. McCloy should not have been disappointed. He was civilian High Commissioner of Germany when the U.S. Military Government ended its military occupation of the country. In that position, he should have come to realize the Russians regard any negotiations as a means to cloud the real issues.

What optimism as can be mustered over disarmament is based on the belief that Khrushchev has been following a "more peaceful" line on this subject than on other cold war issues.

President Kennedy returned from the Vienna meeting with the Soviet Premier with the belief that Laos, Berlin and nuclear disarmament were issues on which he and Khrushchev had made some progress. Laos and Berlin have since exploded into focal points of tension. Why should nuclear disarmament be any different?

Disarmament or the idea of it is certainly older than the passage in the Bible which mentions beating swords into plowshares. But the Soviet Union is run by a movement which does not accept the Bible's teachings.

The unilateral ban on nuclear weapons testing we imposed on ourselves in good faith during the endless Geneva talks must have been well received by the Russians. Of course, they continued their tests. Underworld gunmen would not think of letting their sub-machine guns rust even if the police decided to lock up their weapons.

Yet President Kennedy wants to make a proposed U.S. Disarmament Agency an official part of the State Department. Since the idea is not really feasible, there must be political capital to be gained.

Administration critics, among them Congressman Paul Findley of Illinois, have pointed to the obvious contradiction.

On the one hand, we have appropriated huge sums for the armed forces and military rockets. We speak of the impending crisis—even war—over Berlin.

On the other hand, we continue to sit at nuclear disarmament meetings with the Russians and refuse to test our nuclear weapons.

In making a summary of the futility of disarmament talks, Congressman Findley said:

"Disarmament is unthinkable today. If we conclude an agreement with Russia for disarmament or nuclear test control, what would it be worth? We should have learned long ago that agreements mean nothing to the communists."

Thinks Adcock Wrong

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I read in your paper of July 18, 1961, the acquisition of Mr. Adcock at Ouachita Parish pay.

He said "that Ouachita Parish teachers are paid year round." But he didn't explain this pay. He seems to be implying that they are receiving money for months they are not working.

I would like to make a explain to the public how they are getting this pay. For instance the teachers that would receive $300 a month for 9 months instead they voted to receive $225 for 12 months. If Mr. Adcock would multiply $300 x 9 months—$2700 yearly. Then multiply $225 x 12 months — $2700. If these hard working people decides that, that is the way they prefer 12 months pay instead of 9 months in the way explained that is their business. It is costing the taxpayers no more or no less it is the same.

Have Mr. Adcock visited Ouachita Parish classrooms and noticed how over crowded the classrooms. Where Mr. Walls and Mr. Ward have been trying to balance that shaved legisiation budget for 1960-61.

I have visited two schools, where in one schoolroom first grade their was 42 children in each first grade classroom. I also visited another school where 64 pupils was in this fifth grade classroom with one teacher teaching. The children were so crowded the teacher couldn't walk around to supervise the classroom work. Some of the children were seated out in the hallway trying to eardrop their own classroom work. I would like to ask Mr. Adcock to examine the register leaves of each teacher in Ouachita Parish if he or the public think this is untrue.

The regular classroom teachers are only supposed to teach between 20 to 24 pupils. Have Mr. Adcock made any outcry of this? No. Have he reported to Ouachita the amount of taxes paid each year and what small percentage have been received for the operation of their schools, recreation facilaties or charities association and organization.

Do Mr. Adcock know that some of the children only received three pencils for the year of 1960-61. I talked with one teacher with 42 children enrolled in her classroom. She showed me a list of ideas that she had received. She only received one box of pencils for 1960-61 session if that is close shaving the budget to make ends meet I don't know what Mr. Adcock calls it. If the public listen at Mr. Adcock they will be buying books, pencils, paper and paying the salary of teachers out of their pockets again.

Did Mr. Adcock ever think of the high cost of living and how low each teachers, supervisors, superindents, maids and janitors are paid.

He should compare his salary with any class room teachers salary. His salary to special legislation back in May would pay two or more teachers salary for a year — that was the taxpayer monies, too.

The teacher with a master degree does not receive a month what the common laborers at Olin Mathieson Paper Mill. My friends cuts paper wood for $8.00 per load and with a power saw they can cut as high as 20 loads per week. Those are people who some can't write their names.

Have Mr. Adcock looked into the possibility that he maybe pointing his finger before he is sure what he is pointing at. Have Mr. Adcock been reading his newspapers. I am sure that all money over the regular salary is published. At every school board meeting a newspaper reporter is there. I have been informed.

I would like for Mr. Adcock to send every taxpayer at the end of each year a list of the items that their monies is spent for since he is going to report to public about the school board spending. Tell us all of it.

Yours Truly,
Mrs. Francis Ella Battles

Private Schools Seen

Dodson, La.

To the Editor:

Private schools are not a mere possibilty but a probability for those that prefer them. There is nothing between them and private schools but a doubt. But the fate of private schools in Little Rock is evidence that private schools can not survive on popular subscriptions. A reasonable tuition fee is necessary. Private schools are more of a bugaboo than a problem.

There were not any public schools in the south before the civil war. The planters said, "it is folly," to build schools "for the poor white trash and Negroes." One of the first public schools in the south was created by the Negroes during reconstruction days. It was in a small log building about four miles northeast of Natchez, Miss., when there was but one white officer in Adams County, a carpetbagger Judge.

Ambitious people were fairly well educated before there were any public schools. Abraham Lincoln, an American statesman and 16th President of the United States, had less than a year of formal education. He died in the President's seat and left a classic, the "Gettysburg Address."

Andrew Johnson, an American statesman and 17th President of the United States, was born of poor parents in Raleigh, N.C. At the age of 10 he was apprenticed to a tailor and was taught to read by a fellow apprentice. In 1826, with his mother, he emigrated to Tennessee. He married Eliza McCardle, a woman with a good education, who instructed him in writing and other accomplishments.

My mother's people were all fairly well educate, so was mother; and I'm doubtful if she ever attended school. The first school I attended was a private school in 1897, before there were many public schools in Winn Parish. I attended a privately operated Business College in 1908. Too, I've attended public schools, but I prefer private schools.

Now, as in the pioneer days, ambitious boys and girls will forge ahead, and ambitious parents will make a way for them as they did in the past. As an example, Jefferson Davis, President of the Southern Confederacy, was the son of a poor man according to the standards of that day. But he didn't only provide for his education, but for his brother Joseph Davis' as well, who became a famous lawyer.

Private schools may entail a few sacrifices. Perhaps the sale of an extra car, a television, fewer radios, etc., and fewer visits to the shows and doubtless there would be ample funds to attend the school of your choice. Of course, there will have to be a workable system arranged. For the poorer people, a monthly tuition plan would be necessary. Most any responsible person can obtain a loan for educational purposes that may be repaid in monthly installments.

Gen. Troy H. Middleton, President of Louisiana State University said recently in an address before the Kiwanis Club in Alexandria, La., the average student, now - a-days spends as much on gasoline as "I spent upon education."

If we will calculate carefully, I think we shall find public schools are as expensive as private schools. Statistics have it, on account of the expense, only about one child in four will be financially able to finish High School. On account of the superior advantages a private school affords, doubtless once we have altered our school system we would not return to the so-called free school system.

Of People By People

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

"Of the People, by the People and FOR the PEOPLE."

I wonder how many people, reading these words of Abraham Lincoln at the dedication of the Gettysburg monument, really do believe we have a government OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE, and especially FOR THE PEOPLE!! Looking over some of the events of the past few years, these words, "Menu, Menu, Tarkel, Uphrason" loom more distinctly than ever. Can the people be so lacking in the love of country as to allow this to continue?? I wonder.

After the close of World War II, the United Nations, (So called) was formed. Who paid about 75 per cent of all costs? America. Who was the goat in all of the proceedings there? America. In every meeting of that body, from then on, who has paid most of the expenses, not only our's but of Russia, most all of the Communist bloc, but of our so - called Friends? America. Who built the the U. N. building,? We paid about 90 per cent of that. Who paid nearly all the U. N. cost in the Congo? Well, anyone who does any reading can figure that one out. And - who welched?

Since the close of World War II this country has shown a very remarkable strain of Cowardice!! Our representatives in most of our Foreign affairs have been inclined to want to PAY for the friendship and favors of foreign countries, rather than showing them the proper way to independence and self government.

That, and the way our so -called "Leaders" in Washington have coddled Communists, has brought us to this.

The radical politicians have brought about more -

In 1957 Eisenhower sent Federal troops into Little Rock. This was strictly against every "Law of the Land." He did it!! Last year a farmer in the vicinity of Kokomo, Indiana had his tractor taken away from him because of argument on TAXES. This was against the "Law of the Land." — They did it!! Just in the last few weeks a man in Pennsylvania, one of a sect who does not believe in War, automobiles or Social Security and several other forms of taxes, had his team of horses taken from him, thus, like the last named above, prevent him from making a living according to his right, "UNDER the CONSTITUTION" and forcing him to do the way of what he considered wicked. This was, and IS about ALL "Laws of the LAND." They did it!!!

These are a few of the things I have noted in the past few years. In the light of such, is it any wonder we have so much "Juvenile Delinquency" Tell me, just where can a youngster look for leadership, when such acts are perpetrated by our Federal Government. But that is not the worst.-

According to a broadcast from Paul Harvey, of 3 Feb. 1956, "The Government is sueing Joe Louis for the sum of $1,210,789.00 in back income taxes. Note this -

Under date of 20 April, 1961, a check in the sum of $25,000.00 was given the Internal Revenue Service to pay the debt? of Sgt. Alvin York. This way a subcription gift to the seargent.

Old Views Of Ours

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

It is my privilege and pleasure to pledge allegiance "to the flag of the United States and to the republic, for which it stands." I have heard that the pen is mightier than the sword. Shall we have liberty under God, or slavery under Communism? On my map of Russia, these words are printed "Union of Soviet Socialist Republics." May I ask why the Communist Party, U.S.A., is not called the Socialist Party? What is the difference between a People's Democrary and a Social Democrary? Do we want all our plans to be made for us in Washington or China or Moscow? Of course, we have friends in Formosa.

Why do we have State governments, if we are not allowed to manage our domestic affairs? I am one who is opposed to the American Civil Liberties Union, the Congress On Racial Equality, the N.A.A.C.P., and all other Socialist - front organizations.

Who wants to pay money to a Red satellite nation? That is what Our foreign-aid dollars are used for. Let us repeal the Income Tax Amendment without delay. May I quote the Amendment XVI? "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration." Let us not skirt our individual responsibilities.

Kenneth Busbice.

Congratulations Given

FORT WORTH, Tex.

HONORABLE, Mayor and City COUNCIL:
City of Monroe,
Monroe, Louisiana.

A letter of congratulations for your upholding of the CIVIL RIGHTS for the City in which you serve.

As we all know, The Civil Rights is based upon our Constitution and Bill of Rights of the United States.

It appears that some Politicians who have been elected or appointed to such office are using that office to benefit themselves either by, Money or for a coming election for those of that administration who now hold that public office. Most people in the United States know this is a criminal violation within the laws of the union as well as local laws but so far there has been no contest to those who are using their office for this purpose. I for one free American think something should be done about it.

The N. A. A. C. P. as is known to be, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. To' me this is a mis - nomer. It should be, National Aggression Against Civilized People, as such appears those in our government offices are doing with it.

I doubt there is any person, regardless of, color, race or creed who is against the colored person, but, when it comes to our personal association with another, then we shall be allowed to choose among ourselves who we shall associate with. Now, when some elected or appointed public office holder sets himself up to force any person to associate with one whom he does not desire then such office - holder should be removed and tried in a court and if found guilty, convicted for said crime, this includes any and all public office - holders, within the Jurisdictional Bounds of the United States.

The Negroes' among themselves DO NOT WANT TO BE FORCED into any trouble, and those who have the common sense will tell you this. Yet, there are some who agitate and those who hold a political office are upholding these agitators, this is a, Communistic form of Government, and this Nation is supposed to be a free Country, as to, Religion, Belief, Speech, Personal Security liberty, and the right to private property, and these rights are surely being violated. There is a way to avoid any trouble with any person who violates these rights, and it can be done in a legal manner.

Drug Firm Probe

Kefauver's Purpose In Making Investigation Is Not Clear

It is difficult to quite understand what Senator Kefauver is getting at in his investigation of the drug industry. If it is prices that he seeks to regulate, then why not regulate all prices of all goods. If he objects to labels and trade names, he makes a mistake because sensible folks not only demand original labels when they buy a medicine but get to know it by name of the bottle. The day when the doctor scrawls in Latin so that no one can read what he says, not even the pharmacist, is over. We want to know what is it that goes into us. Also there is the advantage of not taking the wrong medicine, the killer instead of the healer.

Senator Kefauver, in a previous investigation, gave the impression that he was bringing the underworld to the surface. It was exciting to watch Frank Costello testify before a television camera. When that investigation was all over, the underworld was still in business, as potent as ever, pushing heroin as actively as possible; organized vice continued to compete with private immoral persons; graft in public office became increasingly scientific. Precisely what Senator Kefauver accomplished by his crime investigation is not clear. He dropped the whole business.

Now since December 1959, he has been going after the legitimate drug business. He does not claim that any of these companies are engaged in illegal practices. No one is sent to prison as a result of this investigation. Nothing is being done to stop manufacturers from spending millions of dollars for research. It is therefore difficult to discover precisely what the Senator seeks to accomplish.

I have gone through the material diligently, seeking to discover why I have to take expensive pills when I feel so good and can do twice as much work as I used to do. The Senatorial committee's reports do not help me at all. In fact, I find much of their information to be baby-stuff, uninformative and not very helpful. Of course, drugs are expensive; so are tombstones.

Recently when my secretary was dying, all sorts of isotopes were used and I presumed that they cost a lot of money. The total bill was enormous. But if one of the isotopes could have saved her life, it would have been cheap at any price.

Nowhere is so much done for the sick as in this country and it is done mostly by private pharmaceutical companies that spend their money on research and then on promoting the drug. Much of this expenditure may be wasted because the research does not prove out. However, one success may save thousands of human lives and how much is a life worth?

Furthermore there is danger in what Senator Kefauver is doing. Patients and their families lose confidence in particular drugs that get front page attention because they are played up at a committee hearing. I know that nobody several years ago survived the series of illnesses that I had, but I have survived and am more active than ever. I am amused by friends who come up to me to say: "How wonderful you look, but do you feel as well as you look". Sure, and I am doing more work.

And if someone tells me that the bag of medicines I carry about with me are expensive, I must laugh, particularly when I read circulars advertising graves. I would rather pay for a medicine than a grave any day. So what is the complaint?

Apparently Senator Kefauver says that the manufacturer charges too much. Much of the testimony that I have read has to do with faulty arithmetic. This is quite natural and reminds me when I was young in Shanghai. Some of us were interested in making an extra dollar out of China's share of what was known as reparation dyes; very enthusiastic but not sound businessmen. We added a 10 per cent profit to the cost and lost lots of money. We had, of course, failed to include interest on the money, exchange from one currency to another, shipping, insurance and all sorts of other charges. We subsequently calculated that a 200 per cent mark-up would have brought us a slight profit. It is just simple arithmetic.

British Lord Asks Soviet To Negotiate

BUCKINGHAM, England (AP)-Lord Home, Britain's foreign secretary, Saturday night urged Soviet Premier Khrushchev to "drop the weapon of ultimatum" and negotiate for a settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Home went before a Conservative party rally in this country to appeal for a peaceful solution of the Berlin dispute.

But, coupled with his plea for moderation, Home issued a stern warning to Britons to beware of Communist leaders who "openly plot to bring us down."

He championed the rights of Berliners to choose their own form of government and added: "I trust Mr. Khrushchev will drop the weapon of ultimatum and threat in favor of settlement by agreement."

Earlier this week the United States, Britain and France told the Soviet Union they would resist attempts to shove them out of West Berlin but were prepared to negotiate for a political settlement.

Home told the rally Khrushchev recently proclaimed West Berliners should be left to decide their own future, that Western troops could remain in the divided city under a new arrangement, and that means might be found of guaranteeing Western access.

Out Where The Waste Begins

The atmosphere of Washington toward the Kennedy group has seemingly changed sharply from that prevailing on the day after the inauguration. The nice way to describe it in public print, now five months later, is that the "honeymoon is over." But in private conversation around the town, the judgment is less "nice." It seems that talk at luncheon parties, obiter dicta among people who meet on the street and pass the time of day, yarns across formal dinner tables, and particularly the jokes heard at the cocktail hour — all reflect a critical mood which registers President Kennedy very low on the "prestige poll."

One of the current jocosities is: "The administration has Castro-intestinal trouble — too much Castro and too little guts." Another: "Did you hear the news? Kennedy has asked for a recount." and "The New Frontier — that's out where the waste begins."

Interlarded with these significant jokes are true stories passed from mouth to mouth, such as one about a former Democratic member of Congress, himself a White House adviser under Truman. In January, this person's son talked of trying to get an appointment on the Kennedy team. The father advised "no." He said to his son:

"I predict that this administration will turn out to be a flop, one of the worst flops in our history. If you get a job very soon you'll want to resign — and quick." Today, the son says "Dad, how right you were."

Communist Weakness

The more thoughtful and sincere on capitol hill, it is reported, have come to believe that Red political weakness, not Red military strength, is the big story in the trouble situation in Eastern Europe. This cheering news is reported by Human Events, a national publication.

It seems that while the more blatant liberal pundits headline Soviet missiles and bombers, veteran foreign correspondents are stressing the rumblings of political discontent hehind the Iron Curtain. One reports that "East Germany today may be closer to an anti-Communist blowup than at any time since 1953" — the year when workers rose and attacked Communist tanks with their bare hands.

The fact is that shortages in East Germany have forced food rationing on the local level and soap rationing in such areas as Potsdam nd Leipzig. Even the Communist press recently printed reports of meetings of east Germans who protested any Communist action against Berlin, expressing fear of war.

Because of the increasing evidence of trouble inside the Iron Curtain, there are rumblings of discontent against what Senator Hugh Scott calls President Kennedy's "soft-boiled" advisers, who reportedly urge the gentle approach to Khrushchev's provocations. Scott says that these "sissy pants out in left field" among the White House crowd, think they can "butter up" the Soviet Premier by talk of United Nations intervention, withdrawal of forces and other concessions.

There's one telling move, it is reported, by which Khrushchev can be set off balance in the diplomatic back-and-forth; that's an aggressive, vocal counteroffensive by the U. S. for freedom of the Captive Nations. In 1959-60, in the month of July, President Eisenhower proclaimed friendship and help to these slave nationalities and kept the fires of independence burning. It is a little-known fact that a proposal for a congressional resolution of this nature has been gathering dust in the cupboard of the House Rules Committee since last February without any reports of early action.

It is recalled that it was the Rules Committee which Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, at the insistence of President Kennedy, packed with a majority of New Frontjersmen.

We believe the majority of Americans are about ready to stage a rebellion to throw out the pinks. Communist and left-wingers that are giving out much, much to much advice on world affairs and getting away with it.

Capitol Camera

Professor Stuart Kirby of the University of Hong Kong Economics Department, noted recently that although weather condictions in the Far East have been uniform, Red China has suffered an average crop loss of at least 20 per cent, while Formosa suffered a loss of 13 per cent and Hong Kong only eight per cent. He added "Recovery in Formosa was rapid and marked in contrast to the continued complaints from the mainland."

President Kennedy, say insiders, will now rely more on the carrot rather than the stick to soothe Congressmen into passing his legislation. Of the 100 district and circuit judgeship appointments to which Kennedy has fallen heir and which are desperately needed, according to the administration, Kennedy has appointed only seven. The rest apparently will be dangled as bait for Congressmen who do yeoman service for the administration.

There was some other cheering news the past week. Observers of all political faiths agree that last week's Virginia Democratic primary stacks up as a victory for conservatism in the state. The Harry Byrd - endorsed candidates for governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general won handily over a well - financed and hard - working liberal slate. The Byrd Democrats ran on a platform supporting a balanced budget and the state's right - to - work law. The liberal slate was a New Frontier variety and ran strongest in sections of Northern Virginia where many federal employes reside. It is really good news when conservatism wins anywhere. . .

Did you know that one - fifth of the births in the nation's capital in 1959 were illegitimate? Well, according ta the U.S. Public Health Service this is true. Further, none of the 35 states which furnish statistics to the USPHS had as high an illegitimacy rate. In Washington, the illegitimacy rate among nonwhites — who account for more than half the population — was 26.2 per cent. Among the whites is was six per cent.

Adlai E. Stevenson is at it again. He warns — according to congressional testimony made public — that any go - it - alone action by the U.S. against Communist - linked Castro regime in Cuba — such as a blockade or use of military force — would be "most unfortunate." The reaction in Latin America, he said, "would be almost universally one of condemnation and dismay." If you recall, it was this same Adlai who said if the United States used force during the recent ill - fated invasion of Cuba, that we would lose "our Latin American friends." Well, we didn't back up the invasion and lost and we lost our Latin friends anyway — that is, if we have any down that way . . .

Cuba's Castro regime, it is reported, now has at least 26 Soviet MIG jet fighter planes — maybe more. Delivery of the jets — first Soviet warplanes based in the Western Hemisphere — followed Castro's heavy purchase of guns, tanks and other armament from Communist countries. We haven't done anything about it. Wonder why?. . .

Lovely Louisiana

Aim of the Lovely Louisiana Association, which was recently formed by political and civil leaders from over the state — is to develop a broader and more intense promotion of tourism in Louisiana. There appears now to be a vast amount of enthusiasm for the over - all idea of boosting Louisiana's tourist income to a billion dollar - industry. There is no reason this can't be accomplished. Tourist could bring in extra money — a large amount of it to all sections of the state. This is true for the Twin - Cities and Northeast Louisiana. There is a paradise in this area and much that would draw tourist. However, they must be sold on the idea and this area as well as the state must be prompted.

That is the purpose of the Lovely Louisiana Association — to coordinate and to promote the idea. It would be wonderful if everyone would pitch in and help with this tremendous project because it would mean more dollars for everyone.

First vice president of the association and the man in charge of the promotion activities is Charles Pearson Jr., Industrial Development Manager for Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, with offices in New Orleans.

In charge of promoting the actives and of bringing in new members in Union Morehouse, Lincoln, Ouachita, Jackson and Caldwell parishes, is Bobby Pappas of Monroe. If you're interested in the program or in helping with it, you can contact him. He'll be glad to hear from you.

Some Engaging Tales From The Animal Fair

MY HOME IN THE ZOO. By Gerald Iles. Doubleday. $4.50.

Here is some light reading, a pretty fair animal book. The author was in charge of the zoo in Manchester, England, for a quarter of a century and he tells some engaging tales about each variety of creature that he has known.

One disconcerting aspect of his story is the high mortality rate of his pets. There also is a rather forlorn account of how the zoo deteriorated during the blitz of World War II, when it was virtually impossible to obtain keepers, the proper kinds of animal food and fuel.

On the more cheerful side, there are stories about the animal personalities that have appealed to him and some frank information on how animals are obtained and shipped.

Iles concludes with some observations on the methods used in operating zoos. He contends a humanely administered zoo can be justified, but nothing is more ghastly than a poorly managed collection of animals.

He seems to favor the cat family, fishes and birds. There are many anecdotes about his tribulations with visitors as well as animals. He has an obvious pride in the animal programs he did for the British Broadcasting Corporation.

To most readers, this book would appeal as a behind-the-scenes story of the big cages.

Background On South Vietnam

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the cold Nam, the weapons are seldom cold for long, and the final victor will be determined by the South Vietnamese rice farmer. Here's a picture of the man and his problems.

By RELMAN MORIN

RHOC GOI, South Viet Nam (AP)—Grandfather Nguyen looks past the barbed wire barriers, past the militiamen guarding the brush cutters, and fixes his one good eye on a patch of rice land in the lush green fields beyond.

Before dark, the soldiers and workmen will be back inside the village, behind manned barriers.

Grandfather Nguyen understands why this is necessary.

He knows the army is fighting some people called Viet Cong. He has heard that they are Communist guerrillas. The word "Communist," however, means little to him. He knows the Viet Cong moves mostly by night, entering villages, killing or propagandizing using persuasion and terror.

But why they do this, and what they want, is not very clear even though the Viet Cong wants him.

He is the grand prize of the war being fought in South Viet Nam. If the Viet Cong can win over Grandfather Nguyen, and the millions of other Vietnamese farmers, then this country will go Communist — and eventually so will all of Southeast Asia.

Thus he represents, to them, an avenue that potentially can lead to the greatest Communist victory since they completed the conquest of China 12 years ago.

"I have never met any Viet Cong," says Grandfather Nguyen, "but I fear them very much."

This in itself indicates a degree of success for the Viet Cong—the fact that he is afraid of them. For if he has no security, if the government can't protect him, he has little choice but to cooperate with the Reds, merely to save his neck.

There is a pathetic irony in this. For abundance is something he has never known, not even by his meager standards. He doesn't own his land. He lives in a palm-thatched hut. He wears a coarse black pajama-like costume that lasts for years. He has a wife, four grown children, and five grandchildren.

He rents a plot of rice land about equal to three acres. It is immensely fertile, producing almost 2½ tons in the single crop he harvests each year. If you calculated the cash value of this—which he doesn't—it would be worth something less than $80.

But Grandfather Nguyen almost never handles cash money. He barters rice for everything.

The rent on his land takes about one-tenth of the crop. He trades rice for clothing, the fragrant tea, the occasional luxury of a bit of pork or chicken, the kerosene or peanut oil he burns to light his hut.

When he hires a man to help him in the fields, it costs him about 67 cents per day in rice. When he hires out, himself, he will earn the same wage.

His two sons are in the army. His married daughters, aged 24 and 19, and their families live nearby. The three families help each other in the often difficult matter of merely living.

Grandfather Nguyen can't read or write.

"But my children can," he says. "They sometimes read the newspapers to me."

Otherwise, he gets his news from the radio in the village community center. "I heard about Mr. Johnson being in Saigon on the radio," he says.

This is a reference to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's visit last May. Johnson promised more American aid for South Viet Nam in the grim war of attrition against the Viet Cong.

Did Grandfather Nguyen understand that? He shrugs. You can't tell what the gesture means.

Does he know about American aid to the country? It has been averaging around $200 million a year.

He learned about the fact, not the amount, in an incongruous, almost hilarious way—from Viet Cong propaganda.

"Last year," he says, "I got a government loan." It equalled about $27.70. He bought a scythe and some other tools.

"The Viet Cong tells the farmers not to pay back their loans," he says. "They say, ' 'This is American money, don't give it back' ".

Nevertheless, he says, he did repay the loan.

He also knows about the anti-malaria teams, but not that American money finances them.

When the Viet Cong captures a malaria team, they frequently execute the members in a manner designed to achieve the maximum impact on the farmers, by beheading.

Their purpose is to frustrate everything the government is trying to do to help the farmers. The last thing they can permit side to improve. The more discontnt th bttr, is thir sra-cmfw content the better, is their strategy.

Government help takes several principal forms, the small loans, redistribution of the land, the organization of cooperatives and farmer associations. These groups make it possible for a farmer to rent tractors and other machinery that few could afford, otherwise.

Grandfather Nguyen, for example, has no water buffalo or other farm animals. When he can afford it, which is seldom, he rents machinery to work his land.

Finally, the efforts to give the farmer greater security against the Viet Cong represents one of the most important forms of help. There are far too many villages and isolated smaller communities for the regular army to protect by itself.

So the government helps the village by organizing militia, civil guards, within the village itself. They are being trained and gradually receiving better arms, mainly rifles.

They wear no uniforms. Their tattered clothing is shabby.

"But they'll fight for their village," says an American observer. "The Vietnamese are good fighters and these fellows—well, knowing they are protecting their own homes, they'll fight."

The whole question of the degree and effectiveness of government help for the farmers is hotly debated, however.

"The officials in Saigon are too far away from the farmer," says a critic. "So the local officials they appoint are either inefficient or have the same mandarin (aristocratic) attitude toward the farmers as the people in the capital."

Yet President Ngo Dinh Diem won a tremendous vote in the countryside when the first presiential elections were held last April. It was much bigger than in Saigon where his political opposition centers.

The population is estimated at about 14 million. All persons over 18 were eligible to vote, provided they had not been convicted of a major crime. A great get-out-the-vote drive preceded the election.

Registration was 7,231,000. The total vote cast reached 5.3 million. Diem received close to 90 per cent of it, 4.7 million. Balloting was genuinely secret.

guyen adv for ams Sun. July 16

The president's critics explain this by arguing that his opponents were neither known or formidable. But statements of the farmers indicated that Diem is popular in the countryside.

Grandfather Nguyen says he and all his family went to the polls. He says he likes Diem and indicates the president got all six of the family votes.

After the election, the opposing candidates sent a letter to the president of the National Assembly asserting that there had been fraudulent practice in the balloting

It charged in part that in many provinces, the number of ballots counted surpassed the number of registered voters. "We consider the elections invalid."

Diem says the explanation is simple: "Soldiers in the field, who had registered, were permitted to vote in the place nearest to where they were stationed. In many communities, their vote was, in fact, larger than the total cast by the people who live in that province."

Asked about this explanation, a political opponent said: "It may be true. But it also would be a very easy way to rig an election, wouldn't it?"

Is Diem a dictator?

The constitution provides the president with emergency powers to "decree a temporary suspension of the rights of freedom of circulation and residence, of speech and the press, of assembly and association, and of formation of labor unions and strikes . . ."

He has by no means invoked all these.

For example, the labor unions are functioning. They recently struck a textile factory and kept the workers out for 40 days.

Vietnamese in Saigon particularly tell you they have no freedom of speech. Yet the man who says this sits in your room for hours, openly telling you what's wrong with the government.

Moreover, in the electioneering and afterward, Diem's opponents repeated all these accusations, and others, speaking from public platforms, without going to prison.

The press is censored and the government operates the only radio. Yet the writings of foreign correspondents, often bitterly critical, have gone out from Saigon to the world, uncensored. There have been one or two exceptions and an Associated Press correspondent was expelled.

So the question: Is Diem a dictator?

"I am convinced," says a highly-placed foreign observer, "that he sincerely wants and intends to liberalize things. The question is: Given the present security problem, how far can he go and how fast?"

All this seems remote, another world, when you get deep into the delta, south of Saigon, where farmer Nguyen lives.

He is concerned with more down-to-earth things: Security at night, food clothing and shelter, schools for his grandchildren, hope for the future.

If he is persuaded that the government is at least trying to bring these things to the farm, he is not likely to be won over by the Viet Cong.

And if not?

Well then, like the millions of peasants in China 20 years ago, he may become the vehicle that delivers another country to the Communists.

Inspiration From Those Handicapped

A LAUGHTER IN THE LONELY NIGHT. By Henry Viscardi Jr. Paul S. Eriksson, Inc. $5.

Viscardi is the man who founded Abilities, Inc., a factory on Long Island that is as competitive as any, but hires only people who have severe physical disabilities.

By now this plant has 400 employees. Its story was told first in "Give Us the Tools," and this time Viscardi presents 15 individuals from his staff. Each tells a first person story.

There are men and women who have had polio, who are spastics, or who have been terribly handicapped by birth defects or war wounds. Their narratives are vibrant examples of what it means to overcome almost incredible barriers, lasting pain and ghastly discouragement.

Perhaps the most impressive account is that of Peter, who spent years in the hands of the head shrinkers in the hope someone could find out why his body floundered about so much. It was the doctors at Abilities, Inc., who discovered he was the victim of a rare disease called dystonia. After several dangerous and painful brain operations he was able to stand and walk again like a man.

One thread runs through all these stories — the utterly indomitable drive of the disabled to be useful, to demonstrate to the world and to themselves that they can be real members of society. It is only when they have reached this level of usefulness that they can laugh and joke like their more fortunate brethren.

Inspirational is the word for this book.

Khrushchev Saw Little Of Military Area

By A. E. PEDERSEN, Jr.
United Press International

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) —Nikita Khrushchev went all the way across the United States without learning much about American military ypoots.

But any American tourist with $1.65 can get a glimpse of one of Russias major naval bases.

That base is Kronstadt and all the tourist has to do is buy a $1.65 boat ticket from Helsinki to Leningrad. The ship goes right past Kronstadt and the tourist is free to do as much looking as he likes.

Soviet authorities will hardly be upset at this revelation. About all the tourist will learn is that Soviet ships look much like those of any other country.

Kronstadt is only one of the bonuses on the Helsinki - Leningrad excursion — a boon for travelers faced with the high cost of touring.

The tourist can spend three and and a half days in Leningrad — one of the most beautiful Russian cities—for as little as $65.

The cheapest and easiest way is to buy a package tour in Helsinki, climb on the boat and set sail. During the three days, tourists sleep on the boat—no hotel, no luggage problems.

The Finnish boat leaves Helsinki Saturday evening, gets into Leningrad Sunday morning, and leaves Wednesday evening. The tourist can take conducted tours to:

—The summer palace of Peter the Great.

—The Aurora, the czarist cruiser that fired the shot which signalled Lenin's attack on the Kerensky government.

—The Peter-Paul Fortress on the banks of the Neva, a jail for czarist prisoners who didn't make it to Siberia.

Customs is a simple procedure. Other formalities are few. Once ashore, tourists may follow the set tour or strike out on their own with camera in hand. No one follows them.

The smart tourist buysy a Russian-English phrase book. Most of the English-speaking intourist guides are busy with better-helled Americans who take the personally - conducted deluxe tours, complete with a private car, guide and chauffeur.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

During the long hot days of summer there is no better way to spend one's time than in the reading of a good book. New titles are arriving each day at the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Are you using the service available to you? If not, come in and sample the library stock. Each day new titles are added to the book collection. There are several worthy of note, added during the past week. Nathaniel Benchley is the author of "The Off Islanders" a completely facetious novel about the reaction of the inhabitants of an island off Cape Cod to the arrival of a Russian Submarine. It would be wonderful if such an event could be handled so easily. Two new mystery stories have just been received. They are "Court of Crows" by Knowlton and "The Girl with the Leopard Skin Bag" by Jeremy O. York. Both of these books make exciting reading. Two interesting books of fiction especially for young adults are "The Secret Sigh" by Gladys Malvern and "The Golden Goblet" by Eloise Jarvis McGraw.

Those who remember the summer of 1940 and many of those who do not remember it, will want to read "The sands of Dunkirk" by Collier. This is a recreation of the days in June of that year, when it was uncertain whether the Nazis would be able to conquer England and with her the last stronghold of the Free world. A book which was eagerly awaited by our patrons was "Inside Europe Today" by John Gunther. The author wrote a book called "Inside Europe" many years ago, but this new title brings the situation up-to-date.

One of the most unusual and colorful figures of the art world in the last century was "Toulouse-Lautrec." Henry Perruchot has written a biography of this eccentric genius and has discussed much of his work. Readers of science fiction will want to see "The Fifth Galaxy Reader" edited by H. L. Gold, which is an annual collection of the best Science fiction stories.

Another exciting story of World War II is "The Battle of the Atlantic" by Donald G.F.W. McIntyre. The author details the events and the men who fought to preserve us from German invation and many who served in this battle will find it an absorbing account. An interesting biography dealing with another war is "Gamecock: the life and campaigns of General Thomas Sumter" written by Robert Duncan Bass. General Sumter was one of the heroes of the American Revolution and this book is extremely valuable and well done. Student of ancient history will want to read "Daily Life in Carthage at the Time of Hannibal" by Gilbert Charles - Licard. This book is a very fine piece of literary and historic research and adds much to our knowledge of those long ago people.

Three new titles were added to our reference collection this past week. One is "The Acronyms Dictionary". This is a very unusual book which is a guide to the alphabetic designations, contractions etc. used by the many agencies, government and private in our country. There are two new reference books in the genealogy collection. One is "American Origins" by Leslie Gilbert Pine" and the other is "Early Wills of Lincoln County Georgia" by Sarah Quinn Smith. The first book traces the origin of many people in our country. The second is of interest to those whose ancestors lived in Lincoln County, Georgia.

New Director Plans For Best Opera In World

LONDON (AP) — The Royal Opera House's new musical director, Georg Solti, has eight new operas on the production boards for his first season.

Solti says he hopes in a five-year program to build the historic Covent Garden musical landmark into "the best opera house in the world."

Solti is the opera house's first musical head in more than three years. He was persuaded, at 49, to take the difficult post by the veteran conductor, Bruno Walter.

A Hungarian, Solti discussed the matter for two years with Lord Drogheda, chairman of the Opera House board, and with Sir David Webster, general administer, before he signed.

In talking of his plans for the first season — after he takes over Sept. 1 — Solti made it known that an American, Sam Wanamaker, would produce one of the new operas, Michael Tippett's "King Priam."

The other new productions will be:

"Iphigenia in Tauris" by Gluck; "Die Walkure," by Wagner, produced by Hans Hotter, with whom Solti was associated in his Munich days; Richard Strauss' "Die Schweigsame Frau" (The Silent Woman), which will be given an English translation; Mozart's "Die Zauberflote" (Magic Flute); Mozart's "Don Giovanni," conducted by Solti; Handel's "Alcina," of Schoenberg's "Erwartung," Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi" and either Stravinsky's "Noah," or, if that is not ready, Ravel's "L'Heurc Espagnole."

Solti served for 15 years as musical director in opera houses at Budapest, Munich and Frankfurt. He then became conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, which he left a few months ago, he said, when his authority was flouted.

On coming to Covent Garden, Solti looks forward to engaging some eminent guest singers, but principally to concentrating on a build-up of home and Commonwealth strength.

He is able to have eight new productions in the first year, he explained, because of the cooperation in two of them by the Edinburg and Coventry Festivals in Britain.

Revivals during the first year will be of 16 operas. Solti also went into the language question, always a controversial one in opera.

He said each case should be judged on its own merits, though generally comedies should be sung in English, and it was senseless to do Slavonic in the original. Other operas whose character seem to be distorted in translation, he said, should be done in the original tongue.

Off-Islanders Good Reading

THE OFF-ISLANDERS. By Nathaniel Benchley. McGraw-Hill. $4.50.

Cape Cod, like a good many other spots in New England, is noted for its individualistic, provincial characters who view with poorly concealed disdain the summer visitors off whom they make their living.

In this case the characters are even more provincial, for they live on an island near the Cape and consider the rest of humanity a minor breed of off-islanders.

To this scene, at the end of the summer season, comes a Russian submarine, whose coast-charting cruise has been stymied temporarily by a sandbar. The Russians come ashore to commandeer a power boat that will give their craft a nudge off the sandbar at high tide. But the islanders think it is an invasion.

So this book is a comedy of errors in comic style. On one side are such natives as the old maid postmistress who creates confusion with her mad ride a la Revere, the butcher boy who tries to lead the amateur militia, and Luther Gilk, the town drunk, who does his spying in an Indian outfit. On the other side are some dunderhead Russians, including a political commissar who is a jackass. The subsequent battle on the town dump is pure slapstick.

Yes, the whole thing is nonsense, of course, but some of the caricatures are pretty amusing. This would be a good book to take with you on your vacation, especially if you're headed for New England.

Literary Promise In New Waugh Book

THE FOXGLOVE SAGA. By Auberon Waugh. Simon & Schuster. $3.95.

Some like Indian curry, some like Mexican tortillas, and some like English novels about macabre characters. It's all a matter of taste.

This is a novel about some pretty weird people. They're far different from the lovable eccentric types, full of charm, that appear in the writings of other English authors. These are spooks.

The central figure is Martin Foxglove, who attended a Catholic school for upper class boys and went on to a training school for officers. He is a snob. The fact that he doesn't work at it doesn't relieve his snobbery. (The author also attended a Catholic school and then flunked out of Oxford.)

Lady Foxglove is even more of a spook than her son. She is one of those sweet, frail, pious women who insists on doing good works—except that the good works are a complete sham and she invariably becomes a monster in other people's lives. She is far more ominous than the inept Fathers at the school or the grubby boys who attend it.

This is the seamy side of the people who wear fine garments. There scarcely is a character in the book who is presented in a sympathetic light, except for the dying Father Thomas, who becomes a victim of an ironic combination—Lady Foxglove's pious works and the bungling of a large hospital.

The book has been described in England as a satire and a mordant comedy of manners about a decadent English society. It is all that. It ranges from a fine sensitivity in the adolescent mind, all the way to a mongoloid horror of a child who puts Lady Foxglove off her rocker.

American readers won't catch all the nuances in this volume, but they can't miss the pools of acid.

The interesting thing is that Auberon Waugh, at 22, son of Evelyn Waugh, has written a first novel that carries a wallop. It shows a professional insight and literary technique far beyond his years. The guy can write, as we would say in the colonies.

Quarter Tune Top Record Second Week

CHICAGO (UPI) — For the second straight week, the U.S. bonds' waxing of "Quarter to Three" heads the United Press Internationi top 20 list as the most-bought, most played, record across the nation.

Trailing close behind in second place, where it was last week, is Ricky Nelson's waxing of "Travelin' Man."

Signs Indicate Economic Gains

Berlin Crisis Brings Only Uncertainity

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—New signs of sustained economic progress appeared during the week.

Over the whole business scene, however, hung clouds of uncertainty mushrooming from the Berlin crisis.

President Kennedy declared himself pleased with the progress the country has made economically in the last six months but expressed dissatisfaction with "serious problems of unemployment."

The President reported at his news conference that the gross national product—total output of goods and services—climbed to a record level in the second quarter.

The GNP was estimated at a seasonally adjusted rate of $515 billion, up 2.8 per cent from the first quarter. The previous quarterly high was an annual rate of $506.4 billion in the second quarter of 1960.

Americans' personal income in June advanced to a record seasonally adjusted annual rate of 416.7 billion. This was a gain of $3.5 billion over May and was attributed mainly to higher factory employment.

Manufacturers' sales of durable goods in June edged up one per cent from May for the fifth straight monthly increase. Factory sales of cars got most of the credit.

A flaw in the picture appeared in new orders received by durable goods manufacturers. They showed a one per cent drop from May.

However, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said he wasn't worried because orders for the last several months had been good.

Home building moved ahead in June for the second consecutive month. It attained a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,374,000 units, a gain of six per cent over May and seven per cent over a year ago.

C. Elwood Knapp, president of the United States Savings & Loan League, credited a voluntary reduction of interest rates with spurring home building. He said mortgage loans by savings and loan associations in the first six months of this year totaled $7.9 billion, 17 per cent higher than in the like 1960 period.

Corporations saw encouragement in the House Ways and Means Committee's approval of a bill to give business a $1-billion tax credit on money spent to modernize industrial equipment.

The government's intention is to increase output and provide jobs for the growing work force.

The plan would allow owners of plants to subtract from their income tax an amount equal to eight per cent of their expenditures on new equipment.

Corporations released an avalanche of second-quarter earnings reports during the week. Profits for the first half of 1961 didn't look too good against 1960 figures but the turn in the economy was apparent when second-quarter figures were considered against the first quarter.

Negotiations with the United Auto Workers on new contracts not only were of concern to the automobile industry but were having an effect on the steel industry.

Ford Motor Co. contended it would cost more than $500 million over the next two years to adopt only a part of the program submitted to it by the UAW.

Uncertainty was reported to have entered into steel-buying plans of the automakers because of the negotiations. This darkened a previously bright steelmaking outlook for August.

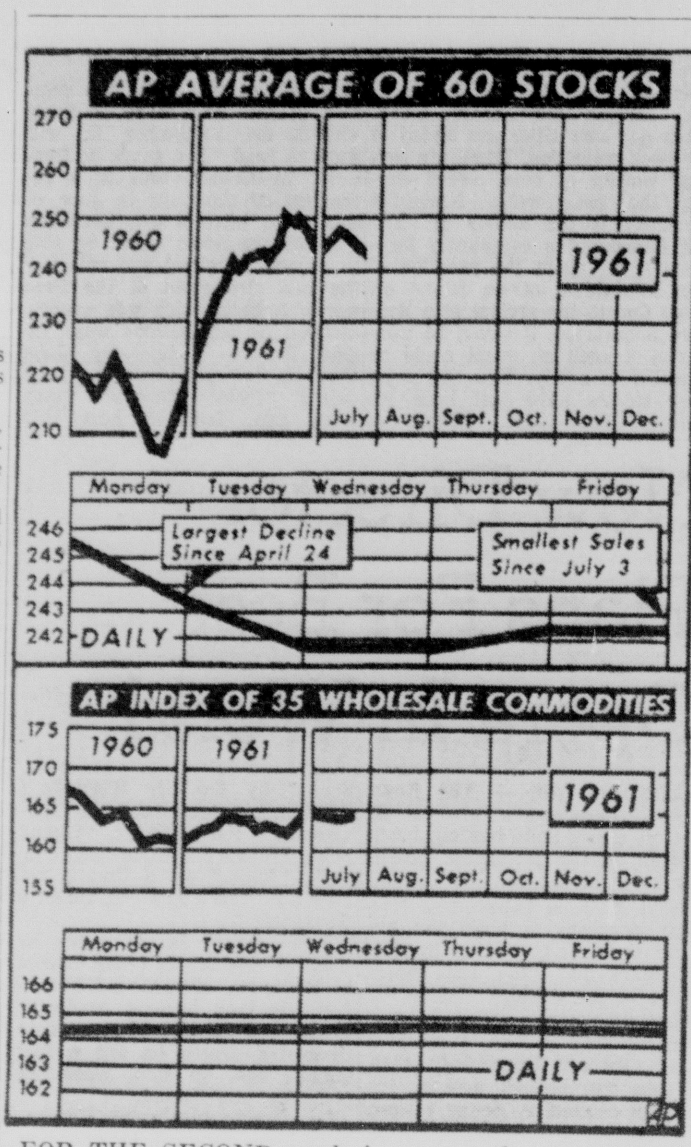
Steel production last week increased 4.6 per cent from the previous week to 1,860,000 tons after six consecutive weeks of decline.

Carmakers built their three-millionth passenger car of the year but were well over a million behind the pace of last year. With model changeovers under way, production for the week dropped to an estimated 105,000 from 127,260 the previous week.

Briefly around the business scene: At Parker, Davis & Co. in Detroit, 450 women are giving up one to two weeks of work to allow the rehiring of laid-off workers. . . . Fire losses in the United States in June totaled $103,348,000, up 24.8 per cent from June 1960. . . . Forty-one million American workers were covered by group life insurance last year. A survey shows that one out of five families living in rented residences plan to move before the end of the year. . . . A new light bulb called Flicker Flame flickers to give the effect of candlelight.

MAY DEMAND RECALL

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Official sources said Saturday Iran is going to demand the recall of the Soviet military attache, Col. Grigory Andreevitch Kouzmenko, because of his presence in crowds demonstrating against the Iranian government Friday. Moscow broadcasts had been heard urging the people to turn out for the banned demonstration, then to rise and overthrow the sha.



FOR THE SECOND week in a row the Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined, closing at 242.3 from 245.5 a week earlier. Led by grains, the commodity index moved higher for the week to 164.7 from 164.3 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

$1 BILLION A YEAR

Iraq Stakes Claim To Huge Oil Jackpot

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Premier Abdel Karim Kassem of Iraq is seeking an oil jackpot that could exceed $1 billion a year.

The revolutionary head of the Middle East nation has staked claim to Iraq's tiny neighbor, Kuwait, the world's richest nation in proved oil reserves.

Kassem also has demanded a sharp increase in profits from Iraq's own oil production.

Fulfillment of both objectives would give Iraq direct control of nearly one-third of the world's proved oil reserves.

The combined oil income for Kuwait and Iraq currently averages almost $700 million a year. Kassem's "get tough" policy with Iraq Petroleum Co. could push this close to the $1 billion mark.

In addition to increased profits, Kassem wants part ownership of Iraq petroleum, the American-British-Dutch firm which has handled most of Iraq's oil production since 1952. He also wants part of the concession returned to the government.

Kassem's war of nerves with the international oil companies began almost immediately after he proclaimed Iraq a republic after his 1958 revolution ended with the assassination of King Faisal.

Negotiations with Iraq Petroleum have been broken off several times, but Kassem said this week the discussions will be resumed next month.

He emphasized, however, Iraq's already announced demands are final and "we shall not draw one hair-breadth back on them."

Ever since Kassem, an army brigadier general, led the successful overthrow of King Faisal's government on July 14, 1958, there has been speculation his ultimate objective would be nationalization of Iraq's oil resources.

Kassem this week denied he plans to nationalize the industry but his oil minister, Mohammad Salma, said the government intends to establish a national company to run Iraq's oil interests.

The British Petroleum Co. Ltd., with the British government as the majority stockholder, has a 50 per cent interest in Kuwait Oil Co. Ltd., and a 23.75 per cent interest in Iraq Petroleum Co.

About 40 per cent of Britain's oil supply comes from Kuwait.

Gulf Oil Corp. shares the valuable Kuwait concession with British Petroleum. Other international firms with interests in Iraq Petroleum are Royal Dutch-Shell, Francaise des Petroles, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) and Socony Mobil Oil Co.

Kuwait, with an estimated 62 billion barrels, has 20.6 per cent of the world's proved crude reserves. Iraq holds 9 per cent with an estimated 27 billion.

Production in Kuwait last year averaged 1,625,000 barrels a day. Iraq averaged 975,000. The combined average of 2,600,000 barrels a day was equivalent to 12 per cent of world production.

Iraq in September became the seventh nation in the world to produce more than a million barrels of oil a day. The September average was 1,046,800 barrels. Kuwait set an all-time high of 1,868,2000 in March.

Kassem has moved cautiously on his Kuwait objective since announcing in June he considers Kuwait part of Iraq. He has repeated the claim several times but has said he will not use force.

His strong words with Iraq Petroleum, however, have approached the stage of being an ultimatum.

Wall Street Waiting On JFK Report

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices declined last week for the second week running as trading slackened to its dullest rate since last November.

The Berlin crisis dominated Wall Street, also for the second straight week. The warning to Russia by the Western powers and President Kennedy's decision to report on the Communist threat to the public next week and recommend a program to Congress to meet the situation produced great caution.

Although it was assumed Kennedy would ask for greater defense spending, the defense stocks, while showing spotty strength, did not produce a concerted advance. Wall Street seemed worried that the President would propose measures, or perhaps ask for some "sacrifices" which might stiffen taxes or otherwise detract from the profit picture.

Even the success of the second U.S. manned space flight provided little reaction. McDonnel Aircraft, prime contractor for the Mercury space capsule, declined on news that the capsule had sunk in the ocean.

General economic news was good on balance, including word that gross national product was at a record rate of $515 billion in the second quarter.

The bond markets improved all along the line last week. Not since the week ended May 13—when prices touched a three-year peak—have corporate and U.S. government issues both advanced during the same week. Corporate volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled $31,549,000 par value compared with $31,712,000 during the previous week.

NEW ENVOY TO U.S.

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Brij Kumar Nehru, 52, Indian commissioner-general for economic affairs in Washington, has been appointed India's new ambassador to the United States, the Foreign Ministry announced Saturday.

Stamp News

To commemorate its admission to the Universal Postal Union, the Federation of Nigeria has issued four colorful and atractive new stamps. Nigeria became an independent nation on Oct. 1, 1960.

The four values represent the four major methods of postal conveyance. The 1 pence orange and blue is for railroads. The 3 pence gold and brown green honors highway transport. The 1 shilling 3 pence blue and red pays tribute to the airways. The 2 shillings 6 pence green and blue publicizes shipping.

Each value also shows the Universal Postal Union symbol — a globe. On these stamps, however, the globe has a different projection for each mode of transport.

Israel's Ministry of Posts will supervise a special stamp competition throughout the world for the design of a stamp commemorating the "Holocaust and Resistance." The aim is to select a stamp design to do justice to the great Jewish tragedy of World War II, reports the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

The competition closes Aug. 10 to be judged by the Israel Stamp Committee. Complete information and entry forms can be obtained by writing to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America, 116 West 32nd Street, New York 1, N. Y.

Scott Publications announced its entry into the single-country field with three new albums for the stamps of Greece, Turkey, and France. Supplements to this new series will appear regularly and additional Scott single country albums will be published from time to time.

The U. S. Post Office Department reports that the 11-cent regular postage issue featuring the Statue of Liberty (first placed on sale at Washington, D. C. June 15, 1961) sold 238,905 first day covers and a total of 484,695 stamps on that date.

Japan has issued a new 10 yen stamp to commemorate the 52nd Rotary International Convention. The design by Saburo Watanabe features the Rotary symbol surrounded by people of various nationalities. A forthcoming issue by Japan will honor the Aichi Irrigation Project. Later in the year Japan expects to issue two stamps for their 16th National Athletic Meet.

Ghana celebrated its first anniversary as a republic with the issuance of three new stamps. The designs were as follows: eagle on column beneath the official Black Star, flower in Ghana's colors with the Black Star in the center and one leaf, three Ghana flags as background for the Black Star. The stamps were released on the anniversary date, July 1.

Blind Man Asks Aid On Fallout Shelter

SELKIRK, N. Y. (AP)—"I am totally blind and have a wife and six children, whom I would like to see have a chance of survival in an atomic war," a letter to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said.

The writer, John McCormick, asked the governor for aid in obtaining building material for a fallout shelter outside the McCormick home here, 10 miles south of Albany.

McCormick, his wife, who also is blind, and their children, ranging in age from 3 to 17, are receiving a free shelter—the work of about 25 members of four Junior Chamber of Commerce chapters, aided by four volunteer bricklayers and building-material suppliers.

Rockefeller referred the letter to the State Civil Defense Commission, which aroused the interest of the Jaycee's "Operation Survival" project.

World On Brink Of Dangerous War, Says Tito

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Tito declared Saturday the world is "on the most dangerous brink of war" and called on all peace-loving people to oppose the present trend in world affairs.

"The danger which we are facing is very worrying," he declared in a statement issued to the press at Brioni, his vacation island.

He commented on the present world development and the situation caused by the crisis around Bizerte.

"The picture of the present situation seems to me quite similar to that on the eve of World War II. Armament with most destructive war weapons are feverishly in course, preparations for mobilization of new military contingents instead of diminishing them are under way, the already weak bridges for peaceful settlement of disputed questions are being destroyed.

"New hotbeds for possible war conflicts appear. Laos, Angola, Algeria, the Congo, South Africa, Berlin, West Irian, Kuwait, Cuba, and the newest aggression against Tunisia, around Bizerte, are announcements of dark prospect for the preservation of peace."

Camera Notes

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In the time it takes you to read this column, possibly several thousand doting parents are pointing cameras at their offspring and beseeching the little tykes to smile.

And quite a few are going to be disappointed with the resuls.

The little tiger just won't smile. He stands there stiffly, squinting into the lens. Technically, the picture is perfect but it just doesn't look like Daddy's laughing, bouncing boy at all.

What happened?

Here are a few hints, from one amateur to another, that might help to brighten up the family snapshot album for future amusement and nostalgic reminiscence.

First, don't let Mom "fix him up" for the camera. Chances are he rarely looks like that for more than five minutes at a time. Slicked-down hair, face scrubbed shiny, wrinkle-free clothes. Hardly the way you'll want to remember him after he grows up.

Don't try to pose him. He won't pose the way you want him to anyway. Let him do what he wants. Let him wander. Prefocus the camera at, say, five or six feet and follow him, keeping the preset distance away.

Patience is a necessity.

If Junior is a little ham, let him ham it up. He'll grow tired of it after a while and you can snap him as he really is. If he's shy, let him hide. He'll warm up to the camera shortly.

Once he has come to see the camera as just another part of old Dad, like a finger or an ear, you can induce him to do things. Notice that the word is "induce." You can never successfully "direct" a child.

Talk to him. Make nosies that interest and amuse him. Give him something to play with, a ball, a book, a deck of cards — but not the traditional watch, unless he's in a straitjacket.

Normally, pictures of other people's children tend to have a "ho-hum" effect upon outsiders. You can brighten up your display by shuffling the pictures into a sequence with captions, a la Constance Bannister.

The little tyke might be a politician explaining away charges against his administration, or a salesman telling the boss why he loused up the last sale, or a rock 'n' roll singer, or a host of other people.

To Stop A Frightened Pig From Squealing . . .

" . . . WHY, YOU JUST HOLD HIM UP BY HIS TAIL."

That simple solution came from this beautiful child—and it didn't hurt the pig one bit.

It's a pity, indeed, but we grown-ups sometimes complicate the simplest things . . . get so confused by anguished squeals of pros and cons.

Take member-owned electric cooperatives, for example. These private enterprises have never done anything but good. There's nothing complicated about them. They were organized by wonderful rural people nobody else would serve with electricity. Like millions of FHA and VA homes, the co-ops were financed by government loans repayable with interest. Both town and country have benefited from the new main street business, more jobs, new markets, more production and countless other blessings.

Yet, some would have you believe all sorts of foolish things about electric co-ops—like government ownership, socialism, etc. Mostly these anguished squeals come from the very same people who refused to serve rural Louisiana, but who now think they see visions of profits glimmering along the cooperative's lines.

We think it is only just and fair that electric co-ops be allowed to keep and develop the areas they— and they alone— had the vision to serve when the going was rough. Don't you agree that is the American way?

Dodgers Close Gap To One Game On 5-4 Win

Pinch Homer In Eleventh Edges Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Big Frank Howard's two-cut pinch homer in the 11th inning lifted Los Angeles past the stubbron St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night, 5-4, and moved the Dodgers within one game of the slumping first - place Cincinnati Reds.

The winning blast by the 6-8, 245-pound Howard came off Craig Anderson, who until then had pitched 3 2-3 innings of two-hit shutout ball in relief of Larry Jackson.

A rainstorm which struck with two out in the Dodger fifth delayed the game one hour and 23 minutes. Light rain fell during the last few innings. The game ended just four minutes before the National League's curfew.

Ron Perranoski, for whom Howard hit, was credited with his fifth decision. He has lost two.

The Dodgers might have won it in nine innings but for Don Taussig, who delivered a two-out two-run double in the eight to tie it.

John Roseboro hit a two-run single in the first inning to start the Dodgers off but the Cards matched with two in their half on Bill White's one-run single and a bases-loaded walk.

Norm Larker's double and Charley Neal's double in the sixth inning gave the Dodgers a 4-2 lead that held up until Taussig's hit in the eighth.

GIANT Willie Mays, known for his daring base running, made another effort in the third inning of yesterday's game with Cincinnati at Crosley Field, but it backfired. Mays tried to score from third base on teammate Ed Bailey's tap to the Reds' Gordie Coleman, whose throw to the plate arrived in plenty of time for catcher John Edwards to make the tag. Calling the play is Umpire Dusty Boggess. (AP Wirephoto).

Giants Blast Hunt, Roll Up 8-3 Triumph

CINCINNATI (AP) — The San Francisco Giants scored five runs in the first inning Saturday and then followed the six-hit pitching of Jack Sanford to an 8-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds—the sixth straight defeat for the league-leading Reds.

Sanford had little trouble quelling the Reds who still lead the National League despite a six-game nosedive.

Only Frank Robinson, who homered in the ninth, and Don Blasingame could do much with the right-hander's offerings.

The third-place Giants, with an 11-hit attack, streamed through four Redleg hurlers, with young Kent Hunt taking the loss.

The Reds never recovered after the quick tattoo of hits that wrecked the pitching of their most promising rookie, Hunt, before the game was an inning old.

Five singles interrupted only by Harvey Kuenn's infield fly out rushed over three quick runs and led the Reds to yank Hunt out quickly in favor of Roadblock Jones.

Before Jones could settle down, the Giants capitalized on a passed ball, an error and Jose Pagan's sacrifice fly for two more markers.

A potential threat in the third was set up by a leadoff walk to Willie Mays and Orlando Cepedas single. But Mays was nipped at the plate on first sacker Gordy Coleman's peg, after a little bouncer by Ed Bailey.

A leadoff single by Don Blasingame in the fourth and Frank Robinson's double—which pushed his hitting streak to 16 games—set the scene for Cincinnati's marker, on Coleman's sacrifice fly.

Three insurance markers came after the Giants went right to work on the Reds' second reliever Jay Hook, tagged for Jim Davenport's home run with Bailey on base and doubles by Sanford and Kuenn.

Chisox Shove Streak To 5 With Sweep

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox stretched their winning streak to five games Saturday and grabbed off their ninth victory in 12 starts by dealing the Baltimore Orioles 7-4 and 11-4 losses in a day-night doubleheader.

Roy Sievers' two-run pinch double cracked a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning of the first game while a six-run rally in the second inning of the nightcap proved too much for the Orioles to overcome.

Sievers, who had been sidelined with a pulled leg muscle, started the second game and led off the big second inning with a single. Later, he walked and forced in a run in the same frame in which the Sox banged out five singles, drew three walks and had a hit batsman while knocking Milt Pappas out of the box.

Floyd Robinson collected three hits in the first game including a two-run homer which highlighted a four-run rally in the fourth inning and Camilo Carreon had four hits in the second game.

Baltimore put up a fight in the opener by scoring four runs in the eighth inning to tie the score

YANKS WIN 11-9

Blanchard Back In Hero's Role

BOSTON (AP) — Incredible Johnny Blanchard followed the script by hitting another pinch-hit homer with two out in the ninth, igniting a storybok three-run comeback as New York defeated Boston, 11-9 Saturday.

Blanchard, whose grand slam pinch hit settled Friday night's 11-8 marathon, drove Gene Conley's first pitch deep into the right field seats, tying the score 9-9.

Relief pitcher Luis Arroyo, whose throwing error played a part in the Red Sox two-run eighth, doubled. Bobby Richardson then singled and Tony Kubek doubled — all first pitch hitting.

The brink of defeat salvage job put the American League leaders a full game ahead of rain-idled Detroit and gave Arroyo his second relief win in less than 24 hours.

Blanchard's homer was the fourth he had pinch hit this year.

Outhit 18-16 and outdone in the long ball department until the ninth, the Yankees stemmed the rallying Red Sox with Arroyo in the sixth inning.

New York's nervy little one-man rescue team [illegible] Boston until his error, another by second baseman Richardson, Vic Wertz' double, Jackie Jensen's single and Don Buddin's grounder nudged the Red Sox into the lead, 9-8.

Arroyo had singled earlier in the game and is batting 1.000 against the Red Sox this season with five for five.

Indians Down Twins Behind Grant's Job

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL — Jim (Mudcat) Grant tossed a six hitter and Woodie Held cracked a two-run homer Saturday as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Minnesota Twins 4-0.

Grant was in hot water several times but in each instance managed to escape unscathed. In the fifth and sixth innings, double plays got him out of trouble and in the first and fourth, the right-hander retired the side leaving a total of five twins on base.

It was Grant's 19th victory in 22 lifetime decisions over the Twins (old Washington Senators). His season record is now 9-4.

Held's 10th season homer and fourth here came in the fifth with the singling Chuck Essegian aboard.

The Indians opened the scoring in the first on a pair of singles, an error, a sacrifice and a sacrifice fly and counted another in the eighth on an error and Tito Francona's triple.

Loser was Jim Kaat (3-11).

Phils Clobber Cubs To Post One-Run Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies pounded out 15 hits and took advantage of shoddy defensive play by Chicago Saturday to defeat the Cubs 6-5, but not before a ninth-inning scare.

The Cubs almost pulled the game out in the final inning when Ed Bouchee opened with a single and scored on Jerry Kindall's eighth homer of the year.

Johnny Buzhardt, who had taken over for starter and winner Chris Short (4-6) in the sixth after the left-hander apparently tired, walked Tam Taylor then retired pinch hitter Richie Ashburn. Jack Baldschun replaced Buzhardt and retired Al Heist and Don Zimmer.

The Phillies' big innings were the third when they scored three runs and the seventh when they got two more, both times taking advantage of shoddy defensive play.

Doubles by Wes Covington, who got three hits, and Tony Gonzalez, who won Friday nights game with a homer, sparked the third inning rally.

Spahn's Blast Seals Braves' Win Over Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves edged Pittsburgh 5-4 Saturday with the winning run coming on a bases-empty homer by Warren Spahn.

The veteran Milwaukee pitcher smacked a leadoff homer into the upper tier of the right field stands in the third inning.

But he lasted only three innings and failed to nail down the 298th victory of his career.

WEIGHT CARRYING CHAMP

Kelso Catches-Up For 11th In Row

NEW YORK (AP) — Kelso proved to be one of the great weight carrying thoroughbreds of American racing history Saturday when he came from far behind in the $112,800 Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct and won under a crushing 136 pounds in a driving finish.

The 4-year-old horse from Mrs. Richard C. duPont's Bohemia Stable thus became the third horse to sweep the big handicap triple in one sesaon. They are the Metropolitan, Suburban and the Brooklyn—all $100,000 events.

Whisk Broom II did it in 1913 and Tom Fool slammed the big triple 40 years later. Furthermore only Discovery in 1936 and Tom Fool managed to win the Brooklyn under 136 pounds, top weight for any victor.

In winning his 11th consecutive race, Kelso took command midway down the home stretch and drew out in the final eighth of a mile for a 1¼ length victory over the Llangolen Farm's Divine Comedy.

Divine Comedy, ridden by Mickey Solomone, saved second place by a nose over the Calumet Farm's Yorky who, in turn, was a head in front of the Harbor View Farm's Francis S. J.J. Colandro's Our Hope finished fifth another 1¼ lengths behind Francis S.

The official sign was delayed when Pete Anderson, Our Hope's jockey, claimed that both Johnny Sellers aboard Yorky and Ismael Valenzuela on Francis S. had crowded him in the stretch. The stewards however disallowed the protest after viewing the motion pictures.

Kelso came over to Aqueduct from Belmont Park Friday with other horses in huge auto vans, convoyed by police escorts due to violence by striking grooms who are picketing both tracks because of a labor dispute.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro was the only escort Kelso, the 1960 horse of the year, needed on this hot afternoon where 35,013 customers sweltered in temperatures that went into the upper 90s.

The crowd bet Kelso down to 1-2 odds and he paid $3.00, $2.70 and $2.50. Divine Comedy, a 15-1 shot, returned $8.60 and $5.40 and Yorky, winner of the Widener and two other big Hialeah handicaps last winter, was $4.30 to show.

Yorky with 122 pounds overhauled Francis S in the last few yards to gain third money and if he hadn't been in close quarters along the rail he might have got second.

Kelso's lifetime earnings now total $559,745 and he may start in next Saturday's $100,000 Man o' War Handicap on the Aqueduct infield grass course.

There were fewer pickets around the Aqueduct gates Saturday and no repetition of Friday's violence. Many trainers reported their grooms were returning to work and one horseman estimated that things around the barns were 90 per cent normal.

Little Boys Queen Picked At Ferriday

FERRIDAY (Specail) — Mel DePrato, lovely blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. DePrato, is the new Miss Little Boys Baseball of Ferriday, 1961.

She was selected in the Sixth Annual Pageant, which was held at the Little Boys Baseball Park here.

The new queen of the little leaguers was crowned by Miss Little Boys Baseball of 1960, Miss Lawyn Chapman.

Alica Ann Littlejohn, the five-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle L. "Johnny" Littlejohn of Ridgecrest was named Miss Future Little Boys Baseball of Ferriday, in a contest which featured fourteen attractive little local misses.

Number Three was the magic word for the contestants Thursday night as far as the winners were concerned, with the girl given that number, named the winner in both categories.

Contestants for the 1961 crown in addition to the winner, included: Gale Watkins, Vicki Lynn Overton, Karen Lynn Pierce, Marsha White, Ilene Baroni, and Freda Brown.

The girls appeared in talent numbers as well as dressed in short evening dresses.

Contestants in the Future Miss contest ages three, four and five years, in additional to the winners included: Kay Greer, Pam Greene, Mary Lou Matulich, Roxie Goynes, Rebecca Bass, Pam Kimbrell, Linda Adams, Becky Smart, Loretta Lynn Littlejohn, Johnette Overton, Cindy Enterkin, Mary Miller, and Dee White.

Serving as master of ceremonies was George Perry, veteran league president of LBB.

Perry, who has been active in the Little Boys Baseball program since it was inaugurated, presented the trophy to Miss LBL in behalf of the league.

Mrs. Ray T. Bonnette, pageant chairman and director of the 1961 Little Boys League Show crowned the future Miss LBL.

J. W. Greathouse, president of the Ferriday Kiwanis Club presented Miss DePrato with a bouquet of red roses on behalf of the Kiwanis Club.

Burdick Leading Greenwood Meet

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — Burt Burdiuk of Baton Rouge, La., fired a 5-under-par 67 Saturday to forge ahead in the second round of the 14th annual Greenwood Invitational Golf Tournament.

Burdick's two-day total of 139 put him three strokes up on former winner Jim Pegues of Greenwood, with a 142.

Four strokes off the pace was Joe Corbett of Grenada with a one-under-par 36-hole total of 143.

Dudley Beard of Little Rock, Ark., and Bob Travis of Jackson, are knotted in fourth place with a par 144. Beard had a 72 Saturday and Travis 70.

Rounding out the top 10 were Joe Kirk of Greenville, 146, Wayne Williams Jr., Greenwood, 148, Don Fruge, Meridian and Dr. Sam Brister of Greenwood, each with 149 and Bob Robinson of Meridian, 150.

Angels Nudge Nats 7-6 On Koppe Single

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Koppe's single broke a ninth-inning tie Saturday night and brought the Los Angeles Angels their second straight victory over the Washington Senators, 7-6.

Right-hander Art Fowler, who held the Senators hitless the last 2 2-3 innings, picked up his fifth victory in seven decisions. Kutyna took the loss, his second against five victories.

A single by Bob Johnson brought in a run for Washington in the first, but the Angels scored twice in the same inning on a walk and singles by Pearson, Lee Thomas and George Thomas.

The Senators chased Angel starter Ken McBride in the second, when they scored three runs on four hits, including a two-run double by pitcher Tom Cheney.

Major League Averages

NEW YORK (AP)—Norm Cash of Detroit picked up 10 points on Elston Howard, the American League batting leader, and moved to within three points of the New York Yankee catcher Friday night.

Cash collected two hits in four tries and lifted his average two points to .356. Howard went hitless in five times at bat and his mark dropped eight points to .359. Howard has held the lead since July 7 when he took it from Cash.

Robert Clemente of Pittsburgh continues to set the National League pace with .356 followed by Frank Robinson, Cincinnati, .341.

Mickey Mantle of the Yankees hiked his home run total to 37, the top American League figure, by hitting one while teammate Roger Maris also had one and remained in the runner-up spot with 36. Willie Mays paces the National League with 28.

Crampton Gets Three-Stroke Edge

Ex-Australian Champ Shoots Under Par 67

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Former Australian Champion Bruce Crampton shattered par with a three-under 67 for a 54-hole total of 201 and a three - stroke lead Saturday in the $30,000 Milwaukee Open.

The 25-year-old Aussie, seeking his first major triumph since he won the Far East Open in Manila in 1959, went out in four-under par and then closed cautiously, taking a 36, to gain his advantage.

Deadlock for second with one round remaining were Bob Goalby, who matched Crampton's 67, and former Texas Christian star Don Massengale, with a 69.

Bracketed another stroke back at 205 were Canadian Open champion Jacky Cupit, Masters titlist Gary Player and veteran Fred Hawkins.

Cupit posted a 66 with the help of a 120-yard wedge shot out of the rough for an eagle 2 on the 10th hole. Player, unable to win a tournament since the Masters, continued his precision like play with a 69 to add to a pair of 68s, while Hawkins carded a fine 69.

Crampton, who has earned only $1,530 in 15 PGA co-sponsored tournaments this year, needed only 28 putts for the second straight day. He picked up four birdies on the front line with putts of five to nine feet. Coming back he offset some driving trouble with tremendous putting.

Former U.S. Open King Tommy Bolt had a 71 for a three-round total of 206. That left him a tie with Ohio State's NCAA champion Jack Nicklaus, Paul Harney, Gay Brewer Jr. and Bill Casper Jr. Nicklaus and Harney had 67s, Brewer a 68 and Casper a 70.

The top round of the tournament's third day was fired by Mac Main, a pro from Danville, Va. Main equalled Crampton's brilliant 64 of the second round and moved into a three-way tie at 207.

The field was trimmed to the top 60 pros and 10 amateurs for the final 18 holes Sunday.

New Bulldog Foes Will Be Away Battles

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech will play a nine-game grid schedule this fall, with two strong intersectional foes added to the state, according to Joe Aillet, athletic director and head football coach.

Tech won eight and lost two in 1960 and tied Southeastern for the Gulf States conference title.

The two clubs added to the Bulldog slate are Tennessee Tech and Arlington State, two teams which matched Tech's 8-2 record in 1960. Tennessee Tech played in the Tangerine Bowl, losing to The Citadel 27-0.

Other intersectional opponents will be Arkansas State and Mississippi Southern. The other five tilts will be against Gulf States conference elevens.

The Tech schedule:

Sept. 23 — Arkansas State at Ruston at 8 p.m.

Sept. 30 — McNeese State at Lake Charles at 8 p.m.

Oct. 7 — U. of Southwestern at Ruston at 8 p.m.

Oct. 14 — Arlington State at Arlington, Tex., at 7:30 p.m.

Oct. 21 — Northwestern State at Shreveport at 8 p.m.

Oct. 28 — Tenn. Tech at Cookeville, Tenn., at 7:30 p.m.

Nov. 4 — Southeastern at Hammond at 8 p.m.

Nov. 11 — Miss. Southern at Ruston at 8 p.m.

Nov. 18 — Northeast State at Ruston at 8 p.m.

British Cuppers Scratch Swedes

BASTAAD, Sweden (AP)—Britain escaped elimination in the European Zone Davis Cup semifinals Saturday by defeating Sweden's doubles, 6-3, 6-1, 8-6. Sweden, winner of the first two singles matches Friday holds a 2-1 edge going into Sunday's two final singles.

Bobby Wilson and Tony Pickard of Britain defeated Ulf Schmidt and Jan-Eric Lundquist in the doubles match. Pickard replaced Mike Sangster just one before the match, in order to save Sangster for Sunday's crucial match. The winner will meet Italy for the European Zone title.

IN INTERNATIONAL TRACK

United States Captures Third Straight Victory

LONDON (AP) —The U.S. track team, crippled by so many injuries that even the wounded are being pressed into service, defeated Great Britain 13-7 Saturday for its third international victory in eight days.

Last weekend Coach Jumbo Elliott's operatives defeated Russia 13 - 9. On Wednesday and Thursday they turned back West Germany at Stuttgart 14-6.

On the basis of a 5-3-2-1 scoring table, the Americans came out on top against Britain, 122-88. Next weekend they tangle with Poland at Warsaw.

The U. S. women's team, which hadn't been conceded a chance, split 10 events with the British girls but on the same point basis it lost the decision, 56-50.

The top individual performances were turned in by the British in scoring two upsets.

A 19-year-old, Alf Metcalfe, led the British quartet to a 3:07 victory in the mile relay with a fantastic :45.3 anchor leg. In the process he overcame a 3 - yard lead given Ulis Williams.

The other big reversal was in the 220-yard dash, which Dave Jones won in :21.2. He defeated Frank Budd of Villanova, who was credited with the same time. This was Budd's third defeat of the year—all in the 220 or 200 meters.

The top American performance was turned in by Jim Beatty, who won the mile in 3:59.7—the first sub-4-minute mile in Britain this year. It also was Beatty's third mile under 4 minutes. His best performance is 3:58.

But his duel with Dyrol Burleson, American record holder, never came off. Burleson showed up with a bad leg and had to scratch. "An injury I received in Moscow started to bother me when we arrived at the field," said Burleson.

Right behind Beatty in the mile was Mike Berlesford of Britain, who was caught in 4:02.1. Jim Grelle, Burleson's substitute, was third in 4:03.7.

With his team all but falling apart through illnesses and injuries, Cocah Elliott pressed John Uelses, who has a groin injury, into action in the pole vault.

He could do only 13 feet, 9 inches, but it won second place behind Henry Wadsworth of Miami, who did 15-2.

Cliff Cushman of Grand Forks, N. D., had an attack of dysentery less than an hour before the 440-yard hurdles. He finished second to teammate Dixon Farmer. Both were caught in 51.3. Cushman was so ill he couldn't stay on the field to receive his prize.

Earl Young still was laid low by a fever but finished third behind Jones and Budd in the 220.

Elliott had to keep him out of the mile relay, but it's doubtful if anyone could have held off Metcalfe. His leg was four-tenths of a second under Glenn Davis' world 440 mark of :45.7, but since it was on a relay it doesn't count.

Farmer, Jerry Siebert and Adolph Plummer handled the baton for the U. S. team and had a comfortable margin until Metcalfe took over. Norman Futter, Barry Jackson and Robbie Brightwell ran in front of Metcalfe.

The other U.S. victories were routine and expected. Ralph Boston, the world record holder, cleared 25-1¾ to win the broad jump—nothing more than a good work-out for him.

George Young came on in the final stride to catch his Ft. Lee, Va., teammate, Deacon Jones, and won the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:47. It was so close that Jones also was timed in 8:47.

Jay Silvester led the American team to a 1-2 finish in the discus throw with a 183-9½ toss. Bob Humphreys was second with a 182-3 flip.

Great Britain had one sweep—in the 6-mile run. Basil Heatley and Martin Hyman finished in a dead-heat for first in 28:01. The other British victory was scored by Howard Payne, who got off a 198-1 toss in the hammer throw.

The American girls had a 3-1 lead going into Saturday's events but could win only two more—the 100-yard dash and the 440-yard relay. Willye White captured the 100 in :10.9 with Wilma Rudolph sitting on the sidelines resting her leg-strain fort he relay.

The relay team of Miss White, Ernestine Pollards, Vivian Brown and Miss Eudolph whipped to a :45.5 victory.

AND RESERVEES

Draft Expansion To Claim Players

If President Kennedy calls up the reserves and expands the draft, big league baseball could lose some of its most promising young players.

Most of the 18 major league clubs have players who served six months in some branch of the service during the off season and then went into the reserves.

However, some of the younger players are married and have children so there is no way of telling at this point how an individual club might be affected if a state of emergency should be declared.

The New York Yankees, for instance, have three players in the reserves who served six months during the winter. They are shortstop Tony Kubek and pitchers Bill Stafford and Ralph Terry.

The Detroit Tigers have third baseman Steve Boros in the active reserve and shortstop Dick McAuliffe, a 21-year-old rookie, could be subject to the draft.

Baltimore has four regulars who have served six-month hitches. They are third baseman Brooks Robinson, shortstop Ron Hansen and pitchers Steve Barber and Chuck Estrada.

Among the top teams in the National League younger players on Cincinnati include first baseman Gordon Coleman, catchers Jerry Zimmerman and John Edwards and pitchers Sherman Jones and Howie Nunn.

San Francisco reports catcher John Orsino, recently recalled from the minors, is the only player in active military status. He is a National Guardsman.

Milwaukee's rookie pitcher Bob Hendley and catcher Bob Taylor both served six months and are in the reserves. None of the regulars is in the reserve or guard.

Outfielder Curt Flood and pitchers Bob Miller and Craig Anderson of the St. Louis Cardinals have served six months and must report for two weeks army training each year.

The Chicago Cubs have young players like infielders Jerry Kindall and Ron Santo, outfielder Billy Williams, and pitchers Jim Brewer and Dick Ellsworth who might be subject to military draft.

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh had no information on their players.

The Chicago White Sox report they do not believe any of their players would be affected. Among the few players under 30, outfielders Floyd Robinson and Jim Landis already have put in service hitches.

Cleveland has pitchers Dick Stigman, Wynn Hawkins, Jim Grant, Jim Perry, and Frank Funk—almost its entire pitching staff—plus outfielder Don Dillard in the reserves.

Pitcher Bill Monbouquette, second baseman Chuck Schiller and outfielder Gary Geiger of the Boston Red Sox are in the reserves. Rookie outfielder Carl Yastrzemski is married and has two children. Pitcher Don Schwall could be a borderline case.

Kansas City has nine men in the military reserve. They are pitchers Jerry Walker, Ed Rakow, Billy Kunkel and Norm Bass, infielders Wayne Causey, Dick Howser, Deron Johnson and Lou Klimchock and outfielder Jay Hankins.

Minnesota Twin officials said they had no information about the reserve, National Guard or draft status of their players.

$147,800 STAKE

Whitney's Dancer Takes Hollywood

INGLEWOOD Calif. (AP) — Rattle Dancer, the lesser light in the eton blue silks of C. V. Whitney, raced to victory in the $147,800 Hollywood Juvenile Championship at Hollywood Park Saturday.

The sometimes erratic son of Native Dancer, ridden by apprentice Bobby Yanez, came on with a rush to haul down the $102,800 winner's purse in a furious stretch duel of 2-year-olds.

Rattle Dancer, who just last Thursday in an overnight race stunned the weekday gathering with a win at long odds, defeated Doc Jocoy by about a neck with Indian Blood third.

Whitney's more renowned Killoqua, second and third in two previous stakes, finished out of the money.

Maine Chance Farm's Gun Glory, favorite with the crowd of 52,000, never was a threat and also finished well out of the money in racing to only his second loss in five trips to the post.

The time for the 6 furlongs — a distance none of the colts had ever tried before—was 1:09 4-5.

The Whitney colt returned $13.20 $6.20 and $4.20. Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Sternberger's Doc Jocoy paid $19.30 and $11.60 and the Rancho Rio Hondo's Indian Blood $5.60 for third.

The field was reduced to 13 when Port of Mecca was declared out due to the sudden death of his young owner, Fred Tuerk, Jr., of Chicago.

Port of Mecca had raced well in his last three starts, all stakes at Aqueduct, Arlington Park and Suffolk Downs. Jockey Johnny Longden, winner of $100,000-added attractions on the last two weekends, was to have ridden Port of Mecca.

The 13 youngsters took off like a pack of juvenile delinquents and portions of the race took on solid roughness, but there were no claims of foul.

It was still Killoqua heading into the stretch and Rattle Dancer lagging back along in sixth place.

From there on it was Rattle Dancer and Doc Jocoy head to head and Indian Blood, usually a stretch runner, trying to get in third.

This was the seventh start for Rattle Dancer, his third win and first stakes triumph. In a previous stake, Native Dancer's roan son was stubborn and they had a hard time getting a saddle on him.

Gun Glory, with Ray York aboard, and Indian Blood, ridden by Angel Valenzuela, carried 122 pounds apiece. The others packed 116.

Ferriday Will Host 1st Tilt Of Play-Offs

FERRIDAY (Special) — Oak Grove and Ferriday will play the first game of a best-of-three series to decide a fifth district Little Boys Baseball champion tomorrow night at 8 in Ferriday.

Both teams won their sub-district tournaments without a loss. Oak Grove took the Epps sub-district by defeating Lake Providence 11-1 Friday night, and Ferriday's stars beat Mangham 8-4 in the finals of the Ferriday sub-district, also on Friday.

The winner of the upcoming series will represent the fifth district in the Louisiana state Little Boys tournament, scheduled for a July 31 beginning in De Ridder.

The fifth district play-off will be on a home and home basis. The first game will be played in Ferriday, and the second in Oak Grove.

Dixie League Playoff To Be In Farmerville

FARMERVILLE (Special) — The North Louisiana Dixie League playoff will start here Monday night at 6:30 p.m. and run through Wednesday with the opening action beginning the same time each night.

Play will be on the Farmerville High baseball diamond which has been renovated for Dixie League play.

Arnold Qualifies For Swiss Finals

GSTAAD, Switzerland (AP)—Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif., qualified for the women's singles final of the Swiss National Tennis Tournament Saturday by defeating Renee Schuurman of South Africa, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Her opponent in Sunday's final still is to be determined. Yolanda Ramirez of Mexico, was leading Renee Schuurman of South Africa 7-5, 5-5, when play was halted because of rain.

In men's singles, Luis Ayala of Chile, spilled Rod Laver, Australia's recent winner of the Wimbledon, 6-1, 6-3. Sunday he opposes Roy Emerson, Australian Davis Cupper. Emerson defeated Miguel Santana of Spain 6-3, 6-1, Saturday.

Little Boys Rained Out; Play Monday

Heavy rains yesterday afternoon postponed the third round of the Fourth District Little Boys Baseball tournament currently being played in West Monroe.

The games which were scheduled for Saturday will be played Monday, July 24. This will make the tournament last one day longer than originally planned.

Westside West Monroe vs. South Bossier at 4 p.m.

Waivers Asked

WEST DE PERE, Wis. (AP)— The Green Bay Packers of the National Football League asked waivers Saturday on two freshmen quarterbacks, Roger Johnson of Whitewater, Wis., State College and Danny Bridges of the University of Southwest Louisiana.

CONFIRMS MACPHAIL

Carry Back Sold To Sagner Group

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — Larry MacPhail confirmed Saturday that Saggy, sire of Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner Carry Back, had been sold to a syndicate headed by Standley Sagner.

"The horse will stand here (at MacPhail's Glenangus Farm) and be under my management," MacPhail said.

But the 71-year-old former major league baseball executive declined to disclose the plans for syndication. That will be done at a press conference he has called for Sunday at his fashionable 1,000 acre farm about 20 miles northeast of Baltimore.

A story in the Baltimore Evening Sun, written by racing editor William Boniface, said the plan reportedly "calls for the selling of 32 shares at $5,000 a share."

That would put Saggy's value at $160,000 compared with the $4,700 Sagner paid for the little chestnut in 1946. Kentucky - bred Saggy came to Maryland as a yearling, one of 12 purchased by Joseph Flanagan from Greentree Stud.

Before Carry Back's rise to prominence, the 16-year-old Saggy's main claim to fame was his upset victory over the great Citation in the 6-furlong Chesapeake Trial at Havre de Grace, April 12, 1948. It was Citation's only defeat in 20 starts as a 3-year-old.

Saggy's stud fee rose steadily as Carry Back won race after race early this year, and it now stands at $2,500.

MacPhail cut down his racing interests considerably last May because of ill health, selling 55 thoroughbreds at public auction for $337,900.

Dove Season Split; Opens September 17

Louisiana dove hunters will get a 70-day split season in 1961-62, with the first half beginning on September 2 and extending through September 17, it was announced yesterday by the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

The second half of the season will begin on November 11, and end after January 3, 1962.

A daily limit of 12 and possession limit of 24 will be enforced. Legal shooting hours are from noon until sunset.

The early opening date is favorable enjoy their best hunters who enjoy their best hunting in early September.

In addition, the commission announced the seasons on rails and gallinules, woodcock, and snipe.

They are:

Rails and Gallinules :50 day consecutive season, starting October 7 and running through November 25. Bag limit is 25 sora rails, or 15 other rails and gallinules. Shooting hours sunrise to sunset.

Woodcock: 40 days consecutive, beginning December 7 and lasting through January 15. The bag limit is four, and possession limit eight. Sunrise to sunet.

Snipe: 30 days, starting on December 2 and ending December 31. Bag and possession limit eight.

Palmer Wants PGA Crown

CHICAGO (AP)—A determined Arnold Palmer next week will try to win the biggest jewel still missing from his golfing crown—the Professional Golfers' Association of America Championship.

Unquestionably, Palmer will be the man to beat as a field of 169 begin the four-day 72-hole medal play competition Thursday at the historic North Course of Olympia Fields Country Club, 25 miles south of Chicago's loop.

The PGA title is the big one Palmer, fresh from his British Open conquest, has yet to haul in. The 1954 USGA amateur champion won the USGA Open in 1960 and the Masters in 1958 and 1960.

The North Course has enough trees to start a lumber camp, and its 6,722 yards hug the Butterfield Creek valley terrain with such tightness that traffic lights might be needed for sizeable galleries.

The competitive record against its 35-35—70 par is 31-34—65, set by Lawson Little in 1940 in qualifying for the USGA Open.

The North Course got its first major tournament baptism in 1925 when Walter Hagen won the PGA championship. The Haig returned to Olympia Fields to win the 1927 Western Open.

In 1928 the club was the scene of Johnny Farrell's memorable 36-hole playoff victory over Bobby Jones (143-144) for the National Open title. They had tied at 294.

The North Course fits Palmer. Olympia Fields veteran pro, Chuck Tanis, says:

"The PGA championship will be won by the pro who can play long, well-placed position shots from the tee, a bold iron player who will go for the pin, and the bold putter who will charge the back of the cup."

Last June 6, Palmer shot a 69 over the North Course to defeat defending PGA champion, Jay Hebert, by four strokes to climax national golf week.

Palmer dropped a 55-yard wedge shot for an eagle 3 on the first hole and had a struggle with par thereafter. At that time he predicetd a 72-hole score of from 277 to 280 would win the PGA. Hebert said he would settle for an even par 280. The course has been toughened since.

By winning, Palmer could replace South Africa's Gary Player as the year's leading money winner. Player, who has won 3 out of 20 tournaments entered, has $53,969 in winnings. Palmer, who has 5 victories in 18 meets, has $50,585.

The tournament has a guaranteed purse of $30,000 and admissions are expected to boost this to more than $50,000, which would provide from $9,000 to $10,000 to the winner.

Last year at Akron attendance for a PGA championship was an all time high of 53,509 for the four days. The purse reached $65,000 with Hebert getting $11,000 as champion.

Player, who can become the first foreign-born player to win the PGA since Jim Ferrier of Australia in 1947, this week tied the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Country Club competitive course record of five - under - par 66 in defeating Palmer by three strokes in an exhibition. Palmer said he was finding it difficult making the switch from the smaller British golf ball.

The lowest PGA championship round since the tournament was changed to stroke play in 1958 was a 65 by Jerry Barber at Minneapolis in 1959. The record winning 72-hole tally is 276 by Dow Finsterwald in 1958 at Havertown, Pa.

Battle Shapes For Saraha

By PAUL EVE

PARIS (UPI) — The Tunisian claim to part of the Sahara is just as important as its more headline-catching drive to force the French to evacuate the Bizerte air and naval gase.

A battle is shaping up for possession of the Sahara, an area four times the size of France which came under French rule because no one else seemed to want it.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba's claim gives new international significance to the desert.

The Sahara was a wasteland when France assumed responsibility for it. But it is now producing oil and natural gas,and there is a possibility that more riches are hidden beneath the paths the camels have trodden for centuries.

For years, French school children learned from their textbooks that the Sahara was part of Algeria. No one but the novelists paid much attention to it.

LARGELY UNEXPLORED

It was part of French North Africa, sterile, much of it unexplored, a vast empty space where water was more valuable than money and where the number of trees in any spot denoted land's taxable value.

It was not until 1928 that the French began to wonder if the great territory contained anything of value. Efforts to seek oil began in 1930's but it was not until after World War II that they started in earnest.

Two years after the Algerian Moslem National Liberation front (FLN) started its war against the French in Algeria, oil began to flow in commercial quantities from wells at Edjele.

There were other finds. But prospectors also came across another natural phenomenon which in time may prove to have been more valuable.

The wells at Hassi R'Mel produced a natural gas that could be piped to Europe for the great factories of France, Spain and even Germany and Britain. The supply appeared almost inexhaustable.

OIL CREATES FORTUNES

n 1958 when the government placed oil stocks on the Paris Stock Exchange, fortunes were made. Some shares increased value by 1,000 per cent in six months. France was freed from dependence on hostile Middle East sources of supply for her rapidly multiplying motor transportation and factories.

Prudently, against the possibility that France would have some day to give up Algeria, the French passed a law in 1957 which declared the Sahara to be a territory separate from Algeria.

Thus it was obvious when the French and the Algerian rebel government based in Tunis sat down around the conference table at Evian-Les-Bains in May that the Sahara would play a big part in the bargaining.

The rebels said it time after time in speeches at Evian that the Sahara was part of Algeria and their could be no separating the two. They rejected any other view and no compromise was possible.

French diplomats believe this attitude has not changed and is not likely to change.

This week another eye was cast on the Sahara.

Tunisia's strong man president declared that the time had come to assert full Tunisian sovereignty over all her territory. This raised the question of getting the French out of Bizerte, but Bourguiba sent patrols marching south from the point where the Libyan, Tunisian and Saharan borders meet.

It was only a short distance, less than 10 miles. But if the Tunisians succeed they will be on the road to the richest of the Saharan wells at Edjele.

For the poverty-stricken Tunisian economy, a stake in the Saharan wealth would be a terrific shot in the arm.

Castro Put On Spot By U.S. Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States offer of a free airlift to 20,000 people wanting to flee Cuba dramatizes some of the unhappy aspects of the situation in that country at an inconvenient time for Fidel Castro.

The offer puts Prime Minister Castro on the spot. And it does so at a bad time for him, psychologically. For many weeks, preparations have been under way to build up into a giant propaganda spectacle the festivities celebrating the July 26 anniversary date of the Castro movement.

The U.S. proposal unquestionably will tend to take the edge off any dramatic developments Castro may have been planning for propaganda effects outside Cuba.

If Castro allows the 20,000 Cubans to leave their homeland, the emotional jolt of such an exodus could be powerful within Cuba. If he refuses, he flies in the face of Latin American tradition, where the right of asylum for opponents of existing regimes has been followed for many years.

In any event, the U.S. offer of free transportation points up the desire of thousands of Cubans to leave their homeland, just as thousands have fled the Communist rule in East Berlin. The comparison between anti-Communist Germans in East Berlin and anti-Communist Cubans within Cuba is almost inevitable.

Reports here indicate the Castro regime hopes to turn the July 26 ceremonies into a huge event to try to make the Cubans forget their troubles. Cuba is expected to be on holiday from midnight of July 25 to midnight of July 27.

Russell Long Vows Battle On Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Saturday pledged an all-out effort to strip the Senate's $4,326,500,000 foreign aid bill of the five-year borrowing authority requested by President Kennedy and voted by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Although Long's announcement reflected the still strong opposition to the long-range financing, Kennedy's backers were more optimistic than ever of retaining the provision.

The President's own pleas, the mounting Berlin crisis, and other factors were credited with blunting some of the opposition and paving the way for formal committee approval of the bill Monday.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said the Senate probably will begin debate on the measure late next week.

Long, a committee member, said he would introduce an amendment to knock out the long-range financing proposal and also would support moves to cut the bill's money amounts.

Sen. John J. Sarkmna, D-Ala., another committee member, predicted "The Senate as a whole' will approve the program with the method of financing that has been customary in the past."

Sparkman pointed out that other government programs, such as the Commodity Credit Corp., the housing agencies, etc., have been financed by treasury borrowing for years.

He said in a broadcast for Southern stations that "It's a little hard to understand why there has been so much ruckus over it in past years and...why there is so much discussion about it in connection with the foreign aid bill this year when Congress has, during this year, passed three different measures with this type of financing in them."

Itching Powder Is Tossed On Store 'Sitters'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — At least three persons have been arrested in a melee at a downtown drug store here that started when white customers reportedly threw itching power on Negro sit-in demonstrators.

Officials of the Memphis chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said that two Negroes and one white man were arrested in the fracas. One of the Negroes, Calvin Williams, was released after his fine was paid by the NAACP. The other, Vernon Robinson, 17, was taken to juvenile court.

The confused fight began when several white customers, some of whom were reported to be sailors, apparently threw itching powder on Negroes taking part in an NAACP sponsored sit-in at Walgreen's Drug Store. The Negroes reported the incident to the police, who made the arrests.

GIRLS ACCEPTED

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—Baghdad University announced Friday girls will be accepted for the first time in the College of Sharia, which specializes in Islamic law. Twenty-five girls will enroll this year, the university announced.

New Residents and Wedding Belles

Monroe Morning World

July 23

Popular new resident of Monroe is Mrs. Paul Tennis, who with her husband, Dr. Tennis, recently moved to the city from New Orleans. The Tennises have established a home at 2304 Hawthorne. Mrs. Tennis is the niece of Mrs. Henry Bernstein Jr., 1704 Riverside.

Welcomed by the city's young married set are Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Cudd III and daughter, newcomers to Monroe from Shreveport. Mrs. Cudd and baby daughter, Leslie, 6 months old, are pictured in the garden at their home, 1601 N. Second. Mr. Cudd formerly resided in Monroe and Mrs. Cudd is a native of Rayville.

Mrs. Robert William Rea, prior to her marriage yesterday, July 22 in Grace Episcopal Church was Miss Vevie Lynn Weir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weir, 723 Lakeshore Drive. Mr. Rea is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rea, 1010 N. Second. The couple will establish a home at Henderson, Nevada.

BELOW: Miss Jayne Lyles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Elwyn Lyles of Mangham, will become the bride of James Reece Dear, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Dear of Baskin on August 24. The ceremony will take place at 7:30 p.m. in Baskin Baptist church.

Announcement is made today by Mr. and Mrs. David E. Brown of West Monroe, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Madeleine to James Henry Hinton. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hinton, also of West Monroe. A September wedding is planned in Edgewood Baptist Church.

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Travis Moore Turner to Armand Enochs Breard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Vaughan Breard of Monroe, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chapman Turner of Atlanta, Georgia. The wedding will take place September 22 at the Cathedral of Christ the King in Atlanta, with the Nuptial Mass to be followed by a reception at the Cherokee Town and Country Club.

We cannot repeat too often that any old excuse is good for a party. Whether for an anniversary, a going-away, a coming-home, an old-timer or an out-of-town visitor, a gathering of congenial souls is the best way to celebrate.

A most unusual reason motivated the surprise luncheon given Wednesday for LILLIE MAE POMEROY. Her husband, GEORGE, had left that morning before day for a Methodist meeting in Oslo, Norway, to be followed by several weeks abroad. So at noon a group of about a dozen friends arrived with covered dishes to cheer Lillie Mae.

As may be imagined, this meal consisted of one of the most elegant - sounding menus of the week, fried chicken, barbecued ham, asparagus casserole, squash souffle, and assorted salads. Desserts included choice of chocolate almond pie, fresh figs in whipped cream on muffins, and chocolate ice - box cake.

Only reason for a party that could be considered less than cheerful is when the unfortunate honoree is preparing to move away from Monroe. ANN WELCH TERZIA, who is to leave for Baton Rouge in August, was honoree at a luncheon given Thursday by ANNE WESTROM and TEEDEE DIXON in the Westrom home . . . A tier of crystal cake stands held an arrangement of green hydrangeas, green pears, and green apples, with variegated foliage . . . Chicken in a sauce of sherry and mushrooms was served with a rice casserole and a Bing cherry and almond salad; lemon ice box pie for dessert.

Popular out - of - town visitor here for the past two weeks has been BETTY BARRON, guest of LAURALEE BRISBIN. Betty, who leaves today to return home to New Orleans, was honored Tuesday with a swimming party given by CAROL GENUNG. Highland Park country club was scene of the affair.

Thursday morning Lauralee invited about thirty members of the high school set for a conversational hour, honoring Betty. Guests gathered on the Brisbin patio, which was decorated with watermelon crepe myrtle and greenery. Soft drinks were served from a wheelbarrow filled with ice. Tiny "aprons" on the bottles were favors given to each guest.

Our visitor from Italy, FAY WINK, was honored at a bridge luncheon given Tuesday by JEAN DIXON in her home on Glenmar. On the menu were poulet marango, Alabama biscuits, and custard with cookies for dessert . . . Two tables played bridge after lunch, with CHARLOTTE BRIGHT winning high; JANE PLITT, traveling prize; and LIBBY ATKINSON, low.

Libby, incidentally, returned last weekend from a four weeks trip around South America. One may imagine that conversation at this party was all about foreign climes.

On their twenty - fifth wedding anniversary, MARIE LOUISE and GEORGE SNELLINGS, JR., were surprised with a party engineered by a group of intimates. Guests arrived bringing a centerpiece of silvered magnolia leaves and daisies, and "fixings" for a roast beef buffet supper. AINSLIE and GEORGE SNELLINGS III made a surprise visit from Baton Rouge for the party . . The Dukes played for dancing on the spacious back porch at the Snellings home.

Here from Cookeville, Tennessee, is JESSIE LEE LAMB, who is visiting her mother, HORTENSE TOUCHSTONE. Wednesday afternoon JANE OLIVER invited a group of former schoolmates for a conversational hour and visit with Jessie Lee. About twenty - five gathered in the den at the Oliver home, which was decorated with orange and bronze zinnias in a wooden container. In the dining room, GEORGIE TOUCHSTONE served punch from the milk glass service. Carrying out the color theme was the centerpiece of pale lemon yellow zinnias in a milk glass compote.

Members of Revelers Dance club are anticipating the summer party, scheduled for this coming Saturday night at the Paragon. "Come for a Cruise on the SS Revelers" said the invitations, mailed last week. Sport shirts and cruise clothes will be the order of the evening, with Jerry Lane and his orchestra playing for dancing from nine until one. Hors d'oeuvres will be served at intermission.

One of the first "new homes" ever visited by this column was that of the SOL COURTMANS. Bess and Sol purchased the old Fink home on Miltch and Myrtle and completely remodelled and redecorated it. Now, several years later, the latest addition has been completed, and we had the privilege of inspecting it last week.

Materials used were obtained from the old Bynum home on Grammont. These are incorporated into a home - like family room which opens from both dining room and breakfast room of the original house.

An old - fashioned gallery stretches across the front of the room, with a bannister of turned posts taken from the old house. The double doors are flanked with panes of frosted glass which formed the original skylight. The room is panelled and floored with cypress from the old house.

To the right of the entrance are the doors into the main house, three steps ups. A serving counter of old brick is built - in between these two doors. Above hangs a copper molding rescued by Bess from the old New Orleans library when it was demolished some years back. An old round dining table, rubbed red, is encircled with dainty antique chairs cushioned in a red and white print.

Two pairs of chairs, one blue and one black, are used with the sofa to furnish the living area. Old chests, refinished by Bess, hold a pair of pewter lamps, only new purchases made for this interesting room.

Across from the entrance, doors open onto the carport, which, with its bannisters and latticed walls, doubles as a patio room. In the space between carport and house, an old tree overhanging the fountain set in the wall provides shade and a charming spot for outdoor visiting.

Another house using material taken from an old home is that built by MAE PETTIT in Lakeshore addition. Three chimneys from the Speed home on Pine street yielded enough brick to veneer the little house.

Framing and oak flooring in tiny strips came from the Speed house. In the living room is the old mantel, and in the breakfast room, a bay window made of tiny panes of bevelled glass set in lead strips. An antique tester bed, formerly belonging to the Speeds, is right at home here. The patio at the back of the house features an iron bannister made of old window guards.

From the patio, a winding path leads to the bayou's edge, where the outdoor kitchin is located. A divider wall which includes an indoor barbecue and storage shelves separates living and service areas. Shiny marble - faced green brick from the old Bernhardt home on North Third are used in the construction of this wall.

One of our human failings, as I see it, has been our admiration for the "Middle - of - the - roader." Certainly many of us agree that the exercise of restraint is one of the marks of the good man. But in some areas compromise is flabby and dangerous. Any person of real conviction and strength must choose one side of the road or the other. It would be a strange kind of education that urged us to be "relatively" honest, "sometimes" just, "usually" tolerant, "for the most part" decent.

As you read history and biography, I think you will not come to equate greatness with compromise. Rather, you will find it in decisiveness, combined with charity, gentleness and justice. There will be some wrong decisions, of course, but as long as mistakes are recognized the loss is far less serious than that occasioned by playing the middle of the road, sitting on the fence, undecided, unconvinced, incapable of strong feeling.

Life should be a continuing search for those people, those ideas and those causes to which we can gladly and wholly give ourselves.

There are no words . . .

He is the grandson of Mrs. W. L. Perry and the late Mr. Perry and the late Mr. and Mrs J. A. Culpepper.

Fall Fabrics Shown At Club Event

A colorful fall fabric showing highlighted the Ladies Day luncheon event at Highland Park Country club Wednesday afternoon.

Approximately 100 club members and guests attended the luncheon in the main dining room, which was gay with bouquets of summer flowers.

Fabrics introduced represented the new fall line for fashion wear from the Fabric House in Monroe, presented by Egon Lewis, who also made line drawings to illustrate the new fall look.

Among fabrics shown were imported boucle type dress woolens in magenta, a rich purple heavily imbued with red; the new greens including ming, emerald and loden and the spice colors, popular for the new season. Wool crepe in spice colors and deep browns and royal blue were also displayed along with the new woven Scandinavian design fall cottons.

A gay note was added by the new "Mad" prints and the elegant was represented in an emerald green and royal blue hand screen print.

A question and answer session followed Mr. Lewis's talk on fall fashions. Three door prizes were awarded following luncheon.

The future bridegroom attended U. S. Coast Guard officer candidate school and served as an ensign. He is presently in graduate school at Georgia Tech, studying toward a Master of Science degree in Industrial management.

Vows Unite Della Graves, Mr. Allen

Miss Della Graves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wright Graves, Lake Providence, became the bride of Richard Dee Allen, Nashville, Tenn., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Spencer Allen of Red wood, Miss., on Friday, July 14 in a double ring ceremony at the Lake Providence Church of Christ.

Wrought iron candelabra between two large baskets of magnolia blooms and foliage formed a setting for the 7:30 p.m. ceremony performed by Paul Ayers, Oxford, Miss., minister of the Church of Christ. Candles based with ivy were placed in the windows.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace over slipper satin. Seed pearls embroidered front of the moulded bodice with bateau neckline and short satin sleeves. The full skirt was edged with deep scallops. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a circle of lace and she carried a white Bible topped with a bouquet of white feathered carnations encircling cymbidium orchids.

The bride's sisters served as her attendants. Mrs. Ted Moody of Tulsa, Okla., was matron of honor and Miss Imogene Graves, maid of honor. They wore identical gowns of pastel blue embossed taffeta in sheath style with basque bodices and each carried a colonial bouquet of Frenched pink carnations and maline with shower streamers. Their picture hats of blue net were crowned with flowers of the dress material.

Miss Kimberly Sue Jowers, Monroe, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a full-skirted frock similar to the other attendants and carried a basket of red rose petals. Her headdress was a bandeau of lace with cluster of ribbon falling down the back. Ringbearer was Rickie Parker.

Raymond Allen, twin brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and groomsman was Tommy Boyd of Tallulah.

Mrs. Graves wore for her daughter's wedding a navy and white polka dot cotton with wide brimmed straw hat, white accessories and a white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Allen, wore a lace-trimmed voile in sky blue, with blue flower hat and shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Graves home in the Transylvania area. Miss Audrey Johnston presided over the bride's book. The refreshment table, covered with an eggshell lace cloth was centered with the attendants' bouquets. The crystal punch bowl and tiered wedding cake at opposite ends were presided over by Miss LaVerne Driver and Mrs. Ted Moody. Mrs. Wayne Jowers and Mrs. Billy Alford assisted in the courtesies and Miss DeWana Ray, Calhoun, cousin of the bride, distributed pink and white rice bags.

For a wedding trip to their future home in Nashville, Tenn., the bride wore a pink luster cotton dress with white accessories and the orchids from her bouquet. Mr. Allen will attend David Lipscomb College in Nashville and pastor a church in Mooresville, Tenn.

Hint Of A Tint

Forthcoming Area Nuptials Are Announced

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Feltman, New Orleans, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kathleen Marie Bernard to Roy Thomas Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Holland Sr., of Winnfield.

Driving Blind

NEW YORK (UPI) — The alert driver keeps his eyes on the road —but doesn't see it sometimes. A report in "Missouri Medicine" notes that the average person blinks his eyes about 25 times a minute, each blink averaging about 0.2 second. At this rate, during a 10-hour drive at 40 miles per hour, it's estimated the driver's traveled about 33 miles with his eyes shut.

Nuts On Shelling

NEW YORK (UPI) — A shift in consumer buying has placed a great deal of emphasis on shelled nuts. It seems no one cares to shell nuts.

Look, for example, what's happened to almonds. Currently 90 per cent of the almond crop is shelled before it goes to market. Twenty years ago, reports the California Foods Research Institute, the opposite was true, with only 10 per cent shelled.

MRS. FLOYD LESTARJETTE MARTIN

Floyd L. Martin, Bride On Nassau Wedding Trip

Vows uniting Miss Sally Ann Field, Alexandria, and Floyd Lestarjette Martin, were solemnized Saturday, July 22 at 7:30 p.m. in St. James Episcopal Church at Alexandria. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hancock Field of Alexandria and Mr. Martin is the son of Mrs. James E. Marshall, Metairie and the late Floyd Leon Martin, Monroe.

Five altar vases of gladioli and specimen chrysanthemums interspersed with seven-branched candelabra entwined with confederate jasmine, each centered with a basket of chrysanthemums, gladioli and tuberoses formed a setting for the exchange of vows.

Officiating clergyman was the Rev. Donald George of the Chapel of the Holy Spirit, New Orleans, assisted by The Rev. James E. Marshall. Mrs. Philip Hathorn, organist, presented traditional nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of peau de soie, with scoop neckline and short sleeved bodice frosted with imported Alencon lace. The side swept waistline with pleated taffeta midriff ended in a self bow and the full skirt swept into a fan shaped train. Her triple tiered wedding veil was held in place by a tiny crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white butterfly roses with ivy.

Mrs. Morgan W. Walker Jr., sister of the bride, served as matrin of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Martha Duke Hayes, Shreveport; Miss Elizabeth Ann Moss, Lake Charles; Miss Barrie Annette Niehuss, Gurdon, Ark., Miss Susan Mary Whiteman, New Orleans; Mrs. Robert H. McCrory Jr., Alexandria; Mrs. Jack Field Jr., Baton Rouge; Miss Celeste Bell Tindol, Alexandria; Miss Harriet Ann Field, Texarkana, Tex. and Miss Katherine Ann Martin, Metairie, sister of the bridegroom.

The attendants' gowns in all white were of hand clipped Chantilly lace in ballerina length with satin bows and streamers accenting the long torso bodices. Junior bridesmaids, Miss Harriet Field and Miss Katherine Martin wore gowns of white lace over canary yellow, styled identical to the other attendants. Their headpieces were large satin roses with tiny nose veils.

Joseph Storrs Washburn of Monroe, grandfather of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Morgan W. Walker Jr., Alexandria; Jack H. Field Jr., Baton Rouge, brother of the bride; Wyche Washburn Ashcraft, Bastrop, cousin of the bridegroom; Michael Martin, Ferriday, cousin of the bridegroom; James Hatchette, Lake Charles; James Alexander White III, Alexandria; Robert Cudd, Monroe; William Hilbun, Jackson, Miss., Vincent Knight of Bogalusa.

All white costumes were also worn by the mothers of the couple. Mrs. Field, mother of the bride, was gowned in a Chantilly lace sheath with cummerbund of white silk chiffon ending in full length panels at the back. Her headdress was of white silk chiffon rosebuds and her corsage was of white butterfly roses. Mrs. Marshall, mother of the bridegroom, wore a sheath dress of white embossed imported linen and her hat was a tiny breton of starched lace.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Wilson were hosts at a reception following the ceremony in the Venetian room of the Bentley Hotel. The round cake table, covered with tulle was garlanded with nosegays of butterfly roses, lily of the valley and orange blossoms. A bisque cupid topped the tiered wedding cake. A silver epergne with a mass arrangement of butterfly roses, tuberoses and valley lily flanked by three silver candelabra centered the punch table.

The couple will be at home after July 30 at 800 McGuire Street in Monroe.

Among the out-of-town guests were Joseph Storrs Washburn, Monroe, grandfather of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie Pennington Martin of Chatham, paternal grandparents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Ashcraft, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cudd, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Womack, all of Monroe.

Schools Favor Student Study Of Communism

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Should high school seniors study communism?

The question was put to a four per cent proportional sampling of the nation's 16,000 school administrators recently.

The majority—63 per cent — favored the idea. Fifty-seven per cent indicated that such a course should be required rather than elective.

The poll was conducted by "The Nation's Schools," a journal for school administrators.

The editors wanted to learn if the school officials endorsed this theory: The more people know about communism, the better prepared they will be to meet its threat.

The survey report identifies the school officials by geographic location only.

"The very nature of the Communist movement requires special attention inasmuch as it appears to have a spiritual impact as well as a social-economic effect," said an Ohio schoolman who voted "yes."

Maternity
Fashions
By LILLIAN ELIAS

SMALL SHOP

The small maternity shop often carries a much better selection of maternity fashions than the larger department stores. Stop and think for a moment and you will be able to easily understand this situation. You see, large department stores sell such a large number of products it is difficult to spend much time and space on an item as specialized as maternity fashions. Too, in a small shop the owner or manager is more apt to be a maternity-wear specialist.

PRINCESS CHOICE

It was very interesting to read recently about Princess Margaret Rose. It seems the Princess chooses to buy her maternity clothing from a small shop . . . selecting dresses and tops in the $9.95 bracket. Now here is a lady who could have the services of the finest designers and dressmakers in the world, yet she chooses a small maternity shop in London in an off-beat location! I wouldn't name them, but some of the best dressed mothers-to-be in town bought their clothing here in our shop!

LET US HELP

Whether you are in the very early stages of your pregnancy or well along the way, come in and let us help you as we have helped many other mothers-to-be just like you. At Lillian's we guarantee to fit you in maternity clothing that is both stylish and comfortable. We are located at 1129 Forsythe Ave, in Forsythe Shopping Center. By the way, our Fall fashion lines are arriving daily. Come to see us.

We are open till 5:30 p.m. and for night appointments call Lillian in advance at FA 3-2482.

Grace Episcopal Church Scene of Rea-Weir Vows

In a setting of white gladioli and candles, Miss Vevie Lynne Weir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weir, 723 Lakeshore Drive, and Robert William Rea, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rea, 1010 N. Second, exchanged wedding vows Saturday, July 22 in Grace Episcopal church.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 5 p.m. by The Rev. A. Donald Davies. Arrangements of white gladioli were used in gold altar vases and two large standards, against a background of candles and greenery. Appropriate nuptial music was presented by Allison Salley, organist and Mrs. Allison Salley, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of Chantilly lace, styled with scalloped neckline and long sleeves tapered to lily points over the hands. The boufant skirt featured an inserted front panel of net, embellished with sequins and seed pearls. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a crown of pearls and sequins and she carried a white Bible, topped with a white orchid and showers of stephanotis.

Miss Louise Weir attended her sister as maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Linda Young and Miss Sandra Cloninger. They wore gowns of aqua chiffon, fashioned with cowl necklines and full skirts. Their headdresses were of aqua net and they wore matching satin slippers and carried crescent bouquets of white bridal roses, tuberoses and miniature ivy.

Serving as best man was Johnny Rea, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsmen-ushers were Darence Cloninger and Fred M. Spatafora.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Ballroom of the Paragon club. A massive all white arrangement of stock, tuberoses and pompon chrysanthemums in an antique cherub epergne centered the refreshment table and was flanked by matching cherub candelabra, with punch bowls at either end. White flowers encircled the wedding cake which centered a round table covered wtih an heirloom cloth and a memory candle graced the guest book table.

Mrs. L. A. Nunnery, Greenville, Miss., aunt of the bride, registered the guests. Mrs. C. E. Everitt, Mrs. R. B. Beasley, Mrs. Frank P. Smith and Mrs. O. N. McNeil alternated at the punch bowls and serving the cake. Also assisting with the hospitalities were Misses Carrolyn and Margaret Rea, sisters of the bridegroom.

Miss Oxford Is Bride Of Mr. Kinnison

In a double ring ceremony solemnized Monday, July 17 in Sterlington First Baptist church, Miss Myrna Sue Oxford became the bride of Tamridge Dwayne Kinnison. The Rev. Loye E. Baird officiated at the exchange of vows at 6 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Nathanal Kinnison and Mr. and Mrs. James Oxford, all of Sterlington.

The ceremony was performed in a setting of green palms, pyramid arrangements of candles and baskets of June bride gladioli. Family pews were marked with white satin ribbon and ivy sprigs. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Warren Gene Ledger, organist, who accompanied Miss Pat Holloway, as she sang "Whither Thou Goest," and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace over satin. Her veil of French illusion was held in place by a pearl tiara and she carried a bouquet of white cattleya orchids and stephanotis atop a white Bible.

Miss Belinda Oxford, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of mauve silk organza with matching headdress of flowers and net and carried a nosegay of feathered carnations with streamers of net and ribbon. Matching slippers completed her costume. Bridesmaid, who was dressed identically to the honor attendant was Miss Sharon Oxford, also a sister of the bride.

Miss Beth Kinnison, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Pam McClung were flower girls. They wore identical ruffled organza frocks and carried nosegays of pink carnations.

Mr. Kinnison attended his son as best man and ushers were Jerry Brazzell and Roger Kinnison, brother of the bridegroom, who also served as candlelighters.

Mrs. Oxford chose for her daughter's wedding a full skirted waltz length gown of light blue silk organza with accessories to match. She wore a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Kinnison, wore an aqua lace sheath with satin trim and hat to match. Her other accessories were white and she wore a white carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the social room of the church. The bride's table was covered with a cloth of cream lace over satin. A candelabrum holding pink tapers with the bride's and bridesmaids' bouquets at the base centered the table and was flanked by a crystal punch bowl and tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Glenda Jones, sister of the bridegroom, served the cake and Miss LaQuetta Jackson presided at the punch bowl. Miss Charlotte Welch had charge of the guest book. Assisting in the serving were Miss Margaret Cornelius, Miss Pat Holloway, Miss Janice Holloway, Mrs. Don Wilkes and Mrs. C. R. Alexander.

Fashion Resume For Fall

Fashion for fall '61 predicts that style conscious women will still love the basic dress. This season it looks best in black or a neutral "no-color." The silhouette is relaxed and easy, slightly fitted (more to suggest the outline of the body than to hug it) and the very short skirts have a decided flare. Necklines are untrimmed, uncollared or stand well away from the neck. Sleeves are brief or they aren't there at all. Fabrics are lush and opulent. Crepe is having a tremendous vogue. All the designers are, again, in love with it.

MISS MARIE SUZANNE DELAUNE

Area Couple To Wed August 19

Engagement of Miss Marie Suzanne DeLaune, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Franklin DeLaune of Ferriday to Guy Morrison Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Orange Hill, also of Ferriday, is announced by her parents.

The bride-to-be is a June graduate of Louisiana State University where she received a BS degree from the college of business administration. She is a member of Delta Zeta social sorority and Alpha Beta Chi honorary sorority. Her mother is the former Olga Clemence Falgorist of Vacherie.

Mr. Hill is a graduate of Ferriday high school and attended the University of Houston, Texas. He spent the past two years in Paris, France with the United States Army. His mother is the former Mary Etta Newman of Wisner.

Harper-Cooley Vows Are Read

The marriage of Miss Kay Cooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bodie Cooley of Hattiesburg, Miss. and George Harper of Natchez, was solemnized July 10 in the chapel of Jefferson Street Methodist church at Natchez.

Dr. Clyde Gunn, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families. A reception followed in the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper will reside temporarily with his parents until September when they will resume studies as seniors at Mississippi Southern College in Hattiesburg.

Girl Scout News

Looking back on the session of day camp which ended Friday we find a number of interesting highlights we haven't mentioned before. The girls in Century Oak were able to sleep in tents two nights as they planned. Campcraft Hill girls put their cots under the pines and slept soundly under mosquito nets.

A unit of Intermediate Scouts from Bastrop's day camp, accompanied by Mrs. Ray Day and Mrs. Carl Turpin, spent one night at Pine Wood, joining with Century Oak unit for supper and campfire. Wednesday a unit from Woodland Acres, in charge of Mrs. Ray Baker and Mrs. Dogget, spent the day at Pine Wood, visiting the units, eating lunch with girls their own age, going on a hike to the river, and joining in the campfire singing. It's good to he that camping brings together girls from different communities of our council for good times together.

The fourth girl in the William Gannaway family, Leslie, reached camping age and joined sisters Judy, Gay, and Milann for the first session. Martha Parrish joined sisters Kathy and Deas. The Maxwell sisters, Marilyn, Carolyn, Martha, make another group of three.

Among the hundreds of visitors on closing nights were the very, very young sisters of Lorrie and Martha Blue and of Anne Eizabeth Hanna, who, no doubt, will be campers in a few years.

Two gifts the campers enjoyed were the bench given by Thomas Keller and the picnic table and benches in Shady Pines unit, given by L. B. Pettit.

Friday night of this week will again mark the closing of a session, with visitors invited after 5 p.m. for a picnic supper, the closing flag ceremony and campfire.

Plans for this and other all-camp activities are made by camp council, which, this session, consists of Lari Lue Bewick of Shay Pines, Melissa Campbell of Brownie Glen, Becky Platt of Hickory Hill unit, Jeri Ackel of Whspering Pines, Nonie Sessums of Trail's End, Susan Williams of Foot Traveler, Barbara Kurtz of Campcraft Hill, and Gayle Smith of Hilltop.

The most adventurous camping undertaken in connection with day camp will be the Senior Unit's three day encampment on the J. R. James property near Farmerville. Thirty-two girls comprise the unit, girls from whom the patrol will be chosen to represent our council at the 1962 Senior Roundup in Vermont. We'll share details of their trip later.

ACTOR'S ABSENCE

Small Mystery Is Cleared Up

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A small mystery—why David Niven failed to keep an interview date—has been cleared up by the director under whom the actor was working at the time.

Niven was seriously ill, says J. Lee Thompson, director of "The Guns of Navarone." Niven is now in Europe.

When I met Thompson I asked him what might have happened to Niven. Last year during a visit to London I had arranged by mail to meet Niven, an old friend. The day of the meeting Niven couldn't be found. It was unlike Niven.

VAGUE

Excuses given by his associates were vague. Thompson cleared it up.

"David was critically ill at the time from a strep infection in his throat. For some inexplicable personal reason, he didn't want his illness known.

"Consequently his associates had to resort to all sorts of fancy dodges to keep it quiet."

"David was out of the picture more than a month," said Thompson. "And there were only a few of us who knew why. Many thought that he just wasn't needed in the scenes."

Niven never explained why he wanted the illness kept secret.

Danny Thomas Talks Tax With Robert Kennedy

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dannny Thomas was master of ceremonies at a recent hospital dinner where Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was a speaker.

"Sir," said Thomas to Kennedy. "I voted for your brother. I even lit a candle to St.Jude (patron saint of hopeless cases) for his election.

"And believe me, he needed it.

"I wish you would talk to your brother about income taxes. When I first started in showbusiness, I got $114 in debt. I said to my wife: 'How will I ever get out of this mess?' That was before the war.

"Since 1945, I have never made less than $3,000 a week. Sometimes I have been paid as high as $26,000 a week. I am president of three successful film companies. I am considered a major success.

"Mr. Kennedy, Sir, I want you to look at a man who now owes $324,000."

WHO'S EXCITED? Brian Keith and Maureen O'Hara exchange shouts in a scene from Walt Disney's Technicolor romantic comedy "The Parent Trap" coming soon to the Jim Theatre. Also starring in the production are Hayley Mills and Joanna Barnes.

FRANKIE AVLON portrays an underwater frogman in the Cinemascope-color adventure spectacle, "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea" which opens next Sunday at the Paramount Theatre. The picture also stars Walter Pidgeon, Joan Fontaine, Barbara Eden and Peter Lorre.

The stamps were released on June 28 and will remain on sale for a period of three months or until stocks are exhausted, which ever is earlier.

Police Refuse To Take Pennies

NEWPORT, N. H. (AP)—Five thousand pennies may be equal to $50 in bills, but Police Chief Alex Lewko says not when it comes to paying a fine.

Lewko said Saturday that when a young man tried to pay a fine with 5,000 unwrapped pennies, he refused to accept them.

The youth had to spend 2½ hours rolling the pennies before a bank would accept them in exchange for five $10 bills—which the chief then accepted.

The penny roller's identity and what he was fined for was not given by Lewko.

Catholic Men Asking Action Against Ceylon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the National Council of Catholic Men asked the State Department Friday to protest confiscation of Catholic schools and "suppression of religious teaching" by Christian minorities in Ceylon.

In a letter to Secretary of State Dean Rusk, council President William F. Johnson said a "grave situation" regarding religious freedom has developed in predominantly-Buddhist Ceylon during the past year.

He said the government has expropriated 750 Catholic schools without compensation; restricted the activities of Catechists; and has stipulated that all foreign teachers of religion must leave the country when their present residential permits expire.

Star Radiates Originality In Talent Array

By STEEL FORREST
Written For UPI

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — What makes a star? That's a question I am not only frequently asked by others, but it is the question I most often ask myself.

And it is a topic for discussion among some of Hollywood's biggest stars who still sit in frank wonderment at the amazing pehnomenon they are experiencing.

On the set of "Star in the West" the subject found its way into a discussion among Debbie Reynolds, Andy Griffith, Thelma Ritter and myself. As usual, when the question "what makes stardom" was put to me—I had no pat answer.

Nor does anyone else, for that matter. But this most recent go-around set me thinking. The result is my opinion, at last, on what goes into a motion picture star.

The essential ingredient I think is originality. For literally hundreds of years creative man has been admonished to strike out for his goal in his own, unique way. Socrates is known to have written, "Know thyself." Shakespeare, in his immortal "Hamlet" wrote, "and this above all, to thine ownself me true ..." Emerson said "Imitation is death."

The novice actor hoping to achieve recognition may experience a fleeting moment in the spotligrt is a result of an outstanding imitation of a Marion Brando or a Jimmy Dean or a Spencer Tracy. But true stardom rests on the ability to project something unique.

I feel strongly that this is the key to stardom because to my mind, the most successful actors are those who have achieved this distinctly unique and original attack or presentation and manage to inject it into the context of every role they engage in.

Good acting, of course, means this quality is always there, but never obtrusive or out of character with the role. It must be real and it must be genuine or the theater-goer will not buy it—or the actor giving it.

I think the best advice I could give a young player hoping to achieve stardom would be: Insist on your individuality. Not to the point of absurd temperament—but enough so that the one clear talent that is "yours," will never be smothered or obscured.

Curtain Call

July 15th was the opening date for Little Theatre's film series. The audience saw a collection of all-time comedy greats in scenes from pictures of Billy Bevan, Laurel and Hardy, Will Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Harry Langdon, Ben Turpin.

The vehicle was "The Golden Age of Comedy." For summertime, a sparkling collection of froth.

Last night George Brian's children's production of "King Midas," marked the beginning of children's theatre in Monroe. Mrs. James Hull Miller, noted authority on children's theatre, speaks at the Strauss Playhouse on Monday at 2 p.m. Everyone is welcome. This is an opportunity not to be passed up because it opens new doors for development of talent and personality among the children of our area.

NEED

Let me jog your memory a bit. We are still in dire need of costumes of the 1900-1915 era. If you do not have a dress, maybe you have a parasol; maybe you have a hat; maybe you have a friend who has one; or maybe you have a magazine or fashion pattern from that period, any of which would be a help to our director, Richard Clark. So, please call the Strauss Playhouse.

When "Summer and Smoke," opens on August 10th for four nights, we will see Betty Bandy as Mrs. Winemiller, Mike Parkerson as John Buchanan, Jr., Donnavae Hughes as Alma Winemiller, Margaret Fryant as Rosa Gonzales, Charlene Correre as Nellie Ewell, Val Ringo as Dr. John Buchanan Sr., Judy Evans as Mrs. Basseet, Sarah Womack as Rosemary, Arthur Griffith as Gonzales, Bill Hardy as Archie Kramer.

Mary Lou Clay and Charlene Correro saw the musical "Destry Rides Again," in Dallas last week. Board member Frances McHenry and her daughter, Mary Wilton, left Friday last for three weeks on a flying trip to England and Scotland.

How about a post script from yours truly, for news of, for and about our Little Theatre and news of any of our good members. Please give me a call. I want anything you know. Call Fairfax 3-3226.

Curtis Assigned Photographer For Publication

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tony Curtis is working as a still photographer on "Soldiers 3," the movie starring fellow clan members Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis, Jr. and Peter Lawford.

He's doing the photography on assignment from a magazine.

Near East Crepes Bloom

By MILDRED SWIFT

The Near East pink crepe myrtles are in bloom. Such a luscious shade of pink. This variety blooms the summer after it is rooted. I've seen plants 12 inches high a mass of flowers. They're beautiful small, medium or large. Pink is lovely color in the garden and helps to create brightness if you have lots of shade.

PHLOX

Now blooming are perennial phlox (paniculata). This is a tall tree flowering perennial. Easy to raise, too. It bears large flower heads in terminal clusters, usually in a lavender color, but there is a pink, a pure white and another white with a red eye.

These phlox grow in ordinary garden soil, responding well to commercial fertilizer. They need sun, they're hardy in winter and should be set out from January through March. This plant will bloom the first summer. Clumps may be divided in the fall. Plants can be purchased from nurseries during the winter and spring. Most gardeners cut the plants to the ground when the blooming season is over.

These perennial phlox are subject to mildew, so never water with a sprinkler. Keep foliage as dry as possible. Also, red spiders appear at times. Use malathion spray to get both.

ACUBA

Acuba is a handsome ornamental shrub with its dark green, coarsely toothed leaves flecked in gold. Moreover, it is shade loving, which is contrary to the rule for most variegated plants. Acuba is also an evergreen here where it stands the cold very well. It is beautiful as an accent shrub in shady spots.

The plant will grow very tall, but can be kept under control by topping. Growing condictions are: Any good, somewhat moist though well drained soil in a half-shaded position. The acuba seems to thrive somewhat better in acid soil. Compost or peat moss worked in the soil give this acidity.

Good specimen plants may be obtained from cuttings in two to three years. Male and female flowers are borne on separate plants of the acuba. To insure a display of attractive scarlet berries, the female flowers must be fertilized with pollen from the male plant. The red berries are about the size of a small acorn.

MORE GARDENING

The percentage of small gardens is much higher than large acreages. There's a problem with small yards, though. Naturally we want at least one large tree. Then probably a small blooming tree or two. We need shrubs for screening. By that time we're beginning to get a network of underground roots. Our small shrubs perennials, and annuals just won't do too well because the larger plants sap all the food. They'll get pale and "leggy." So - we have started using more plants in pots and wooden tubs.

A plant trimmed to one standard is very beautiful in a wooden tub. Especially our gardenias. You must select such a plant with care though, a one trunk small plant and keep all side limbs trimmed, leaving just a top-knot. In a few years you'll have a gorgeous plant that's handsome beside a doorway or on a patio. Only plants that have upright growth can be pruned to a standard. Some nurseries are beginning to grow such plants, ready for you to take home. You can expect to pay more for them though.

LYCORIS

The pink lycoris (squamigera) are blooming, which is about one month ahead of schedule. Ellen Thompson says it's because the ground has been constantly wet. This is the same family as our red spider lily, but blooms are larger, and the pink a gorgeous shade.

Bulbs are bought here in the fall for the pink and yellow lycoris. Sometimes they arrive in late August, and, of course, bloom next year.

FALL STYLES

The fall line seems to be flared, curvy but not tight, softer lines with softer fabrics. Skirts have lots of movement with close fitting hips, then flare.

Waistlines are either wrapped, high or low. There's much back button interest.

Fabrics are expected to be rich and elegant with designers talking brocades with velvets. There are dresses too, in quiet checks and plaids, cut on the bias.

Although most designers are sticking to a day length just below the knee, it will be interesting to see where they put evening lengths after last season's prevalence of dresses short in front and floor sweeping in back.

Evening costumes are soft, yielding, often beaded and of wool and lace combination or chiffon and cashmere combination. Velvet with moire is popular too.

One of the most exciting moments of any trip, whether it's for a week or two, a weekend, or a day's drive in the country, is the moment when everyone is in the car, all ready to go. That's when the spirit of adventure and the anticipation of pleasure to come are at the highest peak, and every member of the family expects to have a wonderful time.

Now, to make every motor trip live up to the highest expectations, there are certain preparations you should make before that moment when dad starts the car and off you go. Check, for instance, that every driver has his license along, and that you also have the car registration, information on insurance, as well as gasoline credit cards with you.

Make sure your road maps are up to date and mark out your route before starting. To get the most out of any trip, you'd be wise to make a Magic Circle, which means you head for your destination in one direction and return home another way, making a complete circle from the time you leave your front door. And to make map - reading easier, take a magnifying glass along.

Don't forget your camera and enough film. If the trip promises to be primarily scenic, take along your binoculars, too, especially if you're interested in bird watching. Check to see that your flashlight works and have an extra set of flashlight batteries in the glove compartment.

Grooming items for freshing up along the way are important. So are sunglasses, and a notebook and pencil for keeping track of costs, mileage, or to note spots of interests you might like to visit again sometime.

Here's how to make your own instant soap pads for travel, hikes, or picnics. Soak folded paper towels in a dense soap solution. Then dry the soaped - up towels over an outdoor line. They will pack compactly for the trip, and need only to be immersed in water to serve as a presoaped washcloth.

Gather And Dry Plant Materials

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR
Guest Writer

If you haven't already started, now is the time to gather plant materials for drying. In your gardens there are many flowers to be cut for drying or preserving for dried arranging.

A few of the most common of these are the hydrangea, shasta daisy, glads, celosia, zinnias, and marigolds, The hydrangea, is best dried by hanging upside down in a cool place. When cut in it's prime there is more chance of preserving it's color. The celosia is dried upside down also. Place in a sack to catch the seed for next year's planting.

Daisies and zinnias are dried by the borax and sand method.. Also, marigolds are preserved by this method. Glads may be placed in glycerin of you may just stand in a jar to dry.

ABUNDANT

The fields and roadsides offer a wealth of material for dried arranging. Gather the dock (sorrel) while you can get the different shades of green; also, varigated orange and green, rosy beige, and the over - matured dark brown shades. Dock is a (must) in dried collections and is called t h e flower arranger's friend. Hand it upside down to dry I prefer the garage or the utility room wall.

The grasses that are so numerous along the roads and in the fields are a treat to have on on hand. Oat grass or marsh False Oats are long, yellow spike-lets that can be found in low, wet places. Hang upside down to dry. One of the prettiest of all the grasses is the orchard grass. It has long green or white spikelets in dense clusters. This grass remains green if cut in early summer, and, if gathered in the fall, it is white.

Plan to get both. The cattail is also im orptantniieedthrodcl- is also important in the dried collection. It is lovely with fresh flowers as a line material. Cut it now when small and hang it in a cool place. When gathered too late it has a tendency to shed easily. A coat of thin shellac will insure against this happening.

While you are on your summer vacation don't forget to look for interesting plant materials for drying. If by chance you go to the beach be sure to gather some of the fabulous sea oats on the sand dunes. Also, cut the palm spathes (seed pods of the palm) to be used in the arrangement or as a container for fruits or dried flowers. By all means look out for driftwood along the deserted bay shores. Now is the time to store up fo r edihterd time to store up for the dried materials storehouse.

The show last week at the Garden Center was staged by the Dixieland Daylily Society. Their president, Mrs. J. A. Kilpatrick of Calhoun, showed several prized blooms and demonstrated the art of crossing or pollinating the lily to make a new lily.

HYBRIDIZING

Hybridizing daylilies is her hobby. The specimens she showed were Mrs. June Hill's (Ge Ge), a soft yellow, blooms until frost; Wesley Hill - a soft yellow with brushed rose on the petals, a low grower, blooms until frost; Susie Gorman's (pure gold) which has wide ruffled petals and is diamond dusted; The Kilpatrick lily, a lovely yellow seedling with light green throat, ruffled and diamond d u s t e d; and, Mr. Kilpatrick's lily, a light yellow, ruffled seedling, late bloomer.

Mrs. Kilpatrick prepared the soil for planting by first putting in the fertilizer and mixing well. She suggested that in the regular bed it is best to wait a month if possible before planting the lilies.

She said to select plants with good root systems, trim the tops off, and plant them on a small mound of dirt not too deeply. Then, water well. If the soil is clay it is best to mix in some peat moss to mulch. Planting time is best from April to November, excepting July, the hot month.

There should be at least four hours of sun a day on the bed. Divide only when the clumps get too large. It is a pleasure to grow daylilies because they offer such an array of color in the garden and are so free from insects and diseases. They make wonderful flowers for arranging. To prove this — Mrs. Susie Gorman displayed a lovely modified Hogarth arrangement using an antique teapot, green in color, for her container.

This, she placed on a round black base. Large lilies (Bernice Russell), orange - into - rose-color, were placed in the focal area. Smaller lilies (Esmer) light yellow were added as a filler to follow the line of the design made by the placement of orange Montbretlia. To accent the lily blooms she added the lavender liriope, a lovely contrast in color.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Cut Lightly On Shrubs

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

By late July, gardens and shrubberies get a long-haired appearance and definitely need touching up with the pruning shears. This is not the time to cut shrubs "way back," but they can be shaped up for the winter. Broadleaf evergreens and conifers will usually make just enough more growth after late July to cover up your handy work and assume a natural appearance again before October.

Do not expect old, starving evergreens to suddenly grow back into shape before frost. It is much too late for that. The best you can do for them is to feed them lightly now, prune them ever so lightly and dig around them to encourage new root growth this fall and winter. Then, they can be fed heavily in late winter. The results are usually rapid recovery.

QUESTION

There is always a question as to whether "the game is worth the candle" in nursing old conifers back to life. First of all, be sure that it is not shade as well as starvation that has been their downfall. Most members of the pine family (conifers) except hemlocks do not live long in shade. They need nearly full sunshine. If shade has encroached on your conifers — and shade is usually preferable to conifers — dig them up and plant broadleaf evergreens in their places.

Perhaps the commonest reason for the ill fate of evergreens lies in the fact that you have planted them in too small a space for their normal development. There are so many, many medium-sized and small evergreens available from southern nurseries today, that no one need to plant shrubs that will grow too big for their space.

POTENTIAL

A great many of the dense evergreens like the dwarf form of our native youpon, the many forms of Japanese holly and the slow-growing boxwood can be pruned, sheared and shaped to quite reasonable sizes without damaging them at all.

Broadleaf evergreens can be transplanted again now. Cut them back some, move them with a good ball of dirt, do not allow them to wilt, and they will take hold and grow right off. In very hot sunny places, a shade of some sort should be erected over the plants for about a month. Some nurseries will spray the evergreens they sell you right now with a wilt proof material that holds in the moisture.

Installment Plan Applied To Education

NEW YORK (UPI)—So the potential Einstein in your house now is knee-high to a fire-plug.

And you're thinking it would do humanity good to have the child exposed to college - type higher education some day — but there isn't enough of the long-green in your crystal ball to accomplish the fact.

Relax. Thousands of other parents are in the same boat. They can't rob Peter enough to pay Paul's college tuition even 10 years from now. But they're not feeling hopeless about it.

They face up to the financial fact that the monthly budget no more allows them the economic freedom to save for junior's college education than it permits them to save the cash for a six-room house.

But back to the original question — can the Einstein-potential son of a middle-class, brink - of-paupership family get to college when his parent's savings account reads like a misshapen egg — zero?

"Absolutely, yes," said Robert J. Keir president of the Truition Paln Inc. — the nation's largest organization specializing in the installment financing of tuition and other academic fees.

What it amounts to is that the potential Einstein goes — and you pay while he's hitting the books — and maybe later. It's one big headache for the entire family.

Keir said the total expense of sending a child — male or female to the ivy covered halls of higher learning for four years now averages about $10,000.

"Relatively few parents can set aside that much money while making payments on a mortgage, buying food, paying doctors bills and meeting other expenses that go with raising a family," he said.

Feed, Water And Mulch, Good Advice

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There's good advice in a little ditty whose authorship we don't know. It goes:

Feed, water and mulch
Mulch, water and feed
This stern refrain
Goes through my brain
As I cultivate and weed,
Mulch, water and feed.
The feeding and watering I understand,
But what is the magic of mulching the land
That every expert should give the comand
Of Mulch, Mulch, Mulch!

NATURAL THING

Mulching is the natural thing to do. If you dig in the woods you will note how black and rich the soil has become from the layers of decayed vegetable matter deposited over the years. The humus gives the soil a fine texture and consistency to hold the moisture.

Of course you can't do it precisely the way nature does, but you can abet the process by mixing compost or straw or peat moss of even a bit of sawdust mixed with sand. If the soil is acid, add lime to sweeten it. If it isn't acid enough, add oak leaves or the needles of pine, hemlock and other evergreens.

Among plants that like acid soil are blueberry, rhododendron and azalea.

The New York Botanical garden is engaged in a monumental, 30-volume encyclopedia of vegetation of the world. Dr. Pierre Dansereau reports that the first, and possibly the second, volume may be ready in five years. The initial volume will deal with eastern North America. The subjects of the books will range from primeval conditions to weeds.

FAMILY AFFAIR

Planting is a family affair. The American Association of Nurserymen reports that the tendency is for husband and wife to share interest and responsibility and companionship in gardening. In 15 per cent of the cases where homes had been landscaped, husband-wife teams drew the plans. Nurserymen did it in 66 per cent of the cases, individuals in the rest.

"Tree-lifting" is a trimming job, like face - lifting, with the pedestrian and motorist benefitting. A tree-lifting project means pruning branches to clear sidewalks by about 10 feet and streets by 15 feet. The result is a better view of traffic lights for the motoriests and increased street lighting to make night walking safer and more cheerful.

Carol Baker Fascinated With Japan

By CARROLL BAKER
Written For UPI

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Having just returned from location in Japan, I can't help but write about this completely fascinating corner of the world.

While it is always wonderful to be home again, I still find myself a little nostalgic everytime I hear a snatch of Japanese music or pass a travel agency with windows alive with cherry blossoms and lanterns.

Making 'Bridge to the Sun' in Kyoto and Tokyo was an experience long to be remembered. Not only were the people wonderful (we had an all Japanese crew), but some of the sights were picture postcards come to life.

I don't mean by this that everywhere one looked he gazed upon breathtaking beauty. Japan is just like any other country in the world. One must look for the beautiful—but when he finds it he is well rewarded.

Modern And Efficient Studios

Our first days in the Japanese studio offered uite a surprise. The buildings and equipment—modern and efficient. But the floors were of plain, unadulterated dirt!

It seems so incongruous until we discovered the reason. Every set in Japan must have its own garden, just like every family, even the poorest, must have three things, a tree, water and a rock.

In the case of some families these consist of bare essentials, a cup of water, a stalk of something growing and a stone. But to get back to the studio floors.

They are of dirt to facilitate the garden portions of the sets. The floor is simply spaded and cultivated, and a garden planted. Here it flourishes naturally until it is time to strike the set.

All of this is in line with the Japanese penchant for complete authenticity. I ran afoul of this quality on more than one occasion. There was the time, for example, that the script called for me to take a bath. It was winter and the stage was ice cold.

Bath Of Boiling Water

The bath, with its waves of steam, looked cozy and inviting until I stepped in to find the water actually boiling. The Japanese are accustomed to extremely warm baths and the steam had to be there to put across this fact. But they actually used hot water—no faking with dry ice!

The entire crew was imbued with this authenticity bug. One scene called for me to visit a field hospital during World War II. As I was about to enter the door the prop man rushed up to me with a small bundle in his hand.

"Here," he said. "Carry this. One never visits a hospital in Japan without carrying a sweet potato wrapped in a handkerchief."

Why?

I have no idea and didn't have the opportunity to ask him at the moment. However this touch, I'm sure, will add authenticity to the scene for anyone familiar with the Japanese and Japanese customs.

Now I'm home again, going from one extreme to the other—from the Far East of Tokyo to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's 'How The West Was Won.'

EXTENSION NEWS

Home Week Scheduled

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are interested in gardening you will want to attend the programs at LSU on August 15-17. Here is a preview of the programs:

Tuesday, August 15, "Fruits and Vegetables Can Be Decorative in the Landscape too," by Donald Spurlock; "Indoor Plant Life Adds to Everday Living," by Dr. Tom Pope; "Japanese Flower Arrangement for Today's Arrangers," by Mrs. Louis C. George.

On Wednesday the program includes "Soil Management for Ornamentals," by Dr. Walter Peevy; and "Let's Wear Our Flowers," by Mrs. Edwin Beckman.

Then on Thursday, James E. Taylor Jr. will discuss and demonstrate patios and outdoor living and "Let's Control the Pests on Our Ornamentals," by Mr. Emile Cancienne. So if you are interested in any area of gardening or flowers you will not want to miss our first annual Home and Garden Week, August 14-17, on the LSU campus. If you want additional information, call the Home Demonstration Agent's office FA 3-2251.

INVISIBLE ZIPPER

The new seam-thin invisible zippers that you've seen in some ready - to - wear, particularly skirts, comes in a folder with good instructions and illustrations for its application. Although the zipper teeth behind the tape are completely invisible, the slider tab is exposed. It is recommended by the manufacturer for sports wear, skirts, slacks, shorts and tapered pants.

FLOOR COVERINGS

Mrs. Homemaker, you don't have to learn about any new fibers in carpets this year. The newest news in the carpet field is in the colors. Lots of purples are shown. Reds are coming back. Greens are bronzy, or misty as sagebrush sometimes called santerve. Silvery gray is coming back in the more expensive lines, but beiges are still by far the most popular.

Now for the news on the hard surface floor coverings. For the last few years, gold and glitter has been strewn throughout the lines from the least to the most expensive. This year it will be more restrained. The glitter is confined within the outline of a design. You will see vinyl combined with linoleum. This will mean that you will have the clarity of color for the vinyl inlaid and the wearability scratch resistance of linoleum.

NEW LOOK

There's a new look in plastic upholstery. It has the appearance of fine leather and the feel of soft kidskin gloves. A new method of manufacturing makes this possible. You will hear it referred to as "expanded vinyl."

Ventilan is another new plastic upholstery fabric. It combines the practical advantages of vinyl with the style features and breathing comfort of fabric.

Homemakers of the Farm Journal's family test group were asked to reupholster furniture with it and they reported that it was easy to cut and sew, very satisfactory on points of stain resistance, comfort and wearability. They also reported that the new ventilan made a good looking piece of furniture.

COUNCIL MEETING

Home Demonstration Club members your president, Mrs. L. J. Bower, asked that I remind you of the important council meeting Friday, July 28th, at 10 a.m. at the Agricultural Building in West Monroe.

Important items for discussion include the fall style revue, parish fair and Home and Garden Week to be held on LSU campus August 14th. So Home Demonstration Club members be sure to attend and help make plans for these events. The guest speaker will be J. Pascal Norris Jr., attorney.

You may have a pleasant surprise. The carpenters have told me that they will try to have the work completed in the kitchen by the 28th. For those of you who have not heard the good news, the Parish Police Jury members are having our kitchen renovated and the plans call for some mighty interesting changes which I know you are anxious to see.

A THOUGHT

A smile is the light in the window of your face that shows your heart is at home.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice Farmer,

"Usually I have to lengthen the top of a dress pattern and they fit fine, but when I lengthen a one-piece dress pattern, I get folds in the skirt between the waist and hips in the back.

"I have a friend that has the same trouble and we can't figure out why this is happennig. How do you get rid of the folds once the dress is made?"

LENGTHEN PATTERN

Dear Mrs. D.N.:

It sounds like you need the extra length in the front but not in the back. This usually is because of a large bust. You must separate the pattern above the waistline and add the extra you need in the front only. Either make an underarm dart opposite the fullest part of the bust, if there is no dart, or make the dart larger if there is one. This will make the side seams the same length.

To find your exact waist-measurement on a dress without a waistline seam, tie a string tightly around the waist. Place a pin at each of the darts and side seams. This is the exact spot where your darts must be the widest and the side seams should nip in at this point. These places must also be clipped after stiching to avoid a pulled look.

To remedy the problem after the garment has been finished, rip the side seams open from the lower edge to just above the waistline.

Again tie the string around your waistline to fine the exact place the dress should be nipped in. You will notice that the original wasitline has now dropped down towards the hips. The only problem here is that there may not be enough room for the hips, this would mean that this kind of an alteration would not work.

The only other solution to changing a garment already made is to take up the additional length at the neckline, which is a rather involved alteration.

BIAS MIDRIFF

"Dear Eunice,

"When a pattern calls for the midriff of the dress to be cut on the straight of the material, is it all right to cut it on the bias if it would be more attractive because of a checked material?"

Mrs. L.S.B.

Dear Mrs. L.S.B.:

I think the midriff should definitely be cut on the bias in a plaid or check fabric for the effect. The midriff will hold it's shape much better if you will under - line it with a soft, firm fabric. This should be cut on the straight grain.

EASE HEM TAPE

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"Why, after very carefully hemming skirts, are there slight puckers or waves that one cannot entirely press out? I do not draw the thread tightly."

Mrs. L.E. Mc.

Dear Mrs. L.E. Mc.

You are pulling the hem tape too tight as you stitch it to your fabric, this is not caused from your hand stitching. Ease the hem tape on a little as you machine stitch.

If you are planning to wash your dress, the hem tape should be pre - shrunk. Always wet the tape and iron it dry before applying.

If you have missed some of Eunice Farmer's columns and would like to have her booklet of "Twenty Most Frequently Asked Questions," send 25 cents and a self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it to SEW SIMPLE, in care of Monroe Morning World.

More Money For Paula

Commander Jeff Parnell said the music was furnished by the Rhythm Aces. Shirley Jean, Ferriday recording artist appeared.

All proceeds will go to the Paula Kay Jackson fund for heart surgery for the vivacious little 3-year-old Ridgecrest girl. She is scheduled to undergo a delicate heart operation at the Boston, Mass., Children's Hospital in Boston, Mass., on September 5.

The fund is gaining momentum and additional contributions have been received at the Concordia Bank and Trust Company here. The fund will continue and donations are being asked for the "dollars against the clock" drive to save Paula's life.

Local, State Men Elected As Trustees

They are Dr. George W. Pomeroy, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Monroe, and Robert P. Lay, layman from Shreveport.

Bishop Dana Dawson of Shreveport was one of the founders of the school, which was established while he was bishop of that area. He has been a member of the board of trustees since it was organized and now serves as a general consultant.

START

The school was opened in 1959 and was formerly known as the National Methodist Theological Seminary. The board of trustees recently voted to change the name to St. Paul School of Theology, Methodist. The announcement was made by Dr. Don W. Holter, president of the seminary.

The faculty of 12 taught a student body of 90 last year. The seminary has already outgrown its present quarters rented from the National College.

New quarters have been rented adjacent to the University of Kansas City, and the seminary will move to its new location in June, 1962.

The property which the seminary will occupy consists of two buildings presently occupied by the Barstow School for Girls. Locating near the graduate schools of the University of Kansas City will be advantageous to both institutions since the seminary is also a graduate school, Dr. Holter said.

Dr. Holter has announced that a crusade is being launched to raise $5,000,000 to acquire a permanent campus adjacent to the University of Kansas City. On this site there will be erected the main academic building, an apartment house for married students and their families, and a dormitory for single students, with dining room and lounge.

Preliminary arrangements for the fund raising program have been completed and actual solicitation will start this fall. Churches in that area have been allocated $3,800,000 to be raised this quadrennium, and the balance is to come from special gifts and from foundations in this jurisdiction.

Assembly Of God Annual Camp Is Held At Pollock

The annual state youth camp of the Assembly of God churches closed Friday after a one-week run at Camp Walker at Pollock. There were about 600 teenagers in attendance.

The Rev. M. E. Gorman of Alexandria, state youth leader for the church group, was in charge of the camp. Cecil Janway of New Orleans, spoke nightly at the encampment, and Governor Jimmy Davis addressed the group Tuesday morning.

The Men's Chorus of the Assembly of God Bible College, Waxahachie, Texas, also appeared at the encampment. There were a number of youths from the Monroe area in attendance.

This week, the church group will start an encampment at Bistineau near Minden, for boys and girls in the age bracket, 7 through 12. Rev. Gorman also will be in charge of this one. Jeri and Bob Winford of Cape Girardeau, Mo. will be special speakers.

Revival Series To Mark Church '50' Anniversary

PARHAMS (Special) — The Parhams Baptist church will begin its revival on Sunday, July 30, and continue through Sunday, Aug. 6. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

Evangelist will be Rev. Boatner Spinks, pastor of the Fellowship Baptist church, Trout. Music director will be Cyril Hawthorne of the First Baptist church, Anacoco, La., and pianist will be Mrs. Aulcie Hawthorne.

The church will also have homecoming the last day of the revival, with all-day services beginning at 10 a.m. and dinner at the church. The church will be celebrating its 50th anniversary. It was organized in August, 1911, with eight charter members and the Rev. Alvin Squires acting as minister.

Annual Meeting Slated In Area

DODSON (Special) — The annual Hudson Inter-denominational Holiness Meeting will begin here this year on July 27, and run through August 6.

Speaker for this meeting will be the Rev. J. W. South, of Colorado, who is well-known in this area. His wife will be music director.

Services will begin at 7:30 each evening.

THE REV. JOE MONGLE, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Winnsboro, will be evangelist for a revival starting today at Locharbor Baptist Church north of Swartz, and continuing through Saturday evening. Deryl Washam of Transylvania will lead song services at the meetings which will be held daily at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The Rev. L. E. Traxler is pastor at Locharbor.

Lay Mission Leaders Set 8-State Meet

About 500 missions leaders, all laymen, in Methodist churches in eight south central states will gather at Mt. Sequoyah, Fayetteville, Ark., August 25 to 27, for a week end worship on missionary education and cultivation.

Virtually all in attendance will be the chairmen of the Commission on Missions in their local churches. (The Commission on Missions is one of five program committees in each Methodist church.)

They will attend classes on missionary education, fund-raising and other aspects of missionary promotion in local churches and will hear addresses by a former Methodist missionary to the Philippines and by a Choctaw Indian minister.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the workshop is to prepare the chairmen to be more effective leaders in missionary education and promotion in their local churches. Missions chairmen from the states comprising the South Central Methodist Jurisdiction are expected. Those states are Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico. The workshop is sponsored by South Central Jurisdiction Board of Missions and the Methodist General (national) Board of Missions in New York.

The two principal speakers will be the Rev. C. L. Spottswood, until 1960 a missionary to the Phillippines, and the Rev. H. W. Anderson of Atoka, Okla., superintendent of the Southeastern district of the Oklahoma Indian Methodist Mission Conference.

'FLYING PARSON'

Spottswood, who is now associate pastor of the First Methodist Church in Gainesville, Fla., is called "the flying parson of the Philippines" because he piloted his own plane in doing evangelistic work in remote, sometimes unexplored regions of Mindanao island. An address will also be given by the Rev. Dr. Virgil D. Morris of Oklahoma City, Okla., executive secretary of the South Cenrtal Jurisdiction.

The chairmen will be divided into five groups, and each group will attend in rotation five classes. Among the classes are methods of missionary education in the local church, planning the missionary budget and using audio-visuals.

Worship service throughout the workshop will be led by the Rev. Dr. Wesley Hager, pastor of Grace Methodist Church in St. Louis, Mo., and chairman of the South Central Jurisdiction Board of Missions.

Preparations

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Members of the new Oak Park Methodist Church spent several months preparing for the arrival of their first minister. They even equipped the new parsonage with play equipment for children.

The new minister turned out to be a young bachelor.

Church Gains Are Cited On Anniversary

It was seven years ago today that the Lakeshore Baptist Church was constituted in the chapel of the Louisiana Baptist Childrens Home. There were 38 charter members, and the new congregation worshiped under a tent for three months.

During this time they acquired the first property and began construction on the first unit of a long range plan for building.

In 1956 the church constructed a second unit. Today, a third building program is nearing completion which will care for over 500 in the educational program of the church and over 400 in the sanctuary for worship.

LOCATION

The church property is located at Lakeshore and Camelia Drive in Lakeshore area.

Families of the congregation and friends will bring basket dinners today and take part in fellowship around the tables at the noon hour as they have on every anniversary day.

A special feature today will be the presentation of all the members who came into church fellowship during the past year.

The present church membership is 418. Enrollment in the various organizations is: 595 in Sunday school, 236 in Training Union and 107 in W.M.U.

"Indeed, this has been a growing church in a growing community," said the pastor, The Rev. Vester Headrick.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Jesus said: "Pray for those who despitefully use you." This is easier said than done. One I loved and admired has harmed me greatly. Just how can I pray for him?

G.P.

ANSWER: One of the blessings of being 'right with God' is that we can look upon our 'enemies' objectively instead of subjectively. When wrong has been done us, we don't lapse into self-pity, but are concerned with the plight of those who committed the wrong. We think of the remorse, the unhappiness which they have inflicted, not so much on us, but upon themselves.

Praying for those who despitefully use us, not only rids our own soul of bitterness, but it draws us toward those who have wronged us.

Booker T. Washington once said: "I will not permit any man to narrow and degrade my soul by making me hate him." Those who use us spitefully are usually trying to punish us for some reason. When they see that their bitterness has produced love instead of hate, their attack will be abandoned. Since love in our hearts begets love in the hearts of others, this breach between you and the one you have loved can best be mended by love. "Love never faileth."

Church Slates Special Showing 'Voyage Of Hope'

The Covenant Presbyterian Church, 1901 Milton Street, will have a special showing of a new documentary film, "Voyage of the SS Hope."

Time of the showing will be 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The half-hour film depicts the work being done by the American medical diplomats who serve aboard the SS Hope. The Hope is a floating medical teaching-training center which launched its work with a visit to the Island Republic of Indonesia in October, 1960.

Narrator for the film is Bob Considine, nationally known newspaperman. The film is in color.

Questions And Answers On Interior Decorating

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. — Please help me tie my living room together. Walls are lilac and ceiling is white. Sofa and carpet are mauve, one chair is blue, one neutral and third chair light lilac. Curtains are white, furniture is dark wood and accessories are white. There is something wrong and I can't tell what.

A. — You need some accents of very rich deep colors, or a few very bright touches. If you wish to stick to a strictly chrome chromatic scheme, use some throw pillows of deep violet silk. Or, you might create more interest with pillows and some accessories in deep leaf greens or bright sky blue.

Q. — I would like suggestions for additions to my living room. Carpet is light gray, antique satin draperies have print of gold, charcoal and pale pink on white. Tables are mahogany and lamps black china with gold shades. What suggestions for walls, sofa, pair of chairs and one pull-up chair?

A. — Repeat the colors you have in different values — paler, deeper, or brighter. I would like palest silver grey walls, and deep grey sofa, in a silky fabric. Soft pink for the pair of chairs and brilliant raspberry on the pull-up chair. Throw pillows for sofa in black, pale gold and white.

Q. — My small guest bathroom is dull and dark. Floor and wall tile are white, as are fixtures. The window shade must be kept drawn for privacy, which makes the room too dark for deep color on the walls, yet I want something bright and different to make it interesting.

A — A patterned paper with rich crimson or royal blue would be wonderful. If the pattern is widely spaced on a white ground, the room will not be darkened.

Orange Blossoms Contagious

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Hold those orange blossoms, girl.

Summer marriages are likely to put a maiden in a marrying frame of mind. At 19 or 20 a girl is likely to feel she's on the shelf if all her 18 - year - old friends have taken the vow. But it could be that you are fortunate not to have rushed into the bridal lineup.

"It's wiser to wait than to marry because everyone else is marrying," says actor Frank Aletter of the television series "Bringing Up Buddy."

Aletter didn't marry until, at 32, he found "the most delightful girl in the world, who had been waiting too." She is Lee Ann Merriwether, Miss America of 1955, now 26.

"Lee was surrounded by men during those years when she was the toast of America. But we're both happy she waited because we've been divinely happy for three years and have the most adorable baby in the world," says Frank.

SIX NATIONS VULNERABLE

Latin Diplomats Suspect Cuban Reds Plot Attack

By JACK RUTLEDGE

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Diplomats in six uneasy Central American nations note a strange lull in Communist activities, and express suspicion the Communists are preparing to attack their next Latin American target.

Most officials interviewed on a recent swing through Central America expressed belief it was just a matter of time before the Communists attempt a jump from Cuba to the continent.

Where the Communists — now strengthened by alliance with Fidel Castro's followers—might hit is anybody's guess. Each of the six vulnerable Central American nations—Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama—has its weak spots.

HONDURAS: Of all the Central American republics, Honduras is believed ripest for a Communist drive. It is unhappy, underdeveloped and gripped by an incredibly bad labor situation. There is strong, well-organized agitation among students an farmers. The government, under President Villeda Morales, not considered a strong one, seems to have avoided any clampdown on such activity. Unofficial estimates place the number of active Communists in Honduras at 1,000, with a large number of sympathizers, in a backwar nation of 1.6 million inhabitants scattered over 46,000 square miles of rugged mountain country. The Communists obviously take orders from Havana.

GUATEMALA: The government of Gen. Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes, still with the backing of the army, is friendly to the United States, but the return of pro-Communist exiles is worrisome. A bill outlawing communism expired in April and the congress has failed to renew it. Active Communist leaders already have returned. Guatemala, largest Central American nation, with a 4 million population, was a Communist beachhead in the early 1950s, but President Jacobo Arbenz and his openly Red regime was overthrown in mid-1954. Under Ydigiras, the economy is fairly good, though a drop in world coffee prices has hurt.

EL SALVADOR: Fourteen rich families, known as "the 14 barrons," ruled tiny El Salvador and its 2½ million population in the past. The lower classes knew little but dire poverty. A year ago, President Jose Maria Lemus was overthrown by a military group later tagged "the Red junta," which inaugurated social reforms, but which also wooed Communists, several of whom were named to influential posts. The Red junta in turn was overthrown in January by a military-civilian group that shifted the country back to a friendly policy toward the United States. It outlawed the Communist party, deported about 500 party members, and carried the social reform program further. The situation now is quiet.

NICARAGUA: The current president, Luis Somoza, seems plagued by the national memory of his dictator father, Gen. Anastascio Somoza, assassinated in 1956. The son, giving the impression of one trying to bring democracy to Nicaragua, has outlawed communism, ordered social reforms and carried out a policy friendly to the United States. There are only, by unofficial estimate, about 200 hard core Communists in his country, and the situation at present in the country of 1½ million is relatively quiet so far as communist activity is concerned.

COSTA RICA: This is the most democratic of the Central American republics, and it is relatively free of Communist activity. It has no army, depends on a small militia with fewer members than the nation has teachers. There is a small group of Communists and sympathizers, mainly among college students. They have caused fairly little trouble. On the other hand, there have been anti-Castro demonstrations among the students.

PANAMA: After a period of riots and demonstrations protesting U.S. occupation of the Canal Zone, the country seems to be swinging into the pro-U.S. camp. In recent weeks there have been anti-Castro student rallies. Communists are reported on the defensive in Panama at the moment.

IN NEW ORLEANS

Desegregation Spread Foreseen

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Desegregation may come to four to six more public schools this fall in New Orleans, the school board president thinks.

Board President Louis G. Riecke Sr. predicts public reaction will be less vigorous than in 1960 because even Louisiana Gov. Jimmie Davis now "realizes he can't stop it."

All 500 white pupils boycotted McDonogh No. 19 School. All but about a dozen white pupils left William Frantz School. Four Negro first-grade girls attended the schools.

In the Capitol at Baton Rouge, five Louisiana special legislative sessions passed a sheaf of bills in a last-ditch effort to preserve segregation. Federal courts knocked down virtually every one.

The big question in Louisiana today is—what's ahead this fall?

In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press, Riecke gave this first preview of the coming school term—making it clear they were his personal beliefs:

1. White children will return in larger numbers to Frantz and join others who defied the boycott during the past school year.

2. However, if he's wrong and white children continue to boycott the two desegregated schools, then consideration will be given to making them Negro schools.

3. Riecke says he's guessing but he thinks some of the newly desegregated schools he foresees may be in the city's uptown section. The area includes antebellum homes of the blue ribbon Garden District and Tulane University.

4. The legislature will not hold a special session because it knows there's nothing more it can do.

5. Withdrawing children from integrated schools to send them to a proposed private segregated cooperative system would be a serious mistake.

"I think there probably will be four to six new schools desegregated this fall," Riecke said. "I don't think there will be as much trouble. There probably will be some—but probably not as bad."

Demonstrators jeered parents and children as they entered and left desegregated schools last fall. A mob rioted in front of the school board building.

One reason he thinks things will be quieter, Riecke said, is that integrated schools will probably be scattered over a wider area and therefore not concentrated in one neighborhood.

Another reason is the people have seen that the state is powerless, he said.

"Before schools were integrated," Riecke said, "Gov. Davis kept telling the people over and over—'We're not going to have integrated schools. They're going to stay open and segregated.'

"The people had confidence in him. This is why they were so vigorous. But now, even Davis realizes he can't stop it," Riecke said.

The city school superintendent's staff is now screening 66 Negro pupils who have applied under the pupil placement plan to enter the first grade in white schools.

Last year, 137 Negro first graders applied. Five were accepted for admission to white schools. One dropped out before school started. The remaining four went through the school year at Frantz and McDonogh 19 and were promoted to the second grade.

Castro Invites New Tractors Group To Visit

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A new Tractors- for-Freedom Committee sees in an invitation to visit Havana a desire by Prime Minister Fidel Castro to get rid of 1,197 invasion prisoners.

"The invitation came to us out of a blue sky. We did not ask for it," said Ernesto Freyre, secretary of the committee, which comprises 11 Cuban exiles. "Castro is interested seriously in trading tractors for these men. That's to our advantage."

The invitation came Friday in a telegram from Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa. It named Freyre and two other men. A date has not been set for the trip.

Freyre said "we'll make a decision soon. I think we should return with our boys when their deadline is up July 31."

He referred to the 10 young prisoner-envoys who have been in this country since June 24 trying to raise money to free their comrades-in-arms from Cuban captivity.

The 10 arrived on the day the old Tractors-for-Freedom Committee in Detroit disbanded. The committee, headed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and others, accused Castro of destroying the possibility of an agreement by increasing the ante from 500 farm tractors to $28 million worth of heavy duty equipment, or the equivalent in small tractors.

The 10 prisoners, sent here twice to negotiate the deal, claimed that Castro had never changed his offer; that he had always asked for 500 bulldozers, which he valued at $28 million, or the equivalent in farm-type tractors.

British Raise Eyebrows Over Nude Painting

LONDON (AP)—A slight flutter of raised eyebrows coursed through London society Saturday with disclosure that a nude painting of a titled lady is now hanging in the home of Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskel.

The picture shows Lady Coldstream, 26, in a discreet but unclad pose.

It was painted when Lady Coldstream was Monica Hoyer, model at the Slade School for Fine Arts. She changed her name and social status by marrying Sir William Coldstream, 56, head of the school.

Gaitskell saw it at an outdoor exhibition in Hampstead Heath, near his London home. He bought it along with two other Man pictures, a still life and a portrait of a Parisian girl.

Told that her picture is now adorning the Gaitskell hallway, Lady Coldstream said: "I don't really mind where the pictures of me are hung so long as they are appreciated."

Sir William?

"I don't think he minds," Lady Coldstream said.

U.S. Announces Area Parishes Eligible For Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department Saturday announced the designation of 468 rural counties and 48 Indian reservations in 42 states as development areas eligible for federal aid.

The designated areas include:

Louisiana — Avoyelles, East Carroll, East Feliciana, Franklin, Lafayette, Madison, Natchitoches, Red River, Tensas, Washington.

Also included are five counties in Puerto Rico and all of the territories of American Samoa, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

The announcement by Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges also made public standards to be applied to areas of low income and substantial and persistent unemployment on which the designations were based.

Federal aid available under a new area redevelopment law totals $394 million.

Cassification of a redevelopment area does not mean automatic aid. Qualified areas must get state and federal approval of an economic development program before federal aid is given on specific projects aimed at creating permanent job opportunities, the announcement said.

Solon Charges Kennedy Inept In Berlin Crisis

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — President Kennedy's administration was charged with ineptness Saturday in its handling of the Berlin crisis by Rep. William E. Miller, R-N. Y.

Miller, who also is chairman of the Republican National Committee, told a news conference, "Kennedy made a mistake in not making a clear pronouncement on Berlin following the Vienna meeting with (Soviet Premier) Khrushchev."

Miller, here to address the annual Kent County GOP picnic, said this nation's Berlin policy was confusing to our allies, adding that Berlin "is only a manifestation of an area of weakness" in charging the administration also "bungled the handling of the Laotian and Cuban crises as well."

The Republican national chairman said, "We have never started a war and we shouldn't—but if they (the Russians) block our access routes to Berlin then we should fight." He said all the force necessary to maintain the freedom of West Berlin should be used "including nuclear weapons."

Funchess Files New Petition In Court Fight

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Dr. Lloyd V. Funchess filed a fourth supplemental petition in the complex court fight over the job of East Baton Rouge school superintendent, court records showed Saturday.

Dist. Judge Fred Blanche Jr. is expected to return a decision Monday on Funchess' request to stop his ouster by the school board.

Funchess also has asked the judge to give an opinion on who has legal title to the superintendency, himself or Lloyd Lindsey, principal of Baton Rouge junior high school whom the board named in Funchess' place.

A 6-5 majority of the school board, controlled by four members named by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis last winter and two elected members, rescinded Funchess' four - year appointment and attemped to put Lindsey in the post.

Ike Is Willing To Campaign If Nixon Candidate

WATERSMEET, Mich. (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower interrupted a secluded vacation-reunion with his three brothers Saturday to urge unity in the face of the Berlin crisis.

On another subject, the former president said he would be "glad" to campaign for Richard M. Nixon, former Republican vice president, if Nixon should run for governor of California.

"The American people should remain calm and united behind President Kennedy in the present tense international situation," said Eisenhower, who is vacationing in Michigan's rugged north country.

Roundup Shows Six Accidents, Four Injuries

Monroe police reported a total of six accidents during a 24-hour period with four minor injuries shown.

They also arrested 17 persons from 10 p.m. Friday until 10 p.m. Saturday, booking them on various counts.

In a wreck on Pine Street at its intersection with N. 16th, two children suffered minor injuries and were treated by a private physician after a collision.

Both Patricia Miletello, 8 of 117 DeSiard St., and Lena LaDart, 10 of 14th and Washington streets, were passengers in a car driven by Estela L. Miletello, 34 of 117 DeSiard St.

The Miletello car was traveling south on N. 16th street at 11:19 a.m. and failed to stop at a stop sign, striking a car driven by Ernest R. Breard, 53 of 301 K St., police said.

In another wreck at 4:55 p.m. on Oliver Road, 17-year-old Kathryn Sievers of 417 Eason Place, was injured when the car she was a passenger in struck a second vehicle.

The teenager was in a car driven by Elizabeth E. Sievers, 38 of 417 Eason Place, which was headed south on Oliver Road.

Reports showed that it struck a car headed east on Fannie Street that was attempting to make a left turn onto Oliver Road. It was driven by Shirley H. Boyd, 44 of 1400 Roselawn. Officers said it was raining and a car was parked on Oliver Road, partially obscuring vision. No charges were made in the accident.

Other action by city officets showed 10 persons booked for disturbing the peace, four for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, one for simple escape and one for aggravated battery and use of a dangerous weapon.

Racial Violence Flares In N. Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—Two policemen were injured slightly, a bystander was shot in the hip and 21 persons were arrested Saturday during what police called an outbreak of racial violence in Brooklyn.

The policemen injured were among 40 patrolmen called to the scene at Powell Street and Livonia Avenue to quell a battle among 50 Negroes and Puerto Ricans armed with knives, chains broken bottles and at least one gun.

Natchez Accident Fatal For Woman

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP) —Mrs. Beulah A. Hayles of Baton Rouge, La., was killed instantly Saturday and four persons injured in a head-on car-truck collision six miles south of here.

Mrs. Hayles was the sixth traffic fatality connected with the Hayles family in two months.

Earlier, her two children and another woman and her child were killed in a car-truck collision. A day later, a small child of friends was killed in a car-truck collision as the family drove to visit the family.

Adams County Road Patrolman Guy Smith, the investigating officer, said the accident occurred on a straight stretch of road. Both vehicles had just emerged from curves.

1513 BAILEY

3505 BREVILLE

2 bedroom home with hardwood floors within 2 blocks of Northeast College. Pay equity and assume monthly payments of $69.54. Well landscaped 75x150 ft. lot with back yard fenced.

LOW INTEREST RATE

To you who appreciate a dollar saved as a dollar earned. We offer this large 3 bedroom home on a 100x150 ft. lot on Vinson Street near the paper mill. Monthly payments of $57.00—and the equity is not too great.

REFRIGERATOR AND RANGE TOO

Attractive 2 bedroom home on a 70x197 tree studded lot can be yours by paying only a part of owner's equity and assume a 4½% loan. Located on Blair Ave., W.M. and the total price is less than appraisal.

THIS IS HOUSE SENSE

If you have nothing but useless paper in return for a place to live; let us show you this 3 bedroom home on Arkansas Road, West Monroe. It could be paid for in 12-15 years at no more than you're paying for rent.

PRICE REDUCED

BAYOU SHORES

Only $400 down and payments of less than $90 month gets you this 3 bedroom brick veneer home. Lot 100x150.

AN OLDER HOME

That has been well cared for is hard to beat. This one we'd like to show you on Georgia Street is ideal for the large family or could be rented for additional income. It's on brick piers with hardwood floors. The 105x150 ft. lot is well-landscaped and features large pecan and every type fruit trees. A bus stop is within a few feet of property. Truly worth your investigation.

105 GILBERT

$275 down and assume payments. Brick, 3 bedrooms, carpeted living room, carport and storage. Immediate occupancy.

COL. CANYON, SINCE YOU WILL BE EVALUATING THE PILOTS ON PROJECT HARDNOSE, YOU'D BETTER RUN THROUGH THEIR TESTS SO YOU'LL KNOW THE DRILL!
YES, SIR
COLONEL, WE'LL TAKE AN ELECTRO-CARDIOGRAM WHILE YOU'RE WEARING THIS TRANSMITTER 'HAT'
THE DATA WILL BE RE-CORDED ON A RADIO RE-CEIVER HOOK-UP!
WE'RE ALSO MEASURING YOUR BREATHING RATE AND AMOUNT OF AIR BREATHED!
WE'LL STOP WHEN YOUR PULSE REACHES 180 PER MINUTE!
ANOTHER ELECTRO-CARDIOGRAM, SIR...
...GRANDFATHER LIKES TO BE MODERN IN HIS LANGUAGE...
COL. CANYON, YOUR AUDIO-GRAPH SHOWS YOU ARE NOT GETTING ENOUGH BLOOD IN YOUR INNER EAR!
SIR, THIS WILL CHECK YOUR LABYRINTHINE FUNCTION!
BY THE TIME I FIND OUT WHAT IT MEANS I PROBABLY WON'T CARE!
COLONEL, WE'LL TAKE YOU TO 70,000 FEET AND SIMULATE A TOTAL COCKPIT PRESSURE FAILURE!
RO-G-GERR
IT'S CHOW TIME, COL. CANYON... I THINK THAT WILL DO FOR NOW...
GLUB!

YOGI BEAR
I'M GOING TO TRY OUT MY NEW SOAP BOX DERBY RACER, YOGI!
BUT, AUGIE... THESE HILLS ARE STEEP!
BUT YOU NEVER DROVE ONE BEFORE, YOGI!
A MERE DETAIL, BOO BOO!
MADE TO ORDER, BOO BOO... I'M A ROUGH RIDER! HEY! HEY! HEY!
I'LL TEST THIS SOAP BOX DERBY RACER FOR YOU, AUGIE DOGGIE!
PLEASE DON'T BREAK IT, YOGI!
YOGI! YOU DON'T KNOW HOW TO DRIVE A SOAP BOX DERBY RACER!
7-23
SO WHAT... I USE SOAP OCCASIONALLY, DON'T I? AND I KNOW EVERY RUT ON THIS ROUTE!
BE CAREFUL, YOGI!
I'M ON MY WAY! HEY! HEY! HEY!
NOT THAT WAY, YOGI! YOU'RE ON THE CLIFF ROAD!
NOT ANY MORE HE ISN'T!
HAH! A SURE HAND ON THE CONTROLS IS ALL IT TAKES!
LOOK OUT, YOGI!
AGH! WHO TOOK THE ROAD AWAY?
OW! MY SWELL RACER!
HE'S GOING TO CRASH IT INTO A MILLION PIECES, BOO BOO!
KALUMP!
WOWEE! WHAT A LANDING!
YOU DID IT, YOGI! MY RACER DIDN'T GET HURT A BIT!
NATURALLY! I USED MY HEAD!
THAT'S OUR YOGI!

I SAW YOU GUYS TRY T'STOP TIGER FROM SHOOTIN' AT ME! THANKS!
HE WAS TOO TOUGH FOR US!
BUT HE SURE WASN'T TOO TOUGH FOR YOU!
YOU DIDN'T HAVE NO GUN! HOW'D Y'DO IT?
Y'LEARN A LOT FROM READIN' HIST'RY, IF Y'PAY ATTENTION T'WHAT Y'READ! BUT WHAT ABOUT THAT DOPE TH' COPS FOUND STASHED IN YER SHACK?
WE KNOWED TIGER WAS SQUIRRELIN' UP SOMETHIN' IN THERE!
BUT WE DIDN'T KNOW WHAT IT WAS. HONEST!
WE NEVER DARED ASK TIGER NO PERS'NAL QUESTIONS!
YEAH? WELL, YER HERO WON'T HAVE TO ANSWER QUESTIONS WHERE HE IS NOW! TH' COPS HAVE HIM, AND TH' ANSWERS!
CHEE! THEY'D HAVE BAGGED US, TOO...
...ONLY YOU GOT YER UNCLE DANDY TO SPEAK UP TO TH' CAPTAIN FOR US!
YEAH! SO PLAY IT SMART FROM HERE ON! JUST LET ME DOWN ONCE AND FIND OUT WHAT I REALLY CAN DO!
VI'LETS! GEE, THEY'RE PURTY!
SH-H! I JUST HOPE THEY'LL CHEER UP YOUR AUNT TEE!
WEEDS! FILTHY, SMELLY WEEDS! WHERE DID YOU FIND THEM? IN SOME GARBAGE CAN? BAH!
NOW-NOW, TEE! I JUST THOUGHT, ER ...I...
GUESS WE NEVER KNOW WHAT GOES ON 'TWEEN OTHER FOLKS, LIKE TEE AN' DANDY! SO WHAT RIGHT WE GOT T'JUDGE, EH, SHEBA?
HARK! IT'S AUNT TEE IN THERE! SHE... SHE'S CRYIN', AS IF HER HEART WAS BUSTIN'!

IS THAT SUPPOSED TO BE ME? WELL! I JUST HOPE FOR YOUR SAKE YOU'VE GOT ANOTHER SPONSOR LINED UP!!
YEAH! WE'RE LETTING MICHELANGELO GO! I KNOW HE'S GOT A GOOD RATING, BUT THE OLD LADY DON'T LIKE HIM.... WHAT CAN I DO?
SIRE...AS YOUR MAJOR DOMO I TOOK IT UPON MYSELF TO HAVE A FEW PAINTERS ON SUSTAINING...IF YOU'D WISH TO SPONSOR ONE OF THEM...
THAT MAJOR DOMO GUY... HE'S GOT US TIED UP... HE'LL MAKE ALL THE DOUGH AND PAY US PEANUTS!!
EVERYTHING DEPENDS ON RATINGS.... I'VE HAD A PRESS AGENT HOLLERING OUT MY PRAISES ALL OVER THE KINGDOM...
